the kind was intended by the Saviour. He and his apostles never intended to establish civil governments, but rendered unit Casar the things that were Casar's. Civil society would cease the moment those precepts of Christ were attempted to be enaced. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, were the correct principles of evil government and had never been abrogated or superceded. What would a civil government be worth without physical force to maintain it?—without police officers, without jails, without penitentiaries? Officers cannot enforce the law without weapons of officine. If France or Spain land their armies on our shores, shall we disarm our army and navy and stand without hands in our pockets and tell them to please let us adone? How many hands would be in our National Treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the means of national treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the means of national treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the means of national treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the means of national treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the means of national treasury were it writes from Leaceck township that a school of the core is a superceded.

teaching man how to die, and too little in teaching him how to live. They seem to forget that Christ died, and only remember that Noah and Moses lived. Too many of our christian chunches are asleep in Moses when they ought to be adve in Moses when they ought to be adve in Moses, lavid, or even Solomon, as my examples of life; butas nearly as I and I will follow the teachings of Jesus of Nazareth.

Mr. Hovee very briefly stated the leading principles of his better plan for the maniagement of criminals, the hour being too late to allow even of a fell synopsis.
