A Speculative Beggar. When it was charged last Fall that President Grant had been engaged, through his brother-in-law, Corbin, in speculating in the New York gold market, few persons really believed that he was guilty; the circumstances connect ing him with Corbin's transactions were very suspicious, but they were not sufficient to positively prove that Grant was using his position as President, to regulate the financial policy of the country in such a way as to fill his individual pocket. It was well known that he was greedy of wealth, and that he would steadily reward such persons as gave him presents of houses and lands, wine and cigars, libraries, horses, dogs and sea-side cottages: but this little failing of his was attributed to the bad habit he had fallen into before the war, and after he was dismissed from the army for drunkenness and indecency; he lived then at Galena, Illinois, and not having a cent of his own, nor any disposition to earn one, was supported by the stray dollars which he begged from his afflicted relatives. A beggar then, he is a Now, a beggar is not neessarily a thief, but nevertheless a prudent, housewife will keep a sharp look out on him, as long as he is in the vicinity of her clothes-lines, table furniture or other movable property. So it will behoove the people of this country to keep a sharp eye on Grant. He was a very seedy beggar before good luck and the war made him a bloody butcher, and since the war he has again become a greedy beggar, and has, more over, as we have observed, been smirched with the suspicion of a connection with the gold gamblers. And now other developments are taking place which give us further reason distrust his honesty. He has been for months a strong and persistent acvocate of the purchase of San Domingo, an island of no possible use to this coun try; and lo! it now turns out that the project to induce the United States to purchase it was concocted by some New York speculators for the benefit of their own pockets and those of their friends. Three army officers appointed by Grant. go to San Domingo to make the treaty and Grant and they, and the other U S. agents, -- all except one poor fellow, whom the others locked up in jail because he wanted to expose their rascality,are said to be in the speculation up to

Logan in the House of Representatives says, he has abundant reason to believe that Grant and his administration are opposed to aiding the insurgent cause in Cuba, because they do not want the United States to get the island for nothing, as it will spoil the nice little game they have fixed up with Gen. Prim to buy the island for a hundred millions or so; upon which liberal sum the Spaniards will be willing to allow a very handsome percentage to the projectors of a scheme which has so enriched their Treasury. Ben. Butler is said to be chief engineer of the project, and has Grant under contract to do his Level heat to put it through for an adequate consideration. All of which is the legitimate consequence of making a President out o

The Revenue Department has been converted into an asylum, where many of the worst men belonging to the Republican party are pensioned off and sup-ported at the public expense. The masses of that party can not be so completely blinded by prejudice as not to see the evils which exist, and we are gladly vote to remedy the abuses which affect all classes of the community alike. In our judgment the best and the cheapest way to collect the taxes which are necessary to support the general government, would be to apportion the amount among the several States, according to their ability to pay, and to thus levied upon it from such sources and in such a way as its authorities might deem proper. The same officials who collect the State and County taxes could collect all taxes levied for the general government, and the whole army of Federal officials might be thus dispensed with. The States being responsible, would hold the county of times permitted to be represented by cials to a strict accountability, and they would exercise a like restraint their subordinates. The people the tax from them, and they would seet honest and capable persons. The legislature of each State could appor on the taxes in a more equitable manner than Congress does, and the whole ystem being brought under the immediate view and control of the taxpayers would be vastly simplified, improved and cheapened. One of the greates! curses of this coun ry is the increase of Federal officeolders which has taken place since the Radicals obtained control of the general government. This garden must be weeded out, and whole crops of uscless officials cut up by the roots. The people are all interested in cheapening the expenses of the government, and they be gin to see how they have been imposed upon. Let them apply the remedy at the ballot-box in the coming Congre sional elections. Let none but unques tionably honest men be voted for, and let every candidate who will not pledge himself to give us a cheaper government be defeated.

After due deliberation the House 'ommittee on Reconstruction voted to report a bill for the admission of Georgia ith the Bingham amendment, which defeats the impudent and outrageou attempts of Governor Bullock to perpetuate his rule in the State, against the will and wishes of the people. The recent elections would seem to indicate a turn in the the drift of political tide. The defeat of so worthy and personally acceptable a candidate as Gov.
