Lancaster Intelligencer. WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1870.

The Pause Before the Storm. "All quiet on the Rhine." Such the news that has come to us for day past, and our people not only wonder that no battle has been fought but seem anxious to hear the boom of hostilcannon and the sharp rattle of needle and chassepot guns re-echoed by the Atlantic cable. Through the morning mists which shroud the historic streams whose banks have been the scene of so many bloody contests we see the French army massing on the Moselle, near Sierck and on the Rhine in the neighborhood of Strasbourg, while the Prussians appear to be forming a line from the fortress of Coblentz to Mayence. Let nobody imagine, because we do not immediately receive news of great nttles, that there's to be no war. War is certain and inevitable. The combatpeace, know that any attempt at mediof the hereditary foemen shall have been tested in one or more great pitched battles. In order that such a battle may be fought, it is necessary to get great armies on the territories where the fighting is to take place. This requires time. matter how thorough the preparations of the combatants may have been, they can not place their forces at once upon the scene of action. If, as is reported, the French propose to assemble three hundred thousand men between Strasbourg and Thionville before they sians are, no doubt, using all possible diligence; but it must be many days before a Prussian line of battle can be drawn up opposite to a French gan to put their armies upon a war footof Sadowa was not fought until July. The parties to the pending contest are putting forth all their energies, but not all the facilities afforded by modern invention can enable them to annihilate time always a pause before a great tempest is

It is a question which will be determined without regard to party, and we believe the time is mear at hand when the desired change is mear at hand when the desired change in the army of the Union. If I were a first party of the Union. If I were a first party of the Union. If I were a first party of the Union. If I were a first party of the Union. is near at hand when the desired change in the Constitution of this State will be made. We have explained the proposed felt, and have expressed our earnest conviction of the necessity which exists for devising a plan by which the minority may be fairly represented in all legislative and other elective bodies. The idea is perfectly in accordance with the true theory of Republican government, sprung up under our present system. It is perfectly feasible, and we are glad to ee that very many of the best newspapers in the State, without respect to party, are advocating the early adoption of such a cumulative system of voting which will ensure a fair representation of minorities.

Finding themselves unable to maintain control of the State of North Carohave resorted to the desperate expedient of arming bands of militia at the public term. On that day the average temperexpense; and conservative meetings are ature was ninety degrees, and in some now being violently broken up and parts of the city even ninety-eight and promine it citizens seized, imprisoned and threatened with military trials and On Tuesday there were seventy-six summary execution. These terrible effects of the If a fellow like Holden, who could never Carolina were free to vote their honest sentiments, is to be permitted to put him self at the head of a force of armed men, and to arrest and try by drum head court martial all who are opposed to his reelection, then can this country furnish to the world an example of tyranny such as no other civilized nation ever exhibited. We ask Northern Republicans to look at this result of the Congressional system of reconstruction. It is of a piece with much else that has been done, and ical rule in the South.

Compliments to Congressmen.

Hou. S. S. Cox met with a grand reception from his constituents on his return from Washington. They turned entertained them with one of his keenest and wittiest Democratic speeches. Hon, John D. And then too, when they have caught a "catic" or two at one place, or a "sunic" at another, to see them return to these places again—after having been unsuccessful elsewhere—as their "good cattish holes" or "sunish holes," exhibits the hopoful and confiding simplicity of youth in its strongest light. Fishing, on the whole, as an occupation, may be necessary, as a recreation it may be necessary, as a recreation in the properties of the necessary and the necessary and the necessary as a recreation in the necessary as a recreation in the necessary and the necessary as a recreation in the necessary and the necessary as a recreation of the necessary and the necessary as a recreation of the necessary and the lightful to the fisherman, it is more the less

The Eric Rathrond Lease. Philadelphia, July 20.—An election was held to-day by the stockholders of the Eric railroad, to approve the new lease of the road by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Prior to the election a protest was presented on behalf of the Cleveland, Plaintville and Ashtabula railroad, against the Pennsylvania Railroad against the Pennsylvania Railroad against Plainwille and Ashtabula railroad, against allowing the Pennsylvania Railroad to vioto on nearly forty thousand shares owned by that company, on the ground that the new lease is in havor of that company, and the company should not be permitted by its own vote to discharge themselves from the obligations of the former lease. Sixty-three thousand, one hundred and sixty-eight votes were cast in flavor, and two thousand. seven hundred and sevent clding the question in favor of the new lea

The N. Y. Tribune says: Congressinen who are startled by the unexpected appearance of the transcript from the records of the House showing their presence and absence, as indicated by the roll calls, will do well to remember a little episode of hast session. This epi-sode was the Tariff discussion, which last-ed for six or eight weeks. During it the average daily attendance of members was about 115, out of a total membership of 224.
