MY WIFE AND CHILD. (The following lines are from the pen of Ge breathe the true spirit of poesy and tender pathos. As a beautiful expression of thought, they will no doubt be appreciated by eaders,]

The tattoo beats—the lights are gone.
The camp around in slumber lies;
The night with solemn page moves o
The shadows thicken o'er the stoes.
But sleep my weary eyes luth flown,
And sad uneasy thoughts arise. And sad uneasy morgans arise.

I think of thee, dearest one,
Whose love my early life bath blest;
Of thee and him-our baby son—
Who slumbers on thy gentle breast,
God of the tender, trail and long,
Oh guard the tender sleeper's rest. And hover gently, hover near
To her, whose watchful eye is wet—
To mother, when the double dear,
In whose young heart have freshly me
Two streams of love so deep and clear—
And cheer her drooping spirits yet. And effect no incoming spirits yet.

Now, while she kneeks before thy Throne
Of touch her, Ruier of the skies,
That, while by Thy bebest alone,
Earth's mightlest powers fall and rise,
No tear is wept to Thee unknown,
No haft is lost, no sparrow dies.

That Thou can'st stay the ruthless I Of Cark disease, and soothe its pa And when upon her pillow lone Her tear-wet check is sadly prest, May happer visions beam upon The brightening current of her breast? No frowning look or angry tone Disturb the Subbath of her rest. Whatever fate those forms may show, Loved with a passion almost wild— By day, by night, in poy or wor— By feats oppressed, or hopes beguited, From every danger, every for, Oh, God! protect my wife and child!

Twas whispered one morning in Heave How the little child angel May, In the shade of the great white portal, Sat sorrowing night and day, How she said to the stately warden-He of the key and bar – "O angel, sweet angel! I pray you Set the beautiful gates ajar, Only a little, won't you? Set the beautiful gates ajar, Set the beautiful gates ajar?
I can hear my mother weeping;
She is lonely she cannot see
A glimmer of light in darkness,
When the gates shut after me,
th! turn me the key, sweet angel,
The splendor will shine so far?
But the warden answered: "I dare not Set the beautiful gate ajar?"
Splote low and answered: "I dare not Set the heautiful gate ajar."

Then up rose Mary the Blessed, Sweet Mary, Mother of Christ, Her hand on the hand of the angel She hald, and the touch sufficed. Turned was the key in the portal, Fell ringing the golden bury? And lo? in the inthe child's fungers Shood the heauthni gates aga; "And the key for no further using,
"To my blessed Son shall be given,"
Said Mary, Mother of Jesus
"Tenderest heart in Heaven,
Now never a sade-yeal mother,
But may eateh the glory afar,
Since safe in the Lord Christ's bosom,
Are the keys of the gates agar!
Hose hid in the dear Christ's bosom,
And the gates parever agar!

It was a very not day in midsummer, and every one in the office went about his work in a dozy condition. I know that as it approached three o'clock, I several times caught myself napping on my high stool, and should perhaps have proceeded farther than a nap but for two reasons—firstly, that the high stool would inevitably have dropped me.

LANCASTER, PA., WEDNESDAY MORNING AUGUST 31, 1870.

a lady, rather elegantly dressed, not very young, but with a face which once seen could not easily be forgotten. It was somewhat handsome in outline, but hard and stony, with a cold blue eye that spoke little of sentiment and everything of business. She went straight to John Barrett, she had seen in places of business then as now. Only John larrett's desk, which and I, however, saw her face. John took the cheque, looked it over in the usual way, gave a glance at the lady, and the chern-good Heavensland, fifter asking her how she would have it, paid it, in conformity with ner request, in small bills. She took them carelessly, without counting, put them into aleather reticule, and went out, the with she ranked to the size of policy and the state. I stared her full in the face, but when she had gone I bare to make the face of washing the events already narrated, I was following out a rule I had adopted for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for a dollar, not only from the old man's for the doward her, but from the old man's fact that he had over and over again expect librate in the had over and over again expect librate in the had over and over again expect librate in the had over and over again expect librate that he had over and over again expect low in the fact that he had over and over again expect librate in the had over and over again expect low in the fact that he had over and over again expect librate in the had over and over again expect low in the fact that he had over and over again expect low in the fact
