So they send an order to the nursery for trees enough to set out five, te, and sometimes many more acres, without even once taking a thought of the labor necessary to make such an orchard a success. They do not seem such as orchard a success. They do not that those trees must be cultivated just as carefully as any farm crop—that the soil one—the nearest one—to mature, should be made richer, as ageneral thing, and not robbed year after year by gram crops, that take off the very material that the trees ought to have. Right and Wrong Way to Milk. The Irish Farmers' Gazette publishes the following from Professor Dick of the Edinburgh Veterinary College, on the manner of milking: the manner of milking:

In some the dairy-made dips her hand into a little milk, and by successively stripping the teat between her fingers and thumb unloads the udder This plan, however, is attended with the disadvantage of irritating more or less the teat, and rendering it liable to cracks and chops, which are followed by inflammation extending to the rest of the quarter. This accounts for the disease occurring more frequently among the cows under the charge of one milker than it does in those under the charge of another; and as this practice is more common in some parts of the country than in others, it also accounts for the disease being more common in is more common in some parts of the country than in others, it also accounts for the disease being more common in these parts. consequence of the cracks and chops, which renders it more difficult to milk than when in its natural state, and, at the same time, predisposes to inflammation when any cause occurs to set it up.

These effects may be, and are, almost entirely avoided, by the most scientific plan of milking adopted in other parts of the country, where, instead of drawing down or stripping the teat between the thumb and fingers, as I have stated, the dairy-maid follows more closely the principles which instinct has taught the calf. She first takes a slight hold of the teats with her hand, by which she merely encircles it, then lifts her hand up so as to press the body of the uder upwards, by which the milk escapes into the teat; or if, as is generally the case when some hours have elapsed between milking-times, the teat is full, she frasps the teat close to its origin with her thumb and fore-finger, so as to prevent the milk which is in the teat bricks or tiles.

A drain filled with charcoal could never be choked except by particles of teathcarried in by the water that flowed through it; superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, to choke the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, to hothe the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, to choke the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, and it is usually does, when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, to choke the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, to choke the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, the choke a very like and through it; superincumbent earth would through it; superincumbent earth would not fall down, as it now usually does, choke the passage when the bushes which superincumbent earth would through i Suckers About Fruit Trees.

Every orchard not carefully watched is liable to become infested with suckers growing about the foot of the trees, and grant it an evidence of recognition.

A Nation of Good Farmers. A correspondent of Hearth and Home, who attended our Commissioners in their visits to San Domingo, thus describes the farming on that happy is land:

"There is not a plough in use; even a long knife; is used to cut off the timber, to dig Toles in the ground for seed, and to remove the weeds, and to har

Every orchard not carefully watched any from setting even small ones.

The foregoing discouraging picture need deter no one from setting an orchard-a large one if they wish—and making it a success. The proper attention given at the right time, will be fully rewarded. It is better to guard against girdling by mice, by attention in the Fall, than to repair their damages in the Spring. It takes far less time to dig out the boot part and raist another in its place. It takes far less time to the core to plant and raist another in its place. It takes far less time to the tree and badly damaged it. Though the caterpillar when in the egg or just hatched, than it does after it has spread over half the tree and badly damaged it. Though the caterpillar moth may fly from one orchard to another to lay its eggs, yet it is not half so opt to as it is to lay its eggs in the orchard where it came into life; so that if the caterpillar are all destroyed this year in one orchard, there will be far less next year than in an orchard near to it where they were not thus destroyed.
