

GERMANY'S POWER MUST BE CRUSHED, LONDON ATTITUDE

No Compromise While Militarism Makes Possible Further Dreams of Teutonic Supremacy.

LONDON, Sept. 14.

Until Prussian militarism is crushed for all time, both on land and sea, England will refuse even to consider propositions of peace. That was the emphatic position taken in London today. It is felt that the position of the allies must be greatly misunderstood if it is believed that any peace proposal would even be received at this time.

Were the war ended today, even though Belgium were indemnified and France received back Alsace-Lorraine, the great German fleet would remain as a menace to the peace of Europe. England is determined that this shall be the last war. Officially, from the King down, insist that the real cause of the war was the German desire for world power. A compromise now, it is claimed, would mean that at a later date Germany would renew the attempt, and this time the allies might be unable to present their united front. So it is the intention of England to fight on until Germany is forced to consent to a peace that will make her a permanent ally. The allies will be compelled to respect, and not regard as "mere scraps of paper," to be disregarded at will.

DEFENDS HARBOR BILL

Senator Ransdell Says 300,000 Will Lose Job if Measure Fails. WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—When the river and harbor appropriation bill was taken up in the senate today, Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, made vigorous defense of the measure.

MARK TWAIN'S OWN IDEA OF THE DEFENSES OF PARIS

Had the Germans possessed the war map, which accompanies this article, Paris would have been in their hands by now. The map, the chief oeuvre of Mark Twain, was drawn by him and by the exercise of superhuman ingenuity, also engraved by him. It is true that it is somewhat sketchy, but as General Nelson G. Miles, who never saw the map, is reported to have said:

"It was fully as useful in 1870 when it was drawn, as it is today." The map was published in the Buffalo, N. Y., Express, of which Twain was owner, on September 17, 1870, and Twain's description follows, together with some testimonials, even more enthusiastic than that of General Miles:

TO THE READER. The above map explains itself. The idea of this map is not original with me, but is borrowed from the Tribune and the other great metropolitan journals. I claim no other merit for this production (if I may so call it) than that it is accurate. The main blench of the city paper maps, of which it is an imitation, is that in them more attention seems paid to artistic picturesqueness than geographical reliability.

Inasmuch as this is the first time I ever tried to draft and engrave a map, or attempt anything in the line of art at all, the commendations the work has received and the admiration it has excited among the people have been very grateful to my feelings. And it is touching to reflect that by far the most enthusiastic of these praises have come from people who know nothing at all about art. By an unimportant oversight I have engraved the map so that it reads wrong end first, except to left-handed people. I forgot that in order to make it right in print it should be drawn and engraved upside down. However, let the student who desires to contemplate the map stand on his head or hold it before her looking glass. That will bring it right. The reader will comprehend at a glance that that piece of river with the "High Bridge" over it got left out to one side by reason of a slip of the engraving tool, which rendered it necessary to change the entire course of the River Rhine or else spoil the map. After having spent two days in digging and gouging at the map, I would have changed the course of the Atlantic Ocean before I would have lost so much work. I never had so much trouble with anything in my life as I did with this map. I had heaps of little fortifications scattered all around Paris, at first, but every now and then my instruments would slip and fetch away whole miles of lattered and leave the vicinity as clean as if the Prussians had been there. The reader will find it well to frame this map for future reference, so that it

Items will be filed. In his communication to Mr. Kendrick, Mr. Dick said: "Because the Board of Education has to pay the prothonotary statutory charges for filing these lists, it is important that the Receiver of Taxes collect a lien charge of $1 in addition to the regular penalty." Data on tax delinquents in other wards of the city is now being placed with the law department of the Board of Education.

THE WEATHER

Official Forecast. WASHINGTON, Sept. 14. For eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey—Fair tonight and probably Tuesday; not much change in temperature; fresh northerly winds. The rest of high barometer is over Vermont this morning and the area overextends practically all districts from the Mississippi River eastward. Fair weather has prevailed under its influence except along the south Atlantic and Gulf coasts. The temperatures remain low along the Atlantic slope, but are rising in the lake region and in most of the great central valleys. A disturbance of considerable energy overreaches western Canada and the States along the northern border, causing thundershowers in the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys.

WEATHER. For Philadelphia and vicinity—Fair today; showers, partly cloudy, with rising temperature.

ACTIVE JERSEY CAMPAIGN FOR SEATS IN CONGRESS

Leaders to Stress Need of State Tax Under Democrats. TRENTON, Sept. 14.—Republican leaders forecast victory for their congressional candidates at the November elections. Newton S. K. Hughes, chairman of the Republican State Committee, has prepared an itinerary which will carry him into every county during the days remaining before the primary election, September 22.

Mr. Hughes, primed for a contest which, it is admitted, will be strenuous, in view of the luck that has fallen in the path of the Democrats with the outbreak of the European war, has declared that there appears to be no reason why the Republicans should not return at least seven out of the twelve members of the House of Representatives to be elected. During the last week, or since such candidates as John Dymally Prince, professor in Columbia, who is a candidate for Congress in the Sixth District, and Edward W. Gray, formerly secretary of the State Committee, who is running in the Eighth District, have captured by their oratorical batteries, there has been a marked change in the sentiment of the voters. The party leaders are bent upon convincing the voters that the Underwood

DREW SEMINARY TO OPEN

Seventy-four Theological Students Enrolled for Fall Term. MADISON, N. J., Sept. 14.—Drew Theological Seminary will open the fall term on Wednesday, September 23, with one of the largest classes in its history and with several faculty changes. Seventy-four students have already registered and it is thought this number will be increased to 85.

The Rev. Dr. Edmund D. Soper has been appointed by the trustees to occupy the newly created chair of missions and comparative religion. Professor Soper comes from the Ohio Wesleyan University. Professor F. Watson Hannan, a newcomer last year, who was associate professor of pastoral theology, will occupy the chair of biblical theology. Professor Robert W. Rogers, who has been spending a year in Oxford, will resume as professor of Hebrew and Old Testament exegesis. President Ezra Suter Tingle is expected to return home in a few days from London.

TREATIES AWAIT SIGNATURE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Secretary of State Bryan announced today that the peace treaties with Great Britain, France, Spain and China soon will be ready for signature. By the terms of these treaties the countries parties thereto agree to submit any dispute to a commission previous to beginning hostilities.
