

WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS TO KNOW—THINGS THAT INTEREST MAID AND MATRON

FEMININE FLIRT OFTEN PROVES TO BE BEST OF WIVES

Ancient Adage That "Flirts Never Marry" Isn't True in Most Cases—Her Experience Valuable.

From time immemorial much censure and criticism have ever beset the pathway of that not-altogether-to-be despised young woman, the Flirt.

PRINCESS MARY OF ENGLAND ARDENT DEVOTEE OF SPORTS

Daughter of King George Able Tennis Player and Horsewoman.

The only daughter of King George the young and charming girl who early has learned the duties of her high position.

With no sister to share her lessons or pursuits, the young Princess greatly appreciates the society of her five brothers.

At an "at home" the other day I overheard the following conversation between two married women, both young and pretty but differing in the fact that before marriage one had been invariably denounced as a "flirt."

"But, my dear, how dreadful for you!" cried the "model" girl. "Think of the carpets and the cigarette ash and the trouble."

"The bother the carpets and the trouble if my husband is happy," was the reply. "He says he is proud to have his friends drop in and meet me and I join in all their talk."

"You must make the effort anyhow," said the happily married girl. "Wouldn't you sometimes just flirt with your husband a little?"

"But, my dear," said the "model" girl, "I have never flirted in my life, and you have the advantage of me—I don't know how to get about it."

ELLEN ADAIR GETS HER FIRST PEEP AT REAL LONDON LIFE

On Way to America After Her Mother's Death, Sad English Girl Is Amazed by Sights.

I think the common places of a common life are more romantic than any fiction. But no trumpet heralds the telling of a common tale.

A week after mother's death, the kind little lawyer who was negotiating affairs for me had obtained my passage to America.

"Come come, Miss Adair," said the little old lawyer fustily, as together we stood at the edge of the pavement at Oxford Circus.

"I could not but smile, and come to earth again," I said. "Across that awful street we go."

"I really do declare," exclaimed Fairy Moss one day, "that there is no end of our work!"

"Thank goodness, you're right," said Fairy Silver heartily.

"Of course, I am right," responded Fairy Moss tartly. "I always am; but why thank goodness about it?"

"Because a world without work is the very stupidest place one can possibly imagine—that's why!"

"Very well then," he said finally. "Let's say work is all right—then I must be all wrong, for I don't like it!"

"A nap!" exclaimed Fairy Moss in amazement.

CHILD'S SCHOOL FROCK OF SCOTCH PLAID

BEFORE THE SANDMAN COMES

MANY years ago, when this world was all a fairyland, the flower fairies worked very hard all the summer long.

There were so many, many things for them to do—buds to open and petals to paint; stamens to powder and seeds to make.

"I really do declare," exclaimed Fairy Moss one day, "that there is no end of our work!"

"Thank goodness, you're right," said Fairy Silver heartily.

"Of course, I am right," responded Fairy Moss tartly. "I always am; but why thank goodness about it?"

CHILDREN'S FROCKS OF SCOTCH PLAIDS ALWAYS IN STYLE

The Gordon and MacDonald, in Dark Blues and Greens, Are Especially Suitable for School.

Scotch plaids are never altogether out of style, at least where children's frocks are concerned, but their vogue ebbs and waxes from year to year.

Of the many tartans, the Gordon and the MacDonald, in dark blues and greens, enlivened with a yellow stripe, are especially suitable for school wear.

They are serviceable and smart, two important factors not always easy to combine.

The frock shown here has the killed skirt that is both pretty and sensible.

It is the conventional skirt, where plaid is used, but the dress shows originality in the bias use of the plaid for the waist.

Children's fashions vary, but the frock that is simple is in much better taste than one that is elaborate or over-trimmed.

Children like to be dressed as their playmates are dressed—that is their fashion mirror.

The shortness of the skirt, the length of the waist are often the only special characteristics of a season.

Of course, the position of the belt or sash depends on the length of the waist, and one year the sash is in favor at the expense of the belt and another the belt is more conspicuous.

But just a little careful study of a few good models make it a simple matter to keep to the set standards.

and decidedly long as to the waist line. The sleeves are set in and cut short enough for a bias cuff.

THE RAINBOW

OH, WHERE is the end of the rainbow That I see all over the sky?

That I see all over the sky? I'm going to run and find it As soon as the grass is dry.

But where is the beautiful rainbow? It was mean of it not to stay; Just when I was going to touch it, It started to run away.

HOPEFUL HEART BEARS IMPRINT OF BEAUTY

Loveller and More Desirable Than First Freshness of Youth.

The truest beauty is but a reflection of the soul within. On the tired face of many an old woman worker, on the homely countenance of many a manly laborer, a printed a deeper and more eternal beauty than the mere first freshness of youth.

For such have lived and such have learned to hope. The young girl lives in the happy present, and her pretty face glows but the promise of a deeper beauty. But the old folks, with their furrowed skins, have learned life's lessons.

"And I don't care for it," she said. "I don't care for it," she said. "I don't care for it," she said. "I don't care for it," she said.
