THE DRAMA

LOUISE MEYERS As Petite Prunella, Forrest Theatre.

THEATRICAL BAEDERER

ADELPHI—"Help Wanted" comedy, drama. Parts and pitiable girls in business world. Stenographers, bowlers. BROAD—"Drugged" by Owen Davis, starring John Mason. Mystery, murder, morphine-romance, siren singing. Delicate, dainty, with subtle message—don't sell yourself when a fortune's coming to you. CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE—"Cabiria," one of the most spectacular moving-picture dramas ever presented. Love and war in the third century B. C. They kissed like you.

FORREST—"Ziegfeld Follies" light, very light, in humor and clothes. Bert Williams makes the funny conviction of your brain. GARRICK—"Adele," French operetta, roseate romance, siren singing. Delicate, dainty, with subtle message—don't sell yourself when a fortune's coming to you.

WALNUT—"Sisters," thrilling as it was 23 years ago, certain to keep fair damsel from exploring the snowy steppes for romance.

great emotional experience. But I want to distinguish between the callow calf love of the April and the intelligent and mature passion of hum—after twenty-two!"

Miss Wood was interrupted. A French maid entered.

"Georgia Gaine's run out of her face enamel. May we borrow yours?"

"Take it," commented Miss Wood's dusky maid. "Strange how some folks seem to drink up face wash."

"Supposing I should have already married. During the past years I've been developing. I've been four years on the stage. I've had to study hard, and I've improved as I worked. I expect to improve further. If I had married the man might have developed ahead of me—I might have developed ahead of the man—oh, that's quite possible! That would have been terrible. Yet, that's what invariably happens with too early marriages—then divorce! I believe in marriage being permanent. Yes, one great love in a lifetime—that only is worth while. It's worth waiting for. Women should steel their hearts to all romance until they are perfectly grown mentally—then let the irresistible come!"

"With the evolution of women and their demand for expression—manifested in one phase by the suffrage movement—women are becoming more intelligent in matters of romance. They're not going to give themselves to silly endive affairs and let their hearts be dragged in the dust. Nor are they going to submerge their personalities in early marriage. We're getting away from the Spanish-German idea, thank heavens! Think of me presiding over a cook stove, the laundry, preparing dinner—oh, that's quite possible! That would have been terrible. Yet, that's what invariably happens with too early marriages—then divorce! I believe in marriage being permanent. Yes, one great love in a lifetime—that only is worth while. It's worth waiting for. Women should steel their hearts to all romance until they are perfectly grown mentally—then let the irresistible come!"

"Which is most important, marriage or an artistic career? To me, an artistic career! Success in my work means more to me than marriage can, than being a mother can. I devote all my attention, my heart and my soul to my work, and the increasing mastery of my art is the most gratifying thing in life to me.

"At my age I'd really be afraid to marry—afraid of how I'd regard the man, or he me, a few years later. Early marriage is dangerous—poisonous! As for marriage later—I'm not even considering it! I've never been in love—I don't want to marry! Of course, 'wisdom'—Adèle smiled slyly, which is proverbial that women change their minds."

"Miss Wood?" It was the call boy.
