Lecturer Gives Interesting Account of City's Past Without Its Accuracy Being Challenged.

Did you ever view Philadelphia from a sightseeing auto? If you didn't you have lots to learn. You will find in some interest that famous historians have been even heavier.

The advance of the French lines to Lassigny has revived the belief here that stances that famous historians have greatly erred, that statisticians have not been within gunshot distance of facts, and that you'll feel at the end of the trip that you should brush up on things concerning your own city.

A trip on one of these "rubber-neck" cars was taken today by an Evening Ledger reporter. He started from Fifteenth and Market streets in receptive mood, but before riding a mile was convinced that he knew very little, indeed, about places and events in his own city.

The first surprise came when the car reached the main postoffice. There the marathen lecturer pointed to the statue of Benjamin Franklin and announced in authoritative tones, "There is the statue of Benjamin Franklin. It was upon this very plot of ground that Franklin flew his kite and got electricity from the clouds." Some of the other riders also were amazed. They made quiet comment, but as most of the passengers appeared to be contented the statement passed unquestioned.

One could half close his eyes and picture the guide enlightening an audience in a vaudeville house. Glowing tribute was paid by the lecturer to prominent business establishments on Chestnut street. On reaching Fifth street, he announced that the Delaware River was five squares east; also that the Atlantic Ocean, which washed the shores of New Jersey and several other States, was 63% miles east of that.

CONSCIENCELESS ENCPCLOPEDIA. Endowed with a vocabulary which would have done credit to a high school graduate, the speaker then went on like human encyclopedia without a con-block from Fifth to Sixth on Market atreet was referred to as "great men's row." Luckily there were no mem-bers of the Pennsylvania Historical Society on board, for the guide pointed out the early homes of several Presidents, half a dezen famous statesmen and residences of others who helped make history in the days of the city's early struggles.

At Seventh street he was obliged to drop history for commerce. All the de-partment stores got the fullest praise and the prices of hats and gowns were not forgotten. In describing one, the lecturer remarked: "There is a store so large that if a woman bought a hat at the Market street entrance and carried it over every floor the hat would be out of style before she left the building."

Just then a building hove in sight in which a white coated cook was turning aerobatic cakes. "That," shouted the guide, "is a restaurant where a hungry man may get anything from a roast din-ner to a piece of bread if he has a roll." This brought a smile and, encouraged, he went on. "There is the world's largest Penn holder, City Hall, and it cost $3,000,000 to hold Billy in place. Even at that he becomes impatient on account of the deeds which go on under him." Up Broad street the car then wabbled. When the suburbanites on board were surrounded by a batch of beautiful buildings the megaphoned speaker let his oratory on at full speed. No stenographer could have followed him. A flood of superlatives was applied to the surrounding architecture. The facetious talken ing architecture. The facetious talker could not resist the statement that Venus the Academy of Fine Arts "lost her head on account of praise."

"BROTHERLY LOVE" EXPLAINED. According to the guide, this is called the City of Brotherly Love because the Girls' Commercial School is opposite the Boys' High School, at Broad and Green streets.

Boys' High School, at Broad and Green streets.

None of Philadelphia's financiers and the amount of their fortunes was forgotten on the remainder of the trip up Broad street. When asked about a particular ornament which protruded from the second story of nearly every house on another street, the guide looked wise. "They are busy-bodies," he said, "and on account of present financial conditions they are placed there so that the residents may learn if there's a bill collector at the door."

Later the passengers learned that a large plot of ground containing tomb-stones was a cemetery, and more enlightstones was a cemetery, and more enlightching information along this line was doled out until Fairmount Park was reached. He showed the playgrounds for "policemen and nurses" to the left.
Pointing to the statue of an Indian which faces both places, he said: "Even the visilant medicine man cannot devise a cure for this condition."

By way of educational instruction, the guide announced, "No fruit trees can be kill River, the speaker again became ser-

"You can readily see," he exclaimed,
"that this is a river. Every Saturday afternoon there's a boat race here between the crews of the University of Yennsylvania and Girard College.
"What's that flag on the west bank?"
asked a passenger.

psked a passenger.
"That is the flag above Fort Belmont, where Washington and his army rested after leaving Valley Forge."

WHERE PENN MET ENGINEERS. A wave of patriotism swept over the tourists, and it was increased when the auto passed the statue of General Grant. The voluble historian called attention to the fact that the General was facing the home of William Penn on the west bank, and said Grant was ready to protect it just as well as he protected the North in sixty-one.

As Spring Garden street was reached the guide pointed out a large mount to the right, "That's where William Penn met his engineers," he said, "and told them how to lay out the plans of Fairmount Park," This was followed by a deluge of statistics, which was cut short only by the appearance of the Washington monument.

At 234 and Spring Garden streets the At 23d and Spring Garden streets the inders saw a small-pointed three-story building. "That," exclaimed the guide, "Is the original flattron building, the first in this country. New York copied its big building from this, just as it follows Philadelphia in other things."

By way of Broad street, the travelers were then taken to the starting point. "We have certainly learned a lot about Philadelphia," admitted the bride and groom.

The lecturer said that he was formerly in the theatrical business and could sing a song or two.

GERMANS IN LORRAINE BLOCK FRENCH ADVANCE

Strong Fortifications Erected Where Invasion Was Planned.

LONDON, Sept. 21.
All reports received from the battle-fields of France indicate that the blood-iest conflict of the war may be in progress today. The War Office refuses all com-ment except to say that the British and allied lines are holding, and that the sitintion is unchanged.

Unable to shell the Allies from their positions on the left centre, the Germans have resorted to the bayonet. The French and British troops have met them.

signy has revived the belief here that the determined movement to envelop the army of General von Kiuk may yet be successful. In spite of a counter-attack, which reports indicate the Germans instituted, the French lines were extended eight miles west of Noyon evidently as a part of a movement toward Roye, bringing the Allies nearer a position for a successful movement upon the German

The original line of the French offensive into Lorraine is now blocked by the Germans. This is indicated by the information which has reached the French War Office that fortifications are being erected around Delme and south of Chateau Salins. This was the line of the French advance in the initial movements, and the German forces are reported as being strongly en-trenched there.

CENTURY-OLD LOG HOUSE STANDS AS YEAR IT WAS BUILT

Structure Frequently Sheltered Gen. William Henry Harrison When He Was Governor of Indiana.

OWENSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 22 .- On the farm of Miller Montgomery, one mile south of this city, stands an abandoned two-story frame house 100 years old, a building that sheltered General William Henry Harrison on many occasions when he was Governor of Indiana. Although only a short distance from the road, the house is almost hidden from view by trees. The century's wear and tear have had little effect on the house because it is kept in good repair. It contains a good flight of stairs by which visitors ascend to the two large rooms above, where many articles of furniture in use 100 years ago can be seen standing about in careless disorder.

The house was built by Mr. Montgomery's father, Walter Crockett Montgomery, and the present owner was born in it. Directly in front of the house is the family cemetery, in which are buried members of the Montgomery family who left the horders of civilization in Western left the borders of civilization in Virginia to begin life anew in what was then a dense forest and wilderness.

"PURTY OLD TOM" HIS FATHER. Walter Crockett Montgomery was born in Roanoke Springs, Va., in 1784. He was the last of five sons. He had three sisters. His father, Purty Old Tom Montgomery, was the seventh son of Hugh Montgomery, Sr., and took part in the Revolutionary War. Walter Crock-ett Montgomery came with his father to Gibson County in 1806. The father had made a visit the previous year and marked an oak tree on the farm now owned by C. B. Smith. When he re-turned the following year, accompanied by his son, a man was living in a rail pen on the quarter section of land where Purty Old Tom had previously marked the tree. They moved a short distance north and made a settlement, but were not satisfied and moved again, permanently settling on the land which later descended to his son, Walter Crockett Montgomery. The farm then passed into the hands of Miller Montgomery, the present owner. present owner. The Montgomerys were among the first white settlers to arrive and settle perwhite settlers to arrive and settle permanently in Montgomery township, for whom the township was named. The first home of the Montgomerys was built in 1807. This was their home until 1809. After his marriage Walter Crockett Montgomery set about to build a home—a house that still stands. Timbers were cut, and when ready to be placed in posi-tion he invited every white man between Patoka and Mount Vernon to the first "house raising" in Montgomery township

A fireplace was built at one end of the house which served for heating and cooking purposes. Greased paper was used in the windows. A log was left out along one side and sheets of strong paper, well greased with coon grease or bear oil were tacked in. The house was built principally as a rendezvous for the settlers in the event of an attack from settlers in the event of an attack from the Indians.

Mr. Montgomery and General William Mr. Montgomery and General William Henry Harrison were close friends in Virginia, and when the general was appointed Governor of Indiana Territory the friendship was renewed. The Governor stopped overnight with Mr. Montgomery many times during his voyages from Vincennes to Mount Vernon, Mr. Montgomery was a soldier during the War of 1811-12. Walter Crockett Montgomery died in 1856 and was buried in the old family graveyard where his father was buried in 1818. Miller Montgomery is the 19th and last of the children of Walter Crockett Montgomery.

BELATED FRENCH VOLUNTEER SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—The French bark LaFontains, 172 days out from Emden, Prussia, for this port, in command of Captain Pierre Rathous, arrived here today and learned for the first time of the European war. He and his crew at once offered their services to the French.

$50,000 FLAGLER BROOCH MYSTERIOUSLY RETURNED

Messenger Brings It Back After Vain

Search by Owner. ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 22.—The $50,000 pearl brooch which Mrs. Henry M. Flagler wore when she entered the dining room of Grove Park Inn Saturday evening was missing when she left the room and diligent search by hotel employes at the time and two detectives since then falled to locate it until last night, when it was returned mysteriously by a messenger of whom no questions were asked.

In the brooch is a black pearl of large size, surrounded by diamonds. It was given to Mrs. Flagler years ago by her husband, the late Standard Oli and East Coast magnate.

IMPORTANT ADVANCE ANNOUNCEMENT

The Wanamaker Stores of Philadelphia and New York have acquired more than $100,000 worth of famous BIGELOW RUGS.

One-half of this great quantity is now being unloaded off the freight cars in this city; some of the rugs are already opened up in our stock room.

The purchase includes all the famous BIGELOW brands in all sizes.

The rugs will be put on sale THURSDAY morning, September 24th, in the Rug Store, on the Fourth Floor, Market.

The prices throughout the sale will be EXACTLY 25 PER CENT, LESS than the standard prices of BIGELOW RUGS known all over America.

It is the year's great event in domestic rugs and it is the year's great opportunity for all householders of Philadelphia and vicinity.
