Mawr's famous course. The proud and prancing thoroughbred, the friend of man-the horse.

BRYN MAWR, Sept. 24.

Two thrills marked the opening of the fourth day at the Bryn Mawr Horse Show, Lurman Stewart again being the principal actor in the little drama, which for a moment looked to be a tragedy, Mr. Stewart was riding Sloe Gin, in class 66, a post and rail jumping class with unusually interesting entries. Sloe Gin became "Slow Gin" just at an inopportune mement, and the decided halt in his gait threw Mr. Stewart completely over his head. The rider remounted alimmediately, and neither horse nor was the worse for wear. The second spill and incidental thrill followed almost immediately in the same class when a groom riding Transport for Willis Sharpe Kilmer took a header of very much the same description. Trans-port's manners, however, were not considered au fait, and he was transported

Regardless of Mr. Stewart's acrobatic attempts to win a blue, the first prize went to Howard H. Henry, on Colonel Obannen, new horse. The second was taken by femplar, an entry of Louis C. Clark, Jr. Winifred, from Glen Riddle Farms, took third. In the second class of hunters and jumpers judged, a featureless competition aside from remarkable riding, the blue was taken by Willowking, a former prize winner, from Glen Riddle Farms. Sally Combeo, entered by F. Ambrose Clark and another blue ribbon horse, took second in the contest. Third and fourth hanors went to Fallan, of Highland Farm, and Wild Irishman, last year's winners of the Radnor Challenge Cup, and entered from William T. Clothier's Valleyhill

Stewart figured in a third spill hardly before he had brushed the tan back from his clothing following the other two. He was riding Benjamin, New York entry of Robert L. Gerry, when the horse refused in front of hedge near the judge's stand. The rider went head over heels to the ground.

Stewart lashed savagely at the horse's neck with his crop after remounting but could not make Benjamin take a rail fence beyond the hedge of misfortune. He was obliged to withdraw from the SPECULATION OVER FINALS. Enthusiasts have now settled down to a regular mid-week horse show attitude. Already possible winners in various classes are being picked for entry in the championship competitions which feature the last day of the exhibition. Horses which have been consistent in their actions under different riders, and Others which since the opening of the show have taken several blue ribbons, are the subject of considerable speculation. One of the burning questions among spectators seems to be, which horse will such and such an owner enter in champion-

Among the hounds, the principal competitors today are the Radnor Hunt Club, the Elkridge Hunt Club and the G. S. V. Hunt Club. The judging will be confined exclusively to half-breed hounds which will be seen; bitches, dogs singly and in ring, and at a given signal the terriers will proceed to dig. The little fellow who shows most marked ability at this sort of work will receive an award.

MORE THRILLS EXPECTED TODAY. Horses in harness, saddle horses, and ponies under saddle ridden by children will feature earlier afternoon competi-tions, while, was as the case yesterday, a large field of prize-winning hunters and umpers ridden by daring and expert lorsemen is expected to thrill the crowd as a concluding event.

In the first-class horses in harness, Samuel M. Vauclain's Broadlawn Farms entries, Broadlawn Maid and Pride of Jersey, will be driven, it is expected, by Miss Constance Vauclain. Babette, an entry owned by Miss Florence Woolverton, is popular. Mrs. Wikoff Smith has entered Tinker Belle, and Miss Isabella Wanamaker's Natoma and Miss Jean Lister, Austrick Warsteller, Ocean Lister Austin's Warwick Queen com-plete the entry list. In this class, horses are to be shown with a Meadowbrook or similar two-wheeled cart, driven by

SADDLE HORSE CLASS TODAY The saddle horse for women's class is another interesting event which will add to the attractions of this afternoon's judging. The cup in this contest must be twice won before it becomes the holder's property. In the meantime it is to remain in the custody of the Bryn Mawr Horse Show Associa-tion. Each year a medal will be award-ed to the winner by the association. ATMOSPHERE INFORMAL AT HORSE SHOW IN THE MORNING

BRYN MAWR, Pa., Sept. 21.—There is a delightfully informal atmosphere at the horse show in the morning which is lost in the larger and more mixed crowd of

The morning attendance is, for the most part, composed of the hunting element of Main Line society, who motor, or even walk, over from their neighboring homes, clad simply in linen skirts and blouses with panama hats, while in the afternoon society turns out in a body, clad in the best remains of their summer finery, Mrs. John Valentine and Mrs. Robert L. Gerry were occupying the Valentine box before the opening of the show, while Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. McGrann ar-ined with a garland of roses. Mrs Paul Denkia Mills were a novel hat of fine black straw. The crown was out-lined with quilled white corded ribbon and surmounted at the top with a band of typical bridal orange biossoms. Her white gown was belted at the waist with beaded girdle embroldered in roses.

A. J. Antelo Devereux divided his attention between the horses and his attractive small daughter, whose escort he tractive small daughter, whose escort he was during the morning.

Mrs. George H. Earle, Jr., was accompanied by her two little grandchildren, Kathryn and Charles Mather, who discussed the merits of the exhibitory horses with almost professional knowl-edge and criticism. Mrs. Thomas Ashton occupied her hox during the morning in a frock of Fronch blue and white plad, and Mrs. II. Fenn Smith and Miss Kitty Smith occupied seats on the grandstand. Mr. and Mrs. David Sharp were also among the early arrivals of the morning, accompanied by their little son. Mrs. Shyra was wearing a middle little son. Mrs. Sharp was wearing a white lingerie dress over which was a white shethand sweater. Mrs. Sharp joined Mrs. Mc-Grann and Mrs. Brown in the latter's lox and from there watched the box and from there watched the judging of the morning.

Mrs. Reed Knox and her son were among the morning visitors. With an all white costume embroidered in yellow,

Mrs. Knox wore a natural colored straw hat, trimmed with small flowers.

Miss Edith Rivinus was a morning visitor, dressed in a crushed raspberry lines suit and a small black hat trimmed with tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean also will be seen; bitches, dogs singly and in pairs. None of the entrants has been shown before during the week.

Many enthusiants who daily surround the lented inclosure where the canines are on display are anxiously awaiting one of the most interesting features of the combination horse and hound show which this week is making Bryn Mawr a mesca for the hunting set. This is the disging test for fox terriers. There are seven entries in this class.

In nearly appearance, Mrs. Molican was clad in a beautiful white embroidered costume and black and white hat filled with asprey.
