FEW CANARIES COMING HERE

Blockade of German Ports Keeps Birds in Fatherland

Those who may have been under the impression that canary birds imported into this country come from the Canary Islands will suffer a severe disillusionment at this time, especially if the family thinks that a canary bird is needed, and someone proceeds to "buy" a canary. The fact is, that in times of peace canary birds come from the Hartz Mountains, in Germany, where they are bred by the peasants in garrets and spare rooms of their cottages. One New York firm alone imports 100,000 canaries annually.

At present no canaries can be bought in the bird stores because of the blockade of German ports. Ordinarily, these birds sell for $35 to $50 per dozen. The individual bird is sold on his merits, as indicated by his looks and his voice. The female canary is a poor singer and sells for half the price of the male. The birds sing best between the ages of a half-year and six years. Frequently they live to be 12 years old.

The bird dealers also suffer from lack of cages for other birds. The canaries are shipped in individual wooden cages made in Germany and are sent in lots of 100 to 500. These birds have to be fed daily on canary seed and hard boiled eggs as well as given fresh water. A skilled attendant has to accompany them on the voyage and frequently a young peasant earns his traveling expenses to this country in that manner.

QUICKSILVER PRODUCTION

The quicksilver production of the world during 1913 is estimated at 417 metric tons, against 422 tons in 1912 and 463 tons in 1911. The countries of production last year were: United States, 288 tons; Austria-Hungary, 85 tons; Italy, 68 tons; Spain, 140 tons; Mexico and others, 159 tons. These figures were gathered by the United States Geological Survey.

Quicksilver is used mainly in the manufacture of fulminate for explosive caps, of drugs, of electric appliances and scientific apparatus, and in the recovery of precious metals, especially gold, by amalgamation. A new use in Scotland is the floating of lights of lighthouses upon a body of quicksilver. A use in England, in the United States and possibly elsewhere, is the coating of ships' bottoms with a paint containing quicksilver to prevent organic growth. Mercuric oxide (red oxide of mercury) is the active poison in anti-fouling paint successfully used on ships' bottoms. The metal appears to be little employed in silvering mirrors, as nitrate of silver is now chiefly used for the purpose. Increasing use of quicksilver is probably to be expected in the manufacture of electrical appliances and of fulminates, and possibly of paints for protective coatings on metals.

The demand for quicksilver for amalgamating gold and silver has greatly decreased, as is well known, with the decreased supply of free milling ores and the increased application of cyanidation to gold and silver ores. Industrial chemistry and inventive genius are to be looked to for increasing the demand.

Getting Even

The teacher was telling the children a long, highly embellished story about Santa Claus, and Willie Jones began giggling with mirth, which finally got beyond his control.

"Willie! What did I whip you for yesterday?" asked the teacher severely.

"For lying!" promptly answered Willie—Everybody's.

Not So Awfully Plain

An Irish girl called at Mrs. Green's to get the place as cook. "Are you a plain cook?" inquired Mrs. Green.

"Well, mum," replied the girl, "yez may tink so, but O'Geevy Mulligan was after telling me that me eyes wor folle the Lakes ay Killarney."—Ladies' Home Journal.
