BRUMBAUGH GIVES PLEDGE OF SERVICE TO VAST CROWDS

'Audience at Altoona Overflows Theatre and Cheers Candidate, Who Again Asserts His Independence.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 26.-Doctor Brumbaugh, Republican candidate for Governor, talked to 1800 persons in a theatre at Altoona last night.

Hundreds clamored for admission after the doors had been closed, and Doctor Brumbaugh, Senator Penrose, ex-Congressman Daniel Latean and J. D. Hicks, and Frank B. McClain, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, addressed an overflow meeting on the street.

Senator Penrose did not reach Altoona until late and did not participate in the evation tendered Doctor Brumbaugh by the citizens of Blair County, the home ounty of the Republican candidate for Governor in the afternoon

Doctor Brumbaugh said that for 160 years his ancestors had tilled the soil of Pennsylvania, obeyed the laws of the State and tried to live useful lives. He said he was proud to be one of these copie and to be an expression of them. He was a candidate who was not pledged to a single man but to the whole Commonwealth. He had no political experience, no financial support and no pledge save that of service to the public. In speaking of local option, Doctor Brumbaugh said:

I shall stand for it to the end. When the bill for placing this State among the list of local option ones passes the Legislature I shall sign it. That is where I stand, and I will not permit misguided individuals to lie about me in this matter. I have made a pledge to myself that the moral quality of our civilization will be seen everywhere in my adminis-tration." Doctor Brumbaugh also said that n man could control his public acts. Senator Penrose spoke upon the effect of the European war upon the prices of Sugar was his special theme. He pre-dicted ten-cent sugar. He showed that it had advanced within a few weeks from 4.65 to 7.5 cents a pound. This he said was due to the Democratic party juggling with tariff rates when it had little experience and did not realize the effect of the changes it had made.

BRISK, BREEZY DAY AND CHAMPIONSHIP CONTEST STIR SHOW

This is the end of sentiment, the day of the final test.

When the judges pick from the blue-blood hest the leader of all—the best.

Out of the scores of thoroughbreds, game to the heart ind bone,
Which shall win by point and point, which shall stand alone?

BRYN MAWR, Sept. 26. n Ideal weather conditions are prevailing at the last day of the 20th annual Bryn Mawr Horse Show, and hundreds of enthusiasts are present to applaud and admire local and Main Line entries which have captured most of the blue ribbons during the last week's judging. Interest in the final champinoship class, when winners only will compete for the most coveted prize offered, has aroused considerable speculation. There is a delicious tang in the air, which usually belongs to Horse Show atmosphere, but has been missing until today. While a rather chill wind blows across the polo field, a warm sun shines, tempering the rawness of the day. As was the case yesterday, light top coats have replaced straw hats and finnel trousers, as if over night costumes have changed from clothing appropriate to southern Florida to that of northern Michigan.

But every person is happy, and well they might be, for Philadelphia and Main Line horses in the jumping classes have enptured exclusive of today's awards as many blue ribbons as New York, Boston and Baltimore horses together. Counting first, second, third and fourth awards. local entries last night had won 42 prized. New York entires too 28 all told, and Boston and Baltimore six and seven, re-

GHENT RESIDENTS FLEE AS WOUNDED SEEK SAFETY THERE

Booming German Artillery Four Miles Away Terrorize City Selected as Refuge by Red Cross.

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD

GHENT, Sept. 26. There is no way to get to Ghent but by the Red Cross train, and the doctor told me to climb in. Ghent was four Four miles back the German artillery was booming. German shells were smashing buildings in Mechlin; they had wrecked the cathedral altar, entering through the great, colored windows; houses and homes were going down at every deep booming sound that reached our ears. And in this Red Cross train were the 250 patients who had been in the hospitals at Mechlin.

"We had to take them out," explained the doctor, "because the shells were flying around the building. It's probably blown up by this time.

"But there's a big hospital waiting for them at Ghent," the doctor said, "and we'll fix them up all right."

We walked through the car and across the platforms to the next car. The doctor pointed his finger toward an upper stretcher in a corner.

"Dead," he said. I looked and saw nothing but a sheet overing a form that swayed gruesomely. "It's a soldier who was shot through the head. He was dying this afternoon," the doctor continued, "but we brought him along. I suppose moving has killed him. but what were we to do? We couldn't stay at Mechlin." He showed me another wounded soldier, who was very nearly There were great bandages about his chest. "Shot through the lungs," explained the doctor. "Those nurses are trying to stop the pain for him and let him out easily. They'll probably give him too much, but can't live anyhow. When we reached Ghent two hours later there was a sheet over him. For him the greatest war in the history of the world had ended during the ride on the train.

There were not many seriously wounded soldiers. Most of them had been shot in the hands or arms. One man told me why all the injured seemed to be only slightly

"It's because its only the fellows who can get away without help that are able to escape. We had to leave our wounded on the field. I've had some who were only shot in the feet lieg me to kill them as we retreated, to save them from the Ger-mans. You can't use your revolver on comrade. The only thing we could do was to atick our fingers in our sars and keep on, hoping that the Germans would come soon and make it easier for them. That is why people are saying that our men and the French are only slightly wounded. If you're hurt so you can't move yourself, you're through-dead." THE AGED IN FLIGHT.

Ten cars of the train were filled with old men and women. Some of them were incredibly old and bent. They came from the homes for the aged at Mechlin. A nurse pointed out one woman who was more than 100 years old and who had been alive when Napoleon's conquest of Europe was slipping away from him. These old folk, who years before had quit their work and had found a quiet, peaceful corner in beautiful Malines in which to die, were being taken away by the Red Cross to save from German shells the few short days of their ending lives.

We drew into Ghent late in the evening. Soldiers and nurses took the helploss from the cars and started them in automobiles and vehicles of all sorts for the hospital. They lifted down the two white-sheeted forms and a black wagon took them away.

Even while this was being done and while the old folks waiting in wheel chairs were chattering like children about the Prussian war in 1870, the citizens of Ghent were crowding the depot trying to get away from the city be-cause they had heard that the Germans were coming. "There's panic ev could-be fugitive. "I can't find any place to live." "And I can't find any place to die," chattered an old woman.

CUT OFF FROM REGIMENT

British Soldier Reaches Paris After Wandering About for Weeks.

PARIS, Sept. 26.
A private of the East Lancashire regiment wandered into Paris yesterday. He had been cut off from his comrades in one of the big battles and had roamed about northern France for a week. Speaking of the British troops, he said: "We did some fighting, let me tell you. "Eh, lad, them Germans be devile. Why, they just walk up to our guns and get

"Eh, lad, them Germans be devile. Why, they just walk up to our guns and get mowed down in rows. As fast as one lot go down another come along.

"We were in a trench with three batteries firing over our heads, and the Germans walked up to within 400 yards of us! When they advanced in column formation they gave us hell. We could do nothing with them. When the front row go over—just drop dead—their pals pile up the bodies and make a wall of them. Then they fire from behind them. them. Then they fire from behind them.
"At one place we were outnumbered seven to one, so the officers told us. Our losses were not very heavy, though.
"One horse artillery battery lost all its men except two and a soargeant major, but they managed to put eleven German guns out of action.

"We have had a very rough time of it; fighting all day and marching all night. "The grub is good; couldn't be better, in fact."

HOARDING DENIED BY BANKERS HERE; RESERVES ARE LOW

Secretary McAdoo's Strictures Not Aimed at Eastern Institutions, Which Have Aided Business.

"Secretary McAdoo had better mind his own business and not meddle with the business of the banks. He is nosing about too much." This observation was made yesterday by a Philadelphia banker in discussing the assertion of the Secretary of the Treasury that some banks were hoarding reserves and exacting exorbitant interest for emergency currency. This banker is comparatively a young man and, perhaps, that explains the heat of his utterance. Older bankers were not so vehement in their expressions. All united in saying that the secretary's as-sertion was not aimed at any Philadelphia bank, because the banks of this city, as their statements show, are not hoarding their reserves.

A fact that throws, what seems to be a convincing light on this matter, was mentioned by a bank president. This was that the conjoined cash reserves of all the Philadelphia National banks are little, if at all, above the legal requirements. For seven weeks after the closure of the Stock Exchange, the cash reserves sank steadily. Before that sinking spell. they were unusually high, but the drain reduced them to a point, probably below the legal requirements. For the last three weeks they have been gaining, but the gain has come nowhere near but the gain has come nowhere near making up the losses.

The bank statement has omitted the items of legal requirement and surplus for the last 10 weeks. Attention was called also to the fact that the cash reserves of the New York Clearing House banks are far below the legal requirement, the deficit at present being nearly $550,000,000. $350,000,000.

"That shows pretty plainly that the banks in the large Eastern cities have not been remiss in their duty and are not hearding," a banker remarked.

The president of a leading national bank said that no Philadelphia national bank could be included among those attacked by Secretary McAdoo. "It is only Western and Southern banks which are in question," he said. "One Western in-stitution, I have learned, has a 40 per cent, reserve."

Bankers here agreed in saying that the Philadelphia banks were looking after their customers. Charles S. Calwell their custor esident of the Corn Exchange National Bank, said:

"There was never a time when a greater spirit of co-operation existed among the banks. This was shown by their piedge to raise $100,000,000 to relieve the foreign exchange market and help the credit situation. If there are any banks in the United States not following a like helpful course in facilitating business and who are carrying more reserve than required in keeping with good banking practice. I think that the Secretary is justified in reprimanding them a little and that his announcement will probably have good effect. As far as Philadelphia is concerned, the Secretary's remarks have no application."

As absolving Philadelphia's trust companies of any suspicion of hoarding their resources, Charles J. Rhoads, vice president of the Girard Trust Company, called attention to their statements made of their condition of August 27 in response their condition of August II in response to the recent call of the Comptroller of the Currency. Mr. Rhoads said the state, ments showed in most cases cash re-serves below the legal requirements. "The Secretary of the Treasury had to take such action as this," added Mr. Rhoads, "Here and these throadset.

Rhoads, "Here and there throughout the untry, presumably, banking institutions have been found noarman Men refused loans by these loatitutions who afterward learned that the banks who afterward learned complaint to the have been found hoarding their reserves. Men refused loans by these institutions had big reserves made complaint to the Secretary of the Treasury. And the pub-licity given the matter will undoubtedly prove beneficial.

"But, as in all other matters, it is the exceptional cases where the rules have been violated that gain most attention. An automobile is involved in an accident, runs somebody down, say. This fact is given wide publicity, whereas nothing said of the thousands of automobilis who scrupulously obey the law. So it is with banks and the hourding of re-

DUKE'S CREDITORS SEEKING TO COLLECT UNPAID ACCOUNTS

Process Servers Besiege Manchester in New York. Father-in-law Zimmerman Laughs at His Plight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 .- Creditors of the Duke of Manchester, whose International Educational League, a daylight moving picture scheme, was wrecked on a financial reef, are besieging him today at the Ritz-Carlton in a mighty effort to collect money due them. The league had been incorporated with a capital of $10,+ 000,600, but it collapsed before much of the stock had been sold. The Duke came here today from Philadelphia, whither he went a few days ago when he realized the venture was a failure. For a while his whereabouts were a mystery, as he had been reported in Canada and the in Philadelphia.

Efforts are being made by a process server for Thomas F. Galvin, a Fifth avenue florist, to find the Duke, so that papers can be served on him in a suft. to recover $450, which it is alleged the Duke owes on a florist bill. Louis F. Inquiries About Food Prices Indicates Inclination to Stock Up.

Inquiries in Philadelphia from Jamaica for prices on 30,000 pounds of oleomar-garine and other foodstuffs are taken as an indication that the residents of the island are preparing to stock up to avoid famine conditions.

Information of this has been conveyed to the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Philadelphia Commercial Museums by letter. The commodity prices are sought by C. D. Davis & Co., of Kingston, Jamaica, who are supposed to represent the British Government. The need of foodstuffs is declared urgent. Among other staples are boots, shoes, dry goods, clothing, hosiery and underwear.
