

JEWISH EMPLOYEES EXCUSED FROM DUTY OVER YOM KIPPUR

150 Policemen and Helpers in Department of Public Safety Will Observe Day of Atonement.

More than 150 Jewish policemen and other Jewish employees in the Department of Public Safety will be excused from duty tomorrow at sundown until Wednesday evening, that being Yom Kippur, the most solemn day in the Jewish calendar. Director Porter will issue a notice to this effect in all the station houses throughout the city some time today. Other Jewish employees in the department will receive similar notice.

The Director will also issue orders to the lieutenants in all the Jewish districts to permit the Jewish storekeepers to keep their stores open the next two Sundays until eleven o'clock in the morning instead of nine, the regular closing time on Sundays. This is in view of the fact that the Jewish districts must prepare on those Sundays for the two holidays which come after when orthodox Jews are not permitted to do any labor, marketing, etc.

Yom Kippur, said to have been instituted by the Jews throughout the world, both orthodox and reform as the day of fasting and prayer. The orthodox Jews will spend the entire day in the synagogues, while the reform Jews will have several hours' instruction between prayers.

The day of atonement is one of the cycle of holidays, said to have been instituted by Moses. It is one of the oldest and most solemn days in the Jewish calendar. Together with the New Year holidays observed last week it forms what are known as the holy days. The ten days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur are known as the days of penitence, when special services are held in all the synagogues.

BABY'S CRIES SAVE SLEEPING FAMILY FROM FIRE PERIL

Attract Policeman, Who Summons Engines to the Scene.

The cry of the child who saw the fire early today enabled the police to rescue from suffocation six persons asleep in a smoke-filled house next door to the burning cigar store of James Brown, 1921 South Sixth street.

The rescued family was that of Jacob Margolis, who with his wife and four children was asleep at 1229 South Sixth street when the fire started next door. Clouds of stifling tobacco smoke were rolling into their bedrooms when the cry of little Abie Stroub, 1906 South Sixth street, who looked from his window and saw flames in the cigar store, warned a patrolman, who burst open the Margolis front door and led the family out into the street.

The patrolman also turned in an alarm of fire, and soon engines, hose trucks and other apparatus clattered to the scene. The Margolis family were taken care of by neighbors. Their house was not damaged by fire, but filled with smoke. Rats gnawing matches are thought to have started the blaze in Brown's cigar store. The upper floor of the building is occupied by a New Year's association. This was not damaged to any great extent. According to Brown, the loss to his store and stock will amount to about $1000.

SPOTLIGHTS PLAY ON DROWNING GIRL AS CROWDS GASP

Thrilling Scene on Riverside Drive, N. Y., When Heroic Attempt Is Made to Rescue Unfortunate Girl.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Like spotlights from the wings of a stage, powerful searchlights played from two steamboats last night upon a struggling speck in the Hudson River off 130th street. Thrilled spectators on the Riverside Drive viaduct followed the spotlights and saw a young woman fighting for her life.

The audience saw the outline of the hero, John Condon, of 532 West 130th street, dive into the swirling tide, saw him grasp at the girl and catch a fragment of her dress. Then they saw the tide carry her away. As she sank Condon went down for her like a submarine and searchlights swept the river nervously until they found Condon again, as he rose with one hand holding to the young woman's hair. But the tide cuts in strong about the pierheads there, and Condon lost his hold as the girl was carried out and then down. The spotlights vividly displaying her last struggle while the audience quivered.

Miss Deane Armstrong, of 459 West 57th street, and William B. Cist, a salesman, of 106 West 133d street, went for a canoe ride late in the afternoon. She and Mr. Cist were engaged to be married. He and Archer Armstrong, her brother, were classmates at Yale.

While trying to get into the slip at 130th street pier the canoe was overturned by the current and their cries quickly attracted the crowd.

Hundreds of automobiles stopped on the Riverside Drive viaduct, while the Recreational and other piers soon filled. A big river steamboat trained its searchlights on the water, while its passengers lined the rails. Another steamboat at the pier added its searchlight to the other.

Mr. Cist tried to reach Miss Armstrong, but failed because the current carried her out so swiftly. But he was still in the water when she went down, and he and Condon were pulled out with ropes.

When Mr. Cist called for Miss Armstrong yesterday, she said she was afraid to go swimming, as she had some indestructible fear that something would happen. Mrs. Armstrong, her mother, retired early last night and she was dreaming that she saw her daughter in the water and struggling to reach a boat, she said. When the door bell rang, this awakened her and she found a policeman to tell her that her daughter was drowned.
