MISS HELEN KESTER WILL BECOME BRIDE TODAY

Married to William Hooton Roberts, Jr., at Christ Church Chapel, Nineteenth and Pine Streets, This Afternoon.

The wedding of Miss Helen Boyd Kester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Kester, of 242 Spruce street, to William Hooton Roberts, Jr., will take place this afternoon at Christ Church Chapel, on Pine street near Nineteenth, at 4 o'clock.

Miss Kester will be given in marriage by her father. She will wear a gown of soft white satin, which is made with a court train of the same, over which is draped an exquisite veil of chantilly lace from the shoulders to the end of the long train. This piece of lace is an old family heirloom. Her veil will be made of tulle and will be fastened at the hair with orange blossoms. Orange blossoms will be used also to attach the tulle veil over the lace at the end of the train. She will carry a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Margaret Kester, a sister of the bride, will act as maid of honor. In order to fully carry out the idea of an autumn wedding the maid of honor's costume will be a symphony of brown and gold. Her frock will be of old gold tulle with a gold lace tunic and a giraffe of old blue. The hat will be of brown velvet trimmed with gold lace and a shaded gold and brown rose. She will carry golden daisies. The bridesmaid will be Miss Margaret Stokes Roberts and Miss Elizabeth West Roberts, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Boyd and Miss Elizabeth Thompson. They will wear gowns of old blue and giraffe of old gold Pompadour satin. Their hats will be of a lighter shade of brown than that of the maid of honor. They will carry autumn dahlias.

Mr. Roberts will be attended by his cousin, Francis C. Stokes, as best man, and his ushers will be Leonard C. Hitts, Herbert M. Lowry, Sydney S. Morris and Kenneth A. Rhoad. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. J. R. L. Nisbett, rector of the church, and will be followed by a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kester. Mrs. Kester, the mother of the bride, will wear a smart gown of black velvet, over which is draped a tulle of white lace edged with marion fur. Her hat will be of black velvet, trimmed with old gold roses and lace.

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

"It is an open question," says William Collier, "whether the married man had best take the blame upon himself after a quarrel with his wife and endeavor to smooth matters over peaceably or not. Sometimes the wife is so snippy and indifferent after the poor man's efforts that he reverts having taken this course. I know a young couple of the stage to whom just this sort of thing happened.

"They had been quarreling, and the young husband, regretting it and being anxious to 'make up,' brought a little gift for the wife.

"Edna," he said, 'come here. Aren't you curious to know what is in this package?'

"Oh, not very," replied Edna, belittlingly, as she glanced at the package in question. 'I rather think I can endure the strain.'

"Well," he said, coaxingly, trying to win her to good humor, 'it's something for the one I love best in all the world. Now, guess?'

"Indeed," sniffed Edna, as she started to leave the room, 'I suppose, then, it's that pair of new trousers you said you needed.'

Liane Carrera, Anna Held's daughter, advises parental disobedience—sometimes. "My mother insisted last spring I go with her to Paris. I refused," said Miss Carrera, "and mother didn't like it a bit. Well, the last I heard from her was a letter dated August 12. She wrote it was terrible over there. They have taken her automobile. All the hotels and shops are closed, the schools are made into hospitals and there is no money in the banks. She herself cannot cash a check, and they only allow 5 per cent. of deposits. She also says there is no way of getting out of Paris, all the trains being used by the Government. So I suppose that as soon as she can get away she will come over here. For my own sake, if I were not so worried for my mother, and if I were sure she was safe, I would sacrifice five lambs to the gods, because they gave me the wonderful inspiration of being my mother's disobedient daughter. If I had been a nice little girl I would be in Paris now, and perhaps may have starved to death."

Johnny Dove, who deserted yachting to play here in the "Zealand Police" as Honest Bill, has gained at least half his reputation on the manner in which he shakes his feet. Last season at the time of the Ohio flood, when starting with the A. G. Field Minstrels, he was called upon to do a turn at a benefit for the flood sufferers.

"My little act," modestly relates Mr. Dove, "followed the Divine Sarah Bernhardt and preceded the sainted John Drew. While rehearsing my music Mr. Drew came on the stage with his people to rehearse his act. I had never met him and had only observed his stately demeanor as a member of the audience at his plays; and I felt sure that I was among the gods, knowing that dancing shoes, in vaudeville vernacular, are termed 'ketch disengages'."

"But quite to my surprise Mr. Dove was very much interested, and confessed that he had a large porch built on his home in Northampton, L. I., with a special dancing floor. There he and his valet, an old minister man, would settle off to go to sleep every morning for exercise. Considering Mr. Drew's worldable reputation for imperturbability and calm, I like to wit the picture of Mr. Drew at his morning exercise of jogging and rigging? Imagine him!"

Eleanor Duse is to retire permanently from the stage. She gives up, as report has it, because she cannot find suitable parts, though her age has also been a factor in her retirement. She is now 55. She has been on the stage since she was 15 years old. Recently
