1914 GOLF RATING PLACES OULMET AT HEAD OF BIG LIST

John G. Anderson Has in Addition Selected Fifteen Other Golfers According to Rank.

John G. Anderson has undertaken to select sixteen ranking golfers in the United States. Here is what he writes: "Dangerous business this, the selection of the sixteen ranking golfers in the United States! However, the well-known fact that there can be no perfection in such a list, no matter how many are compiled, is sufficient to those who, figuratively speaking, take their lives in their hands by chancing a selection. There are many standards for a choice. Some will select those who have been fine golfers in the past but have not proved their worth during the past year, probably because they have not taken part in the big tournaments. Others will compare the play of certain men with regard to actual defeat or victory, forgetting that a greater degree of credit belongs to the golfer who holds Jerome Traverser or Francis Ouimet to the eighteenth hole when the scoring is good than to the golfer who wins a match against a wholly inferior player, who has gained his way to the final rounds more on account of a streak of good play or weak opposition than by inherent ability. The method which seems to strike the most responsive chord in the heart of the golfer from every standpoint is to rank the golfers on what they have actually accomplished during the calendar year, to consider their actual playing standard, regardless of performances in other years. "They are the golfers of the year and not of the decade. In other words, if the amateur champion of the United States were to absent himself from all matches and open tournaments during the following twelve months, the fairest way to treat him would be to leave him out of the summary altogether, as is done in the national tennis ranking. "The golfing events of great importance are over for 1914. I present a list which, to my mind, represents the 16 best golfers in the land on their play of this season. "You have doubtless guessed that first place is given to Francis Ouimet, of the Woodland Golf Club, Massachusetts, whose merit needs but few words of explanation and whose claim to the honor is to my mind, wholly free from dispute. Mr. Ouimet, when he won the championship of France, had opposed to him some of this country's best golfers. Taking fifth position in the open championship at Middlebury brought added honor, and the amateur championship title of Massachusetts, more or less of a local event in importance, to be sure, was notable because of the excellence of play in medal scoring over the extremely difficult Brae Burn Country Club course. "The Anderson 1914 golf ratings are as follows: "First, Francis Ouimet, Woodland G. C., Braintree. "Second, Charles Evans, Edgewater G. C., Chicago. "Third, Jerome D. Traverser, Upper Montclair G. C., New Jersey. "Fourth, W. C. Foxman, Oakmont G. C., Pittsburgh. "SECOND GROUP (Alphabetical Order). "Robert A. Gardner, Hinsdale, Chicago. "Ray Gordon, Brae Burn G. C., Boston. BEACHEY STARTLES PRESIDENT WILSON BY AERIAL PRANKS

"Wonderful, But Reckless," His Comment on Viewing Aviator's Flops Over White House Grounds.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—"Wonderful, but startlingly reckless," said President Wilson today when Lincoln Beachey, the aviator, turned a double aerial somersault over the White House grounds some 1500 feet up in the air. The President watched the airman drive his tiny aeroplane through hair-raising evolutions and heaved a sigh of relief when the machine darted off in a straight line toward the Capitol at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue. Beachey, induced to come here by Captain Mark L. Bristol, chief of the Navy Aviation Bureau, was supposed to demonstrate to the law makers the necessity for greater appropriations for flying machines for the use of both the navy and army. It was his task to demonstrate the complete control man now had in the air. When he reached the Capitol the Senate and House office buildings were quickly emptied. Committee meetings broke up as if by magic, and Senators and Representatives, with a small army of clerks and stenographers, crowded out of the big building to take up positions in the plaza. Beachey signaled his arrival over the dome of the Capitol by turning four back somersaults in his machine in rapid succession. Then he climbed the dome towers and darted back again down Pennsylvania avenue. He dived for the tall tower of the Postoffice Department, skinned over it and up until when he reached the Washington monument he was more than 1000 feet high. "The going events of great importance are over for 1914. I present a list which, to my mind, represents the 16 best golfers in the land on their play of this season. "You have doubtless guessed that first place is given to Francis Ouimet, of the Woodland Golf Club, Massachusetts, whose merit needs but few words of explanation and whose claim to the honor is to my mind, wholly free from dispute.
