DAUGHTER OF RICH MAN VANISHES FROM FAST EXPRESS TRAIN

Disappears at South Framingham While En Route With Father, Who Was Taking Her to School.

WORCESTER Mass., Sept. 29 .- Disappearing mysteriously between Boston and Worcester, while on the way to Peekskill, N. Y., on a Boston and Albany express train Sunday afternoon, no trace as yet has been found of Miss Katharine Keating, 16 years old, daughter of H. S. Reating, a wealthy Dallas, Tex., at-

The father was taking the girl from Boston to a private school in Peckskill He says she had about $125 in her pocketbook and looked 29 instead of 16.

Miss Kenting and her father started from Boston for Albany, where they were to change cars for Peekskill. Just previous to the train pulling into South Framingham Mr. Keating left his parlor seat to smoke, returning as the train was possibly 15 or 20 miles from this elty to find his daughter gone.

Believing she had gone to the women's washroom the father waited a few min-utes, but when the train approached Worcester became worrled and started a search of all cars with the aid of the conductor. No trace of the girl could be found and the father alighted in Worcester and wired South Framingham and then notified the local police.

The police of Worcester and South Framingham traced the girl to the latter city, where it was said she boarded a trolley car for Worcester. No reason leaving the train is given by the wealthy Dallas attorney, other than the fact that his daughter was unwilling to return to the Peekskill school. asked if it was not possible that a romance was responsible, and he answered that as far as he knew there was none

U. S. EMBASSY SPLENDORS

Americans in London Amazed by Magnifience of New Quarters.

LONDON, Sept. 29.-The American Embassy has opened for business with all comers in the new offices, at 4 Grosvenor Naturalized Americans and refugees from the Continent who called there thought they had visited Buckingham Palace by mistake, so magnificent are the embassy's present quarters. Jeffersonian simplicity is noticeable only n the rooms where carpets are not yet laid, owing to the haste in moving.

The house is a skyscraper, according to London ideas, there being five stories and a sort of roof garden above. Each sec-retary has a room big enough to play tennis in, and the Ambassador's sanctum is so spacious that it is necessary to use a megaphone in speaking across The top floor has slightly smaller which the unmarried attaches are regarding covetously as possible bachelor apartments.

American residents of London who called to inspect the new embassy were speechless at the splendor, and respect for the United States, which has increased tremendously since the war began, took another upward leap.

During the trip up the harbor the fire-boat New Yorker played her search-lights on the deck of the cutter, and in the sharp circle of light the aged prelate stood, bareheaded, acknowledging the solutes of various craft.

Once aboard the Highlander the Reception Committee filed before the Cardinal and paid its obeisance. The boat immediately started up the river to 50th street, where the Cardinal was placed in an automobile and hurried to his at Madison avenue and 50th

An eloquent commentary on the feeling that exists between British officers and men, and a reason why the list of casualties among the British commisstoned officers has been so large is fur-nighed in the following letter written by a noncommissioned officer of the Buffs: "No regiment fought harder than we did, and no regiment has better officers, who went shoulder to shoulder with their men, but you can't expect absolute impossibilities to be accomplished, no matter how brave the boys are, when you are fighting a force 20 to 30 times as strong. If some of you at home who have spoken sneeringly of British officers could have seen how they handled their men and shirked nothing you would be ashamed of yourselves. We are all determined when it is fit again to return and get our own back."

Hundreds of men from the Salvation Army missions have answered the call of Lord Kitchener for services loyally and promptly. Stories of the gallantry and bravery of the Salvationists are now coming back from the front.

One of the wounded served as a motor driver in the royal field artillery. He was a bandsman in the Salvation Army before war was declared and told of hearing other former Salvationists singing the favorite songs of the army on the battlefields at night.
Telling of the fighting, the former bandaman said: Shells were bursting all around us and I was struck by a splinter. It was only a flesh wound, however, so I bound it up and went ahead with my work. First it seemed the enemy was getting the better of us, then he would retreat and so the battle went all day. Comrades were falling all around me. The Germans were falling in hundreds. So thick were the dead of the enemy that when the order to advance was given we simply had to force the motor over heaps of bodies. While following the retreating Germans six of us got lost. For four days we tramped without anything to eat or drink. On the third day our tongues were hanging out from thirst and two of the men went mad. It was on the fourth night that we fell in with the British ambulance sections, and one of the first sounds I heard was a wounded man in one of the wagons singing: "T'm a child of a king, I'm a child of a kin With Jesus my saviour, I'm a child of a king.'

learned that he was a Salvationist and later in the stillness of the night I neard a clear voice in another part of the camp singing:

" 'Then we'll roll the old charlot along, And we won't drag on behind.

"The song was taken up in other parts of the camp until it swelled into a chorus of voices that made the air ring with the old Salvation Army song. Reports indicate it sometimes takes s lot to kill a modern soldier. Sergeant Fougere, of France, received eight bullet wounds, a broken arm and other in-juries, and although shot in the calf. thigh and ankle, escaped being captured by Germans, and limped ten miles to his regiment. Another French soldier re-ceived six bullet and three bayonet wounds and is recovering. The French War Office estimates only two men are killed out of every 100 hit. The penetration is so clean one soldier did not know he had been hit for three hours, and anbullet went through two soldiers and lodged in a cavalryman's saddle.

"If oLndon were to follow the example of the Russian capital and change its name," says the London Times, "Cosmopolis might be a suitable title. For six weeks citizens of other nations have been pouring into England until London has become a vast hostel. Belgians whose homes have become smoking ruins, Frenchmen on whose lands the soldiers of three nations are now fighting, Russians whom the outbreak of war surprised in some alien country-all have sought these shores. Here, too, are many of our ene-mies' subjects-Germans and Austrians who were in England when war broke out, and have chosen to prolong their sojourn. At the hint of war, Germans who were in Paris flowed over to England. This invasion has turned London into a city where alien tongues may be heard everywhere. In omnibuses and trains, in the shops and theatres one sees foreigners and listens to foreign speech. One might almost suggest that London's new motto should be 'Ici on parle Francais,' for in certain parts of the city the language of our Allies is heard almost as frequently as our own.

Some of the privates at least in the German ranks are under the impression that Japan and the United States are taking part in the war on the German side, acording to a letter received in London from an officer of a Highland regi-ment now at the front.

In every camp where Britain's new armies are being trained the regular drill instructors are sweating over their comnany rolls at night, desperately trying to remember the pronunciation of the names of aristocratic recruits who do not recognize Cholmondley when pronounced as t is spelt.

A sergeant calling the roll for a com-pany of the new "sportsmen" battalion for the first time had a terrible experi-ence recently. Having disposed success-fuily of a few "Harpers," "Mitchells," etc., he came to the name "Montague." "Private Montaig," shouted the sergeant. There was no reply, but when the name was repeated a half-hearted "Here, sir," came from the ranks.

"Why didn't you answer before?" denanded the sergeant. "Because my name is Mon-ts-gue," replied the recruit. "Well," snapped the sergeant, "you'll do seven days' fatigew."

The next name on the list, Majoribanks, brought no response, for the sergeant pronounced "Majoreybanks."
A second call brought the mild response, I expect you mean me, sir. My name is

The sergeant almost reeled, but proceeled bravely with "Colquboun."
"Private Col-kew-houn." he called.
"Coohoon, sir, that's me," came a brisk reply from the front rank.

The drill instructor gave up and, closing his book, he wearlly gave the order "number." When this was completed he said "One hundred and twenty-one. That's right. Now, if there are any more of you with fancy names just come to me after drill and tell me how you would like to be called."

A tale of disappointment told to King George by a wounded private told of a gartion who missed their dinner. The which carrying the food had just arrived when the Germans came on. The attack having been repulsed, and the enemy driven back, the British were returning, no doubt feeling that a meal had been well-carned, when a German shell struck the wagon and blew it and the dinner to The soldiers had to console themselves as best they could with a biscuit

A story of peculiarly hard luck was that of a soldier who took advantage of a halt to remove one of his boots. Hardly had he got it off than a German attack developed and in the skirmleh his boot was lost. For the subsequent three days he did his best, marching with one foot properly shod and the other practically bare, but at the end of that time he had to be sent home as an invalid.

As in the days of the Boer War, hap-ess infants are already being marked for life by the critical events of the

DISPOSITION OF PRISONERS IS PROBLEM TO PETROGRAD

The Russian regards the Austrian as gentlemanly opponent, with whom it is a pleasure to fight.

Not that the Austrian does not fight well. The struggle in Poland and Galicia has been as bloody as that on the Meuse. and the Austrian, though beaten, has fought gallantly against overwhelming numbers, better generals and better Klev is overflowing with prisoners. They are also streaming into Petrograd. They are also streaming into Petrogran. Taey are becoming a mational problem.

"What shall we do with our Austrian prisoners?" is the cry of the moment. As a matter of fact, they are being directed to Vologda and other remote internal Governments of Muscovy, where they will be as peaceful for the next six months as if they were snowed up at the North Pole.

The best Aus-trian troops are those from the Tyrol. They have had not quarrel with the Slave, and know nothing about them, while the troops from eastern Austria are either half Slav themselves or are easygoing and not serious.

This lack of seriousness constitutes the great moral defect of the Austro-Hungarian army. It explains the readiness of the Austrians to surrender and re-
