IRON CHANCELLOR CALLED GLADSTONE POOR STATESMAN

Bismarck Thought Englishman Had Too Great Facility in Speech - Man of Deep Emotions.

W. B. Richmond reports in the North american Review for September convernations he had with Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruh, 1887-1890. Speaking of Mr. Gladstone, Blamarck said: "Your Prime Minister is poisoned by the venom of his eratory; if his facility of diction and his command of words were more restrained he would not be so great an orator, but more reliable statesman. If God spares him, Mr. Gladstone will ruin England." This was said in conjunction with some remarks upon Home Rule for Ireland: "No government could afford to grant it low; it is too late. It would wreck a Tory or Radical ministry to do so, especially now when Imperialism has been to deftly established in the public minds of Englishmen by Disraell," speaking of whom Bismarck said: "I like him; he is a great statesman and he takes his part like a man. Your politicians do not drink enough. Think of Pitt and Foxwhom have you now to compare with those 'two-bottle men,' whose decisions were prompt, decisive and virile? Now were prompt, declaive and virile? Now you have given your drink to the lower classes, who are becoming your masters, and dangerous ones, too, by and by, when the franchise is extended practically to universal suffrage."

universal suffrage." Bismarck is described as having a sensitive, emotional temperament. "But I have." he said, speaking of himself, "a fire within me still which burns at times with fury." Upon that I asked, "Are you in reality the Iron Chancellor?" "No," he said, "not naturally; the iron I have created to use when necessary."

CALLED FRANCE "ENEMY." "Germany," said Bismarck, "is a new ampire, and it must be protected from possible assault by one or two or both Powers, one to the east, the other to the west of us. You must remember that the next war between France and Germany will mean extinction for one. We lie be-tween two lines of fire: France is our bitter enemy, and Russia I do not trust. Peace may be far more dishonorable than war, and for war we must be pre-pared. Therefore, while Germany's very life as a nation is at stake, I cannot give the attention that I should other-wise wish to do as regards the encour-agement of the arts of peace, however much I may believe them to be as you say, necessary to the highest developnext war between France and Germany much I may believe them to be as you sy, necessary to the highest develop-ment of a nation as a whole." Of Great Britah's unpreparedness for war the Prince spoke with emphasis; he was "despondent" about England's neg-lect of that matter. "War." he said, "would solve many of your internal dif-ficulties. It would bring classes and parties together. You have too many coteries and factions; you are so split up as regards both politics and religion; you have grown to be so anarchical." I said, "Socialistic-do you mean?" "No," he said. "Socialism is a power, and one maid. "Socialistic-do you mean?" "No," he said. "Socialism is a power, and one that must be met somehow by wise legis-lation. I meant anarchical. War would teach England that she must be one of the strong military Powers, not perhaps so much as naval, and this for the sake of the peace of Europe. The natural alliance is," he said, "England, Germany and Haly; these three Powers, if placed upon a permanently strong war footing. pon a permanently strong war footing. would insure the peace of the world against France and Russia.

"In the event of war with France and Russia we could place 3,000,000 of men into the field, 1.000,000 upon the Russian frontier, 1.000,000 on the French, and still retain 1,000,000 reserves clothe at a short notice, all told, 4,000,000 of reserves, inclusive; and," repeated the Chancellor, slowly, reverently, with emo-tion and force, "indeed, I believe that unless God Himself commands the French forces in the next war, Germany must be victorious For the French nation Bismarck had contempt, though he had personal friends in Faris. He liked Napoleon: he spoke of him as an agreeable and courteous man: but he thought that the Empress had not a good influence over him on accour of her strong Catholic sympath", which he thought were dangerous to to State, "Napoleon had a good heart, but he was too casily influenced by women. That is a great mistake: women and the serious facts of life should never come into touch."

As there are about 9,000,600 party line telephones in operation in the United States, it can be seen that the device is destined to affect a great many people and to check a firmly established custom. The man whose invention marks the doom of eavesdropping is the possessor of a bonda fide photograph, showing a farmer's wife at work at her sewing machine with the receiver of the telephone firmly bound to her ear, so that she may not miss a single word of the conversation of her neighbors throughout the entire day.

When I told her that I had never heard of such an instrument she said some bright telephone man had better get busy and invent one; it would make his fortune. T took the tip, got busy, and believe I have solved the problem." Mr. Howard's device can be readily attached to any telephone. The user oper-ates his telephone in the old manner, ex-cept that he turns a little switch just as soon as he begins to talk. This switch starts a mechanism which is timed by a small clock. An indicator points out the time the conversation continues and the telephone connection is automatically cut off at the end of four minutes. If during the conversation some other subscriber on the line picks up his receiver, the removal of the instrument from the hook produces a musical sound, which not only notifies the users, but identifies the one who is listening.

SAYS EAST HOLDS KEY.

Bisciarck suggested that perhaps the East holds the future keys of Europe-

China, Russia, or both. He told an anecdote of the King at the battle of Koniggratz, when he mistook the noise of bullets for the chirping of sparrows. He was persuaded by Bismarck to leave, very reluctantly, the field when he was in imminent danger, Bismarck riding behind and giving the rump of the King's steed a kick to make him gallop. "My master," Bismarck said, "turned round and gave me a reproachful look; but he took the bint and rode out of danger. That same evening he telegraphed to Queen Augusta, Bianurck took me somewhat rudely from the field."

"My grandfather," said Bismarck, "servof for three years under Frederick the Great, and told me this anecdote: An chaign made a blunder during the mancu-Vers of troops at a review. The King, 88 was his wont when annoyed, feil into 8 violent rage and pursued the terrified ensign stick in hand. The young soldier ran for very life, and jumped a ditch. Beaving the King upon the other side shaking his stick at him in a fury. Shortly after the escape of the ensign the colonel of the regiment came up to the King and said. Your Malesty, the young man committed a blunder, doubt-less. I have just received his resignation from Your Malesty's service.' plac-ing the document into the King's hands. 7 am sorry for it, for he was a good efficer; but he can take no other step under the circumstances." The King an-twered, 'Send him to me." The ensign was sent for, and came trembling, lest this time the stripes should in reality fail upon his shoulders or still worse. was sent for, and came trembling, lest this time the stripes should in reality fail upon his shoulders, or still worse, he might be sent to prison. Without any preface the King replied, 'Here is your centaincy, sir, which I endeavored to give you this morning; but you ran away so swiftly that my old legs could not catch you up.' One can imagine the delight of the emign when he found that he was the recipient of promotion and not of recipient of promotion and not of blows."

DISC PRODUCES SOUND.

The identifying sound is produced by means of a disc carrying toothed profections on its extremity, which come in ontact with a pair of keynote tongues. These tongues produce the musical signal. which is of a high or a low note, to represent the long or the short ring used to call the different subscribers on the party line. Inasmuch as most party lines have from four to twenty users, there are the corresponding number of dif-ferent signals or musical sounds by means of which the location of the receiver just emoved is learned. The device thus has the twofold effect of measuring the length of a conversation and identifying the cavesdropper. The inventor believes that cutting down unnecessary conversation, by automati-cally shutting off the connection at the end of four minutes, will effect a saving of 50 per cent, or more on batteries, and that it will eventually result in reduced telephone rates. It is, however, very doubtful if most ountry subscribers will take kindly to the device which will cut off some of their keenest pleasures, for there is no doubt that many farm wives meet and talk in company on the rural lines in a way which should be regarded as perfectly le-gitimate. At such times a frantic call for a doctor is always regarded and under ordinary circumstances there is very little business need for the telephone at the hours when it is used for neighborly talk. But business methods are moving into the country along with scientific improvements on the farm, and forbid the use of even the home instrument for such

Another experiment was tried with three thousand gallons of oll and one hundred gallons of gasoline. The standpipes were operated by hand. After the inflammable stuff was ignited it was allowed to rage for five minutes. One stand pipe was opened, but made little impres-sion. The rest were turned on thirty sec-

A fire insurance agency needed a counter and a couple of filing cabinets.

They had about decided to have the counter made by a local carpenter, at a cost of $175, when a Library Bureau salesman dropped in. He showed them that for $150 they could buy a counter composed of L. B. filing cabinets, cupboards, etc., as shown above.

He got the order. The insurance men got a better counter and got it right away.

Result: $75 in money saved ($25 on the counter and $50 for the filing cabinets which they did not have to buy), besides considerable floor space. And if the insurance men move, they can take the counter-hight units with them.
