

SOCIAL LIFE IN AND ABOUT PHILADELPHIA

MISS HANSELL F. EARLE

Miss Earle, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Earle Jr., will make her debut this year. Mrs. Earle will give a large debutante luncheon tomorrow at her home in Bryn Mawr in honor of her daughter.

REAL autumn weather drove the feminine members of the Germantown Cricket Club, Manheim, indoors yesterday afternoon and made the last of the ladies' day teas a cozy affair.

After a desperate fight to win a match in the tennis tournament, a roaring fire, a steaming cup of tea and just a wee bit of harmless gossip went far towards comfort, coziness and a general good time.

Among those noticed were Mrs. Philip Adamson, Mrs. William Jordan, Mrs. Arthur Haines, Mrs. James Mapes Dodge, Mrs. Harold Hill, Mrs. Frances Butler Reeves, Mrs. Mervyn Gramham, Mrs. John Seede, Miss Helen Whitall, Miss Iola Seede, Miss Alice Hawkins, Miss Isabel Stoughton, Mrs. Harry Valentine, Miss Florine Pearson, Miss Josephine Dodge, Mrs. Charles Rogers, Mrs. Edward Reynolds, Miss Hannah Wright.

WEDDINGS ON WEDNESDAY

Best Day of All Has Philadelphia Brides and Bridesmaids in Its Train.

HARVEY-KLEMM An early autumn wedding of interest was solemnized at high noon today, in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Ardmore, when Miss Edith Blandy Klemm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. George Klemm, Jr., of Haverford, became the bride of Morton Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Holstein Harvey, of Wilmington. Rev. George Pomeroy Allen, rector of the church, officiated.

The chancel was banked with palms, and the altar attractively decorated with large white dahlias and autumn leaves. Large bunches of white dahlias, tied with white ribbons, festooned the family pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of soft white satin, fashioned with an effective cape of point applique lace, and the same lace formed the panel down the front. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and orchids.

Miss Anne Shapleigh Garrett, of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a blue chiffon frock effectively trimmed with silver applique. Her hat was of black velvet, adorned with a single blue flower, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink dahlias, tied with long blue satin streamers. The little flower girl was Miss Eleanor Rogers. She was dressed in a dainty little lingerie frock, with black velvet hat, and carried a pink floral basket prettily filled with tiny pink rose buds and blue larkspur.

Miss Eleanor Brock, Miss Jean Morris Lillie, Miss Louise Tawdell, and Miss Florence Shoemaker were the bride's maids. They were groomed alike, in frocks of pink chiffon, trimmed with silver applique. They wore black velvet hats with a pink rose placed at one side, and their arm bouquets were of pink dahlias tied with long pink satin ribbons.

Mr. Harvey had Donald Satterthwaite, of Wilmington, as his best man, and the ushers were: Holstein Harvey, Jr., brother of the bridegroom; George Capelle, Jr., Louis Bennett, Jr., and John Twaddell.

Following the ceremony there was a small breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, at Haverford, for the immediate families and a few intimate friends. Quite a number of the guests were from Wilmington, Del., the home of the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey will be at home after November 1, at 1401 Gilpin avenue, Wilmington, Del.

ERHARD-HOLL

The marriage of Miss Gertrude A. Holl, daughter of Mrs. J. Holl, of 340 North Broad street, and John Erhard, took place this morning at a nuptial Mass in the Church of St. Stephen, Broad and Butler streets, at 9 o'clock. The Rev. John F. McQuaid, rector of St. Stephen's, was the celebrant of the Mass, and performed the marriage ceremony. He was assisted by the Rev. R. F. Hannigan and the Rev. J. J. Scanlon.

Miss Holl was given in marriage by her brother, Leo E. Holl. She wore a gown of white satin, trimmed with rare lace. Her tulle veil was arranged on her hair with orange blossoms, and she carried roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Mary J. Holl, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pale blue crepe de chine frock, which was trimmed with silk shawl lace, and a large picture hat, which was trimmed with white plumes. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Erhard was attended by his brother, Francis K. Erhard, as best man. A small reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mrs. Holl. Mr. and Mrs. Erhard left on a wedding trip after the reception, and on their return will live at 5614 Hunter's avenue, where they will be at home after November 15.

MAISH-BOURKE

A quiet wedding, impressive with the glitter of regimentals, was solemnized at St. Mark's Church, Sixteenth and Locust streets, at noon today, when Miss Pauline Bourke, the daughter of the late Captain Bourke, U. S. A., and Mrs. Bourke, became the bride of Captain Alexander Maish, U. S. A. The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Bourke, as maid of honor, was attired in the conventional bridal gown of white Duchesse satin, draped with rose point lace; her veil of rose point was caught with a spray of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her mother, who walked up the aisle of the church on the arm of Captain Hetherington, commandant of U. S. N. H., wearing full naval uniform. The bridegroom, who wore his captain's uniform, was attended by Nathan Shylerick as best man. There were no other attendants, and no reception followed the ceremony, as Mrs. Bourke and her daughters have just returned from a lengthy stay in Europe, and are not as yet settled in Philadelphia. Captain and Mrs. Maish left this afternoon for a wedding trip.

ENGLISH-GORMAN

The marriage of Miss Margaret R. Gorman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gorman, of 1209 Butler street, and William J. English, Jr., son of William J. English, of Old York road, was solemnized this morning in St. Stephen's Catholic Church, Broad and Butler streets. The Rev. Richard Hannigan, assistant rector of the church, performed the ceremony, and was aided by the Rev. Joseph Scanlon. Miss Carrie Gorman, the maid of honor, was her sister's only attendant. John Gilman was the best man. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gownned in white crepe de chine, with a lace overdress ornamented with pearl trimming. Her white hat was trimmed with tulle and had streamers to match. She carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor's gown was of pink crepe meteor with an overdress of lace which was trimmed with pink rosebuds. A pink hat with trimming of tulle to match and a bouquet of pink roses completed her costume. After the breakfast which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. English left for a short wedding tour. They will be at home after October 20 at Thirteenth and Butler streets.

LENOX

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 28.—Miss Edith Reel, daughter of the late Charles Reel, of Yonkers, N. Y., was married this afternoon to Richard E. Townsend, of Brookline, Mass., at Fairfield Farm, in Great Barrington, the country home of the bride's mother. The Rev. Joseph R. Lynch, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church, Great Barrington, performed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Parsons entertained at dinner at Stoneover tonight. They will go to Harrison, N. Y., on Thursday, for October. Entertaining at dinner tonight were Mrs. Carroll Jackson and Mrs. John J. Staples.

THE DRAMA

MARILYNN MILLER "Infant Danseuse" of "Passing Show of 1914" At the Lyric Next Week.

THEATRICAL BAEDEKER

ACADEMY OF MUSIC—"Cabra," moving-picture drama, by Gabriella D'Annunzio, of the third century B. C.

ADELPHI—"The Revolt," by Edward Locke, starring Helen Ware. Neglected wife, desperate rushes to ruin. Ruin proves shocking. She recovers in time. Stepmother tips. Child nearly dies from eating bananas.

BROAD—"Lady Windermere's Fan." Revival of Oscar Wilde's satire by Margaret Anglin. One of the cleverest plays of the century, never more brilliantly presented.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE—"Philo's Daughter," miracle play, by Francis L. Kenzel. The daughter of Pontius Pilate performs miracles by a rose which touched Christ's garment, and finally meets martyrdom.

FORREST—"Chu-Chin," musical comedy by Anne Caldwell and R. H. Burrows, made by Ivan Caryll, with Montgomery and Stone. Review tomorrow.

GARRICK—"Nearly Married," farce comedy, by Edgar Selwyn, starring Bruce McRae. At-tempted, but amusing.

WALNUT—"Bringing Up Father," musical comedy, based on George McManus' cartoons, by Gus Hill.

Premiere Danseuse at 16

For a number of years petite Marilyn Miller, who will appear in "The Passing Show of 1914" at the Lyric Theatre next week, was unable to dance in New York because of the vigilance of the Gerry Society.

The Gerry Society, as you may know, does not encourage "child prodigies" on the stage. Now Marilyn, said to be one of the most marvellous of dancers, was a child prodigy, a real "infant phenomenon," after the standard set by Charles Dickens.

Marilynn was 16 the first day of September. She danced when she was 4.

Miss Miller never appeared in New York before last June, when she made an extraordinary hit at the Winter Garden.

Marilynn made her debut with her father, mother and sister at the Lakeside Park, Dayton, Ohio, on August 20, 1905. One afternoon, while the Millers were playing in Dayton, little Marilyn Miller, then 4 years old, was taken to a moving picture show. One of the pictures was of a famous premiere danseuse, Marilyn, on arriving home, told her mother that she thought she could dance on her toes as well as the lady she had seen in the pictures. To the surprise of Caro Miller and his wife their little daughter was very soon dancing around the room on her toes.

So it was that little Marilyn became one of the Columbians, which after that week were billed as "The Columbian Trio, with Mademoiselle Sugarlump." The name "Mademoiselle Sugarlump" was after a time dropped from the "billing," and the Miller family became known as the "Columbian Four"—father, mother and two daughters. Owing to the child labor act, "The Columbian Four" was unable to appear in many of the larger cities, since Marilyn Miller was so young. As there are no restrictions as to age in other countries, the Millers played much of the time during the last ten or more years in Canada, England, the West Indies, South Sea Islands, Hawaii and Australia. Before last June the nearest that Marilyn Miller came to appearing in New York was Christmas week, 1905, when "The Columbian Four" played a week in Brooklyn. The Gerry Society then interfered, and so little Marilyn, unable to dance, was compelled to walk through her part.

Last May the Millers were appearing at the Lotus Club in London. Lee Shubert was abroad seeking novelties, and was greatly astonished at the wonderful cleverness of Marilyn Miller. He at once sent to Caro Miller, the young lady's father, and arranged for her appearance at the Winter Garden.

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

The arrival of Henry Arthur Jones in this country to direct rehearsals of the new play which he has written for Margaret Illington, will complete the trio of distinguished British playwrights now in America. The other two are Sir J. M. Barrie and A. E. W. Mason. The plots of both the new Jones plays are shrouded in a good deal of mystery. The greatest of all Mr. Jones' successes, "The Silver King," has been successfully played in London by H. B. Irving at the Strand.

Bruce McRae, who is starred in "Nearly Married," has had a varied, vigorous career. Mr. McRae was born in India. His father was a civil engineer in the British military service. At the age of 16 he wanted to adopt a stage career, but the probability of quick wealth in New Zealand caused him to start in business there as a sheep herder. He succeeded only moderately, however, and then proceeded to Australia, where he secured work in a meat packing plant.

Tiring of this, in a fortnight he shipped before the mast for two years as an able seaman, went into the Australian bush as a cow puncher and then became a Government surveyor.

Going back into the cattle business, he was sent to Laramie, Wyo., to a big ranch, where he herded steers for two years.

Then he went on the stage. Charles Frohman was producing Sardou's "Thermidor" in New York, and the straightforward, manly approach of the sun-tanned youth from the West just suited a part. Although Sardou's drama failed, McRae came out of the experience famous.

Nora Bayes returned to New York recently and died in a restaurant not far from Broadway. Scores of women and managers were seen to go up to her table and request her own assurance that she was still alive. "I knew I was awfully popular with all my husbands," said Miss Bayes, "but I never knew it was so alluring with the general public at large to have been thought a dead one."
