ALL GREEN THINGS BLOOM AS GROWERS COME TO THE CITY

Horticultural Hall Transformed Into Miniature Garden, Where Men Who Till Soil Convene Tomor-

Hundreds of truck farmers, greenhouse men and produce raisers from all parts of the country are arriving in Philadelpaia to attend the sessions of the 17th annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, which opens tomorrow in Horticultural Hall, In the meanwhile final touches are being put to the great building where the convention is to be held. It is being transformed into a miniature garden, where all varieties of green things are bloom-

Several groups of delegates from the South and West arrived in the city last night. They went to the Hotel Walton, which has been designated as convention headquarters. Special trains carrying more men and women bound for the convention are now on the way from various parts of the country. Market gardeners from Terre Haute, Indianapolis and St. Louis will arrive on a train which started yesterday from the latter city. Others are coming from the New England district, and still more are now on the way from Chicago, the ake shore and New York.

HORTICULTURAL HALL ADORNED. At Horticultural Hall everything is in readiness for the opening of the convenreadiness for the opening of the conven-tion. when it comes into general use.

The exhibit is of particular interest at this time because Postmuster General of the various housekeepers' associations of Philadelphia a list of the names of farmers who are anxious to do a parcel post business, so that the members of these housekeepers' associations may be able to order their farm produce by mail and receive their goods direct from the

This meeting will be led by Professor Clyde L. King, of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on the relation of a city to its food supply, of Municipal League. Associated Professor King, representing 350,000 or more housekeepers of Philadelphia, who spend every year an average of nearly $200,000,000 in the city's marts of trade, will be members of the various women's organizations which take a prominent part in the municipal economic life. They will endeavor to find out just where the difference between the price the consumer pays for food and the price the farmer eceives for his produce goes, and how the unnecessary charges and waste which make that difference so great may

FIVE DENOMINATIONS UNITE IN DEDICATING GRACE CHAPEL

Church at Oakmont Will Be Used in Common.

Five denominations joined yesterday in the dedication of Grace Chapel at Oakmont, near Ardmore, where together they will worship.

Baptists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Lutherans and Friends have united to make this undenominational church a success. Although Oakmont has but a population of 800, the combined congregation during six years raised $17,000. During the dedicatory services yester-day $300 was raised, $1000 being contributed by women.

The organizers of Grace Chapel de-cided that the town could not support more than one church, so the undenominational chapel was planned.

There is a baptismal pool under the pulpit and a chancel rail before it to appeal to the Protestant Episcopalians. The Rev. James H. Feely, a licensed evangelist, who is a carriage salesman during the week, is finishing his theological studies and will become pastor

The dedicatory services will continue week, and ministers of various de nominations will address the congrega
