What Makes A Boy?

WHAT MAKES A BOY

I wonder if there was a boy who never had to spank!

Who never said a saucy word, who never played in mud;

Who was not angry all day long, no matter what was said;

Perhaps if I could be like that, I never would annoy;

But if I never once was spanked, they'd say "He's not a boy."

BEFORE THE SANDMAN COMES

LISTEN! Hear that noise! exclaimed Jimmy South-Breeze as he swooped around the eaves of a big apartment building.

"Tinkle, tingle." Such a sweet chipmy chime it was. Quite unlike any thing Jimmy had ever heard before.

"I believe I'll ask my mother what that is," he decided finally, and immediately he began hunting for her.

Now maybe you think it's an easy thing to find your mother, and maybe it is easy when you call and she is right there to answer.

But Jimmy's mother was different. She loved her children and kept track of them in her own fashion, of course;

And by rare good luck Mother South-Breeze was there and answered: "Yes, Jimmy," she said kindly, "can I do anything for you?"

"Oh, Mother, do come back this way with me," cried Jimmy. "There's a wonderful new sound I want you to hear. Come along this street, and I'll show you the place."

Together they blew swiftly down the street to the big apartment building where Jimmy had been.

"Here it is," he cried. "Now blow up to the second floor porch and listen—I know you'll think it is wonderfully sweet."

Softly they nestled down on the tiny front porch, carefully they listened—but not a sound did they hear.

"That's queer," said Jimmy. "I know this is the right place. I think I'll look in the door and see what's the matter." He blew softly through the screen and into the living room.

Instantly a dainty musical chime was heard, a chime as cool and sweet as the sound ice fairies make when they frolic and sing.

"There it is, mother," cried Jimmy, delightedly. "Now listen." They both kept very still—and the music stopped.

"Oh, dear, what is the matter now," cried Jimmy.

"Matter enough," answered a little voice sadly. "I can't sing unless you help me."

"Who are you?" asked Mrs. South-Breeze, blowing into the big living room to investigate.

"I," said the voice, "I am the wind-bells over your head. I will play you sweet music if you will help me."

"This way," said Jimmy, and he blew a swish of air through the room.

"That's the way to help," twinkled the wind-bells. "You're the very playmate I want."

PROPERTY SALES

AID TO PENNSY'S TERMINAL PLANS

Purchases Nearly Completed With Only 15 More Sales to Be Consummated.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has nearly completed the purchase of all property on the north side of Filbert street, and the south side of Cuthbert street, from 15th to 20th street in the Ninth ward, needed to complete the addition of its enlarged terminal and additional trackage.

At this date, only 15 properties are on the books of the city with registered owners other than the railroad company.

The buying of properties were purchased in 1902, and the majority in 1912 and 1913.

In the agreement between the railroad and the city, the former is to dedicate sufficient land on the south side of Cuthbert street, free of cost to the city, for the width of Filbert street, so that it also be a part of the railroad.

Plans showing present right of way of Pennsylvania Railroad into Broad Street Station and property acquired to close Filbert street.

road company will be entitled to damages from the city for part of properties No. 1503 to No. 1523 inclusive taken for the Parkway.
