WOMAN SOON WILL WIELD BALLOT, SAYS SUFFRAGE LEADER

Favorable Sentiment Rising in Irresistible Tide Which Will Sweep Country, Avers Caroline Katzenstein.

By CAROLINE KATZENSTEIN Executive Secretary of the Equal Franchise Society of Philadelphia.

Dittaburgh vesterday, is the beginning of the end. With a woman suffrage plank in each of the five political parties. of Pennsylvania, with the organized club women of the State pledged to the refarm, with the W. C. T. U. and other organizations heartily in favor of giving women the ballot, failure is not only impossible, but the goal is almost within Organizations are beginning to realize that they must work for woman suffrage gs well as believe in it. The recent ac-tion taken by the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends is a significant instance. Not content with recording its "Indorsement of equal suffrage as a principle of justice to women and an opportunity for more effective service," the Yearly Meeting nmends that monthly meetings be ful for opportunities to influence equal suffrage legislation and encourage their members to give active interest in thing. the accomplishment of this reform." much

To the credit and honor of the West, this inconsistency has become apparent. and, today, nearly 4,000,000 women vote in the States of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington, California, Oregon, Arizona, Kansas and Illinois. In all of the 10 but Illinois they are on an equal basis with men, and in Illinois the suffrage granted to women is almost

WHAT CENSUS SHOWS.

In the fourth volume of the Report of the 13th Census, just published, there are some interesting figures on the part of country. Mr. Gilson Gardner reviews the report as follows:

or over, 38,167,328 were reported engaged in gainful occupations. In other words, about 38,000,000 worked for money. Of these, 30,001,564 were males and 8,075,772 were females. But the latter figure, so the document explains, does not include women who keep house for their husbands and who do not receive wages.

Married women, keeping house, are not married women, keeping house, are not necessarily women. women who keep house for their numbers and who do not receive wages. Married women, keeping house, are not engaged in 'gainful occupations,' in the meaning of the census. These figures mean that in 1910 more than 8,000,000 wo en and girls were forced to earn their own living outside the home. And yet a very small proportion of them had any voice in making the laws under which their gainful employment is regulated.

LEGAL REGULATION NEEDED. "And some of this gainful employment rather needs legal regulating. For instance, the report shows that 1094 women were engaged in the extraction of minerals. And 405 of these were coal mine peratives, while there were smaller numbers engaged in the womanly business of digging out copper, gold, silver, Iron, lead Society of Philadelphia.

"Of sewing machine operators in fac-tories, the figures show 231,205. There are 782 women shoemakers and cobblers not in factories; there are 1293 upholsterers. "The water transportation industries are represented by 15 women boatmen, canalmen and lockkeepers, by 41 long-shoremen and stevedores and by 12 sallors and deckhands. Road and street transportation shows 37 women back drivers, 33 women chauffeurs, 73 draymen and 6

women heatlers and stable hands. "The way that the male makers of laws and rulers of industry have forced little boys and girls of from 10 to 13 to labor in industry is also shown. "There are, for instance, 1803 boys and five girls between 10 and 13 working in coal mines. One of these little girls is a breaker hand.' There are 19 boys under 12 years at work in copper mines, 25s in iron mines; 51 boys and 12 girls in lead and zinc mines. There are 352 boys and 311 girls under 13 in clothing factories; cornet factories, glove factories, hat factories. All the long list shows the same thing. And, of course, there is a very the accomplishment of this reform."

Need we wonder that the efforts of nearly three-quarters of a century of under 15 reported in the fruit and vegennemitting labor should bear fruit? Is much large, also, that where there are membered, also, that where there are solutions. dren are falsely reported to be above the legal minimum age.

"Hi, ho, but I am glad."
"Glad? So am I, isn't it jolly," and all four voices blended together in a gay squeak.

But, of course, you are wondering who was so glad to have Sunday come and what they were talking about. No, they were not boys and girls— they were squirrels! Squirrels who ived in the big city park.

And of course you have guessed why they like Sunday the best of all days, because you know that Sunday is the day when children visit the parks. Of course, children go to the parks other days too, but Sundays they go with their fathers—and you well know how good fathers are about buying nuts and goodies that
