

FARM TO TABLE SERVICE PROMOTED BY THE PARCEL POST

Exhibits by the Government at More Than 100 State and County Fairs Prove Utility of the System.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Exhibits of the farm-to-table service of the parcel post system have been made by the Government at more than 100 State and county fairs. As a result of this campaign of advertising, Postmaster General Burleson reports the public is hastening to embrace an opportunity to obtain cheaper and better farm produce. The new system was introduced in Philadelphia on October 1.

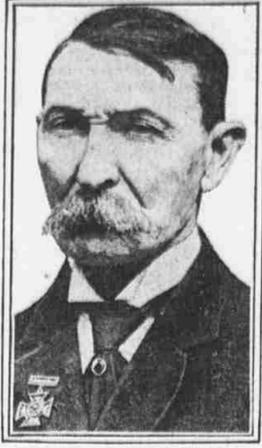

Exceptional interest was manifested by the women. Women in the medium by which the parcel post will win its way to farm and suburban households.

Reports from New Jersey are more than flattering on the postal exhibit shown at the Newark Industrial Fair and at the Trenton Interstate Fair.

Exhibits made at the fairs prominently feature the parcel post. A statement issued by the Postoffice Department declares that "Postmaster General Burleson's suggestion that postmasters the country over join in giving the parcel post the most prominent place of advantage and the best methods of using the parcel post has been adopted on a huge scale."

BEFORE THE SANDMAN COMES

ONCE upon a time some fairies lived in a big cornfield—how do anybody know they lived there you ask? Wait and see! They started living there in the summer when the corn stalks were fresh and green. Then dainty little daisies and clovers strayed among the cornstalks—bugs and beetles crawled over the corn roots, and many interesting things happened every day. Altogether, the fairies considered that, next to the forest, a cornfield was the very nicest place to live, and they decided to live there forever.
