

NOTED PHYSICIANS URGES THE ELECTION OF DR. BRUMBAUGH

DRs. Martin, Posey, Hirst, Deaver and Ashton Support Nominee for His Work in Behalf of Public Health.

Five Philadelphia medical men of national reputation have enlisted in the campaign for the election of Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh to the Governorship.

The men who have signed the communication are Dr. Edward Martin, professor of genito-urinary surgery at the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the Board of Education; Dr. William Campbell Posey, famous eye specialist; Dr. Barton Cooke Hirst, who occupies the chair of obstetrics in the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. John B. Deaver, noted surgeon; Dr. W. E. Ashton, specialist in genito-urinary diseases and a member of the faculty of Medical-Chirurgical College.

Dr. Martin, one of the superintendents of the most earnest supporters in the school board, declared that he and his colleagues took this action in accordance with what they considered a professional duty. With no thought of political activity they were unanimous in the belief that Doctor Brumbaugh would enthusiastically support legislation making for the betterment of public health.

His successful efforts to promote medical inspection in the public schools and to procure more sanitary conditions in the classrooms entitled him, he said, to the support of the medical world.

"As Superintendent of Schools," he continued, "he co-operated in every possible way with the medical profession. Instead of lending passive acquiescence he gave active and stimulating help. He was constantly to be seen in the laboratory of physical benefit to American childhood. He was certainly a most potent factor in introducing medical inspection into the classroom and he has always shown a spirit of pure patriotism in discharging his official duties.

RECALL KELLER TO STAND IN WATMOUGH WILL CASE

Beneficiary of Eccentric Millionaire Again Examined.

When the hearing in the controversy over the will of John G. Watmough, millionaire, who disinherited his relatives and left his fortune to Domestic and Friends, was resumed before Judge Lamoreux today in the Orphans' Court, William Clark Mason, representing the contesting kin, called for cross-examination of Ferdinand Keller, the dealer in antiques, who, with his wife, are beneficiaries of the residue of the estate.

Following the sensation sprung yesterday to the public by the fact that Keller, star witness for the contestants, confessed in letters to the Kellers that he had committed perjury at the testifier's counsel, the latter has endeavored to explain the affair to the court.

In support of the Buckman testimony was that Mason, who had been a janitor for the Kellers for a number of years, had only consented to testify for the contestants upon the promise of $2000, which Keller, in providing the will was knocked out.

He made his "confession," according to the testimony, after he had become conscious-stricken and delirious, and to the Kellers repudiating his testimony before the Registrar.

As a counter accusation, counsel for the contestants sought to prove that Jules' remorse and admissions of perjury were superinduced by the beneficence of their representatives, and that he received $1000 to skip the jurisdiction.

TITANIC SURVIVOR A BRIDE

Mrs. Eloise Hughes Smith and R. W. Daniel Married.

Philadelphia society was surprised today to learn that Robert W. Daniel and Mrs. Eloise Hughes Smith, daughter of the business man at Mrs. James A. Hughes, of West Virginia, had been married in New York, August 18. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel are staying at the home of Mrs. E. W. Waring, located at Rosemont, until their new dwelling in the same suburb is ready for occupancy.

Announcement of the marriage was delayed because Mr. Daniel had to leave for Europe on August 29 and did not wish to take his bride into the war zone. Their acquaintance began on the rescue ship, sympathy after the sinking of the Titanic in 1912. Mrs. Smith was returning from her honeymoon with her first husband, Lucian Smith, of Unlontown, Pa., who lost his life in the disaster. Mr. Daniel died of an explosion and was finally picked up by a life boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel were married in the "Little Church Around the Corner" in New York.

DIVIDED ON TOBACCO ADS

Swarthmore Debates Whether "Phoenix" Shall Print Such Matter.

Tobacco advertisements or no tobacco advertisements in the Phoenix, the student newspaper of Swarthmore College, is a question being debated by the students and alumni of the institution. The business department of the publication, which has a profitable income could be derived by publishing the advertisements of the tobacco companies, has advocated such matter be permitted to the columns of the paper after a 14 years' record of anti-tobacco policies.

Women of the student body and the alumni are staunchly in the opposition. While the men believe since they use the tobacco, they should be informed through the columns of their "daily" as to the advisability of smoking particular brands.

RADIUM FOR WILSON'S GRASS

Company Offers to Remove Brown Patches on White House Lawn.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The grass on the white House lawn will be made to grow with a radium solution, if an offer from a large radium manufacturing concern is accepted by the White House.

The agents of the company have guaranteed that this costly solution, which they offer free, will remove a group of brown patches on the lawn, caused by summer drought.

RICCARDO MARTIN, TENOR, HEARD AT THE ACADEMY

American's Splendid Singing With New York Symphony.

There were hours aplenty at the concert last night given by Walter Damrosch's New York Symphony Orchestra, at the Academy of Music, but, except for a few moments, the honors all went to Riccardo Martin, for the splendid interpretation of his arias. The orchestral part of the evening's entertainment was wretchedly done for the most part, conductor and men alike transgressing in spirit and execution.

It is a great pity that Mr. Damrosch chose to play the Eroica symphony here for the first time. Eventually his orchestra may rise to Beethoven; at present their attempts were almost insulting, both to the master whom they played and to the audience which heard them. That the first movement was inchoate, failed utterly of a unity of impression, is perhaps pardonable, but that Mr. Damrosch should have muddled the funeral march, and after robbing it of its splendid solemnity, should have gone on to make the scherzo weak and uninspiring, is little short of criminal. The scherzo of the Eroica is a masterpiece of wit and wit placed after the sober but fearless death motive. Mr. Damrosch conducted both as if they were pieces of music, nothing more.

In the last movement, and in picking the bits of inspired rapturism here and there in the preceding movements, Mr. Damrosch was better, but it is very hard to say. The lack of inspiration, of judgment and of technical excellence must be overcome, and if the new endowment of Mr. Damrosch's orchestra will assist him in conducting it, his future visits to this city a different matter from the present one. It should be said, to be fair, that the Goldmark overture and Eroica, "romantically rendered," which opened and closed the program respectively, were much better done, with not a little fire and good cheer, and that in them Mr. Damrosch's prodigious efforts in conducting did not seem so ludicrously ineffectual.

Mr. Martin, in the midst of this muddle, was a bright star of joy. His voice was cordially rounded, his timbre pure and rich, and his dramatic expression so excellent that it reminded one of Titta Rufino. To say that his singing was "intelligent" would not be adequate. Mr. Martin's sympathetic imagination, as shown last night, was perfect, and the contrast he could make between Puccini and Bizet was full and convincing. For him, at least, Philadelphia can be thankful to Mr. Damrosch.

ALL PARTIES IN DELAWARE BUSY HOLDING MEETINGS

Democrats Give Candidates a Reception.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 27.—From now until the end of the chapter which will be written on election day there is going to be no complaint of a lack of speeches. The Democrats held a reception for their candidates last night at the Democratic League, and United States Senator Willard Saulsbury and Congressman Franklin Brockton told the Democrats what they ought to do to win.

At the same time the Progressives held a number of meetings and declared themselves to be the only party which was actually for reform.

Thomas W. Miller, the Republican candidate for Congress, talked to the voters in New Castle and later at the meeting of the First District Committee in Wilmington.

The Rev. S. M. Morgan, who declined the nomination of the Prohibition and Progressive parties for Congress, but accepted a nomination for State Senator, addressed an open letter to James F. Casperson, the Democratic candidate in the same district, and will probably ask him his position on a number of questions, including temperance and public utilities.

INDEPENDENCE HALL CLOCK AGAIN GOES ON STRIKE

Hands Stop at 9:21 A. M. When Caretaker Tinkers.

The big clock in Independence Hall tower is at its old tricks again. Today at 9:21 a. m., it refused to push its hands any further, because William Gibbons, the caretaker, was tinkering with the drums on which its strong cables wind.

The clock has been stopped and combed and carried for more than two weeks, and it will be another week, it is expected, before the general overhauling which it is undergoing will be completed.

Although repairs are making every effort not to interfere with the duties of the clock evidently resents the operation, for its deep bell-voice and large round face occasionally tell the public just how it feels. It is an aristocratic timepiece with a long pedigree and it has faithfully recorded the hours and minutes since it was presented to the city by Henry Seybert, a wealthy Philadelphian, in 1876.

An inspection of the House of Correction in Philadelphia is being made today by members of Council's Committee on Prisons and Corrections, who also are considering the estimates for maintaining the institution during 1915.

The installation of new boilers and conduits to connect the heating plant with the home for the indigent at a cost of $15,000 last year made necessary greater appropriation than usual in 1914.

In addition the President made it known that he intended to seek complete rest for the remainder of this week and, indeed, until he leaves here next Tuesday morning for Princeton, N. He addresses to his early decision not to appear in the battle personally and under no circumstances will he take the stump.

While the Chief Executive intends to try out the "rest cure" for the next few days, he will not spend the time in the White House altogether. TEACHING THE CITY JUST WHAT'S "MADE IN PHILADELPHIA"

Merchants and Manufacturers Open Campaign to Give Industries a Great Push Forward.

"Made in Philadelphia." These three words, packed with meaning, were the three best arguments of the merchants and manufacturers of the city yesterday—the first day of the week that is to be given over to the business of convincing the public that Philadelphia is one of the real workhorses of the world.

And, judging from the display put forth, they are a challenge calculated to make the business men of every other place in the world sit up and take notice. Much that is fine is made in Philadelphia, but in the opinion of Philadelphia's enterprising men of business, just knowing that fact doesn't help the city much.

"It pays to advertise," they say, and therefore this is to be advertising week for all the city's products.

All hands have joined in the movement to spread the fame of the industrial output, and the consequence is that it will be an unobtrusive pedestrian indeed who can walk half a block in any of the business districts this week without having the merits of some Philadelphia-made article brought to his attention.

From City Hall down to the smallest retail shop, the city's colors have been flung out in honor of "Made in Philadelphia Week." The department stores have their windows dressed with merchandise from local factories, and the up-to-the-minute smartness of the displays make the hallowed marks "Made in Philadelphia" or "Made in London" lose their cherished significance.

Fifth avenue, the Rue de la Paix and Bond street "have nothing on" Walnut, Chestnut and Market streets.

According to those who are back of the campaign, people do not know how versatile their home city is, industrially speaking. They do not know that everything from a locomotive to a doll-baby is made here. How often can they expect the world to know it?

"Made in Philadelphia Week" is destined to bring this fact to their notice, but it is not the intention of merchants and manufacturers to let them forget it after the week is over. Boosting Philadelphia's industries, and supplying money to needy districts in England, Germany, Russia and Servia. All goods will bear the label "Made in America."

SOUTH JERSEY YACHTSMEN FORMULATE NEW RULES

Delegates Will Be Able to Vote in National Association.

Eight clubs of the 13 affiliated with the South Jersey Yacht Racing Association were represented at a special meeting of the Racing Commission last night at the Bellevue-Stratford, and delegates were formulated whereby the delegates will vote at the annual meeting of the American Power Boat Association.

It was agreed upon by the delegates that the two rules which they will vote for the two rules formed by the National Council of the American Power Boat Association, which met in this city last week, and it is to be in the best manner in which to get to the true horsepower rating of a motorboat. These rules will be taken before the annual meeting to be voted upon for the betterment of the sport.

There has been some talk concerning the establishment of the American Power Boat Association in this city and taking it away from New York. But for the betterment of the racing game the members of the South Jersey Yacht Racing Association, who are organized in New York. One of the reasons advanced is that the Long Island Yacht Racing Association, which is a big organization, contemplates starting a "Gold Cup" but if it is moved to Philadelphia they will more than likely remain outside.

It was announced that the Lake George Regatta Association has given to the A. F. B. A. a cup to be known as the "Mile Trophy," to be raced for annually by hydroplanes. It is similar to the "Gold Cup" and the same rules will govern the contest.
