

INTERESTS CONTINUE EFFORTS FOR OPEN SECURITY TRADING

Expect Sales by Europe Will Be Balanced by Exports of Cotton—Time Money in New York 6 Per Cent.

Although the Wall street district was deserted today, there was no cessation of the efforts of the banking interests and exchange members to continue progress in the direction of a resumption of open trading.

The reopening of the Cotton Exchange is close at hand. All that the exchange managers are waiting for is an order of the court permitting the sale of the Pell cotton to a syndicate ready to make the purchase at 8 cents.

Money has been thoroughly established in an easy position. Any one with good collateral can obtain time money at 6 per cent. With the supply now coming from our local institutions instead of the West, if there is any outside supply it must enter into competition with the clearing house banks in finding borrowers.
