Slaughter of Penn Eleven by Michigan Athletes and Other Big Surprises of the Week-end Treated at Some Length-Other Gridiron Gossip.

By EDWARD R. BUSHNELL With the exception that two rather outdid themselves, all the big football teams played up to form on Saturday. The two most important games of the day were Pennsylvania vs. Michigan and Harvard vs. Princeton. Virtually every critic who had been following the work of these four teams at close range and was able te form an unbiased estimate of their strength believed that Michigan would beat Pennsylvania and that Harward would win from Princeton. But not even partisan supporters expected the winning teams to triumph in such an overwhelming manner, Michigan's 34-3 Victory over Pennsylvania was not only the worst beating the Wolverines ever gave the Quakers, but the largest score ever made in the series. Similarly Harward's 20-0 score was the most decisive the Crimson ever gave the Orange and Black.

Such one-sided games do not admit of a very detailed analysis. Beaten teams seldom have much of an argument with their victors, and in these two games the superiority of the winners was so pronounced that no study of the play can lead to any opinion other than that the two beaten teams were absolutely outclassed. Harvard's decisive victory following the Harvard's decisive victory following the triumph of a week before over Michigan gives the Crimson first place among the "Big Six." Harvard is now the only team in this group which has not been beaten. Dartmouth and Yale rank second and third, with Princeton fourth and Cornell and Pennsylvania fifth and sixth. The way the teams now compare is shown by the following statistics:

dicap, and whether they win or loss in the two remaining garnes they will certainly do better than they did against Michigan. Harvard's victory over Princeton makes the Crimson stand forth once more as the strong-est team in the East, and the Crimson will undoubtedly be the favorite for the Tale same two weeks hence, just as Tale will probably be a favorite over Princeton on Baturday. As the result of a very careful study of the detailed play in all of Prince-ton's previous games, the writer has con-tended that they facted a consistent scor-ing attack. It is not unfair to Princeton to refer to the fact their traver by their op-ponents really eaved the Tigers from defeat on two or three occasions. Harvard not only had a consistent running and running at-tack, but refused to make errors which Princeton might conver that Harvard's offense was almost the same as that of a year ago. The forward pass played practically no part in it. But there was power to the Crimson's rushing and running attack; there was always good interference for runners, and even with-out Brickley there was a sure for poketer in Main to boot the ball over with a goal from field when it was required. The writer sentority. It is hard to seen the digit and as has been mentioned before, the only reason he didn't shins as brilliantly in this depar-tion the loss of Brickley. The change made in the Greystock line-up in the game against De Neri Saturday in the early part of the second half seemed to im-prove the Greys' teamwork. Six field goals were marked up on the storeboard after the shift, fires of them by Cross, who was mayed from centre to guard. The Trenton team, which met defeat The Trenton team, which met defeat at the hands of Reading in Preizeltown on Saturday, will probably be without the services of Harry Hough, who is re-ported to be in bad condition, on account of an injury he received in the contest Saturday. Manager Hill will likely start Front and Franckle at forward, with Get-ainger at centre, while Kane and either Cooper or Gelg will take care of the guard positions. The De Nerl team will line up as follows: Fogarty and Dark, forwards; Keenas, centre; Kincalde and Newman, guards.

Cashman, who played forward for the Greys, was moved to centre when the change was made, and outjumped Repnan.

in times gone, performed in other athletic capacities. It is remarkably true that basketball players are generally good at baseball, or possibly it is the other wayround, that the baseball play-ers are good basketball players. At any rate, in the Eastern Leegue upon investigation it will be found that many of the mens are experts on that diamond. Among those in this league who indulgs in the hational partime during the off-basketball season are "Immy" Kane. "Freddy" Geig and Frost of Trentor: Foqarty Dark, "Doo" Newman and Trentor: Vebahn, of De Neri, Walter, "King" Brady and Flugeraid, of Jasper, "Jimmy" Brown and "Jackie" Adams, of Camden; McWilliams and Cashman, of Greyntock.
