MAY SOON PERMIT TRADING IN LISTED BONDS IN NEW YORK

Exchange Authorities Considering Subject of Resum-Improvement Continues in Open Markets.

Conditions at the end of the week contrast favorably with those prevailing a week ago. The response to the withdrawal of objections to open trading in the outside security markets was so vigorous that the New York Stock Exchange authorities are now considering the subject of beginning operations on the floor with trading in listed bonds, but they are opposed to any preliminary announcement in regard to the matter, and It is possible that an announcement will come without any notice in advance.

The trading on the New street curb today showed further improvement in 2d lat values, with a new feature being offered to trade in stocks there, the transactions COTTON CONSUMPTION LESS to be consummated through the New York Stock Exchange Charing House. Census Bureau Gives Figures for This was especially the case in Union Pacific which was offered at 111%, to go through the Clearing House. This stock is 25 per cent, dividend off, making the price equal to 114%, against 113½ with a dividend on at the close on July 39.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit at 50%, ex-divi-dend, sold one point above the July 30 price, showing a net gain of 2½ points. Reading today was quoted 128½ bid and Pennsylvania 104½ bid, with United States Steel common in demand at 47%. . . Short-term maturities are also active and strong, with Pennsylvania 34s wanted at 98%. The New York Stock Exchange ruling issued yesterday permitting transactions in State and municipal bonds does not exclude foreign-owned bonds from trading, except when sales are made on sellers 10 and 20-day options. Standard Oll of New Jersey sold on the Broad Street Curb at 3731/2, against 557 on July 30. Other Standard Oil issues are proportionately strong. Sterling exchange was firm, with demand at 4.88 and cable at 4.881/2.

BANK CLEARINGS IMPROVE

Gain Indicates More Favorable Business Conditions.

Rather more favorable business conditions are indicated by the continued gain in bank clearings over recent preceding weeks, but aggregate payments still compare adversely with the two previous years, the total this week being $2,285,365,645, against $2,971,261,737 in 1918 and $3,402,696,134 in 1912, thus showing decreases of 23.1 and 32.8 per cent. respectively.

These losses, however, are explained ing Business on Floor. These losses, however, are explained by the fact that trading has not yet been resumed at a number of the leading speculative markets, and the effect of this is most apparent at New York city. where there appears a decline of 32.2 per cent, in comparison with last year two years ago.

The falling off at the outside centres amounts to 6.9 and 11.2 per cent., Minneapolls and Kansas City alone showing any expansion over both 1913 and 1912, while Cleveland shows a gain over last

George Bernard Shaw's

Amazing Article About the War in Sunday's Public Ledger

"No unofficial Englishman worth his salt wanted to snivel hypocritically about our love of peace and our respect for treaties and our solemn acceptance of a painful duty, and all the rest of the nauseous mixture of schoolmaster's twaddle, parish magazine cant and cinematograph melodrama with which we were deluged. We were perfectly ready to knock the Kaiser's head off just to teach him that if he thought he was going to ride roughshod over Europe, including our new friends, the French, and the plucky little Belgians, he was reckoning without old England."

Shaw's story of the making of the war is in part a startling excoriation of England's diplomatic hypocrisy and of Sir Edward Grey, the "amiable and popular but confused instrument of England's Foreign Office."

Could England Have Prevented A General War?

Read what Shaw says about this in his account of what passed between Sir Edward Grey and Sazanoff, Russia's Secretary of Foreign Affairs-the one man "who keeps his head."
