Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Ingersoll will introduce Daughter.
Miss Susan B. Ingersoll will be presented at a large tea today, which will be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Ingersoll, at their home, 2115 Walnut street.
Miss Ingersoll is a younger sister of Miss Anna Ingersoll, who made her debut several years ago, and who has been a great social favorite. Both sisters are tall and stately, like their mother and aunt, who will always hold a foremost place in this city for style, charm and beauty.
Mrs. Ingersoll was Miss Rita Sturgis, and her sisters are Mrs. James Potter, who was Miss Lily Sturgis; Mrs. Antonio V. Stewart, who was Miss Susan Sturgis, and Mrs. Edgar Scott, who will be remembered as Miss Mazie Sturgis. Mrs. Ingersoll will be assisted in receiving by her sisters and Mrs. R. Sturgis Ingersoll, her daughter-in-law, who, before her marriage on October 21, was Miss Marion B. Fowle.
The large rooms on the lower and second floors of the house will be thrown open to the guests. Miss Ingersoll will wear a dainty gown of satin, with tiny tulle ruffles and lace, which will be made with a wide girdle of satin. She will carry orchids and lilies of the valley.
A number of the debutantes will receive with Miss Ingersoll, among whom will be Miss Ruth Cox, Miss Cornelia C. Leidy, Miss Mary Frances Fisher, Miss Marion Henrietta Sturgis, Miss Cordelia Biddle, Miss Charlotte Rush, Miss Katherine Ashurst Bowie and Miss Elizabeth Thompson.
The flowers received by Miss Ingersoll are superb. Rare blooms of every variety are to be seen scattered about the spacious rooms, which are lavishly decorated with palms and great chrysanthemums.
In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paul Balfour, of Ardmore, will give a dance at the Motion Golf Club in honor of their niece, Miss Molly Wood Bally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winter Bally, of Stratford. The handsome rooms and hall of the golf club will be decorated with autumn leaves and chrysanthemums.
Mr. and Mrs. Bally will be assisted in receiving their guests by their daughter, Miss West Bally, and by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winter Bally. About 100 guests will attend.

ORIGIN OF THE RUSSIAN BALLET
Anna Pavlova, who will appear at the Metropolitan Opera House November 23, is one of the greatest exponents of Russian dancing. Pavlova's influence on the Russian ballet has been great. During her recent command appearance in Petrograd, Pavlova introduced to the Russians her "Moment Musical," by Schubert, with distinct success. It was hailed as one of the most graceful and artistic efforts ever seen in Russia.
The real beginning of the ballet in Russia dates back nearly a century, when the Empress Anna Ivanovna invited the Italian composer, Francesco Araja, to Petrograd. He established the ballet, which, during the reign of Empress Anna, was given regularly once a week. Since that time the ballet has been a part of the life of Petrograd.
In the beginning the Russian ballet was largely Italian. Up to 1860 the foreign stars were paramount. This was the period of the immortal Taglioni and Fanny Elssler, both of whom were rapturously received by the Russians. But since Taglioni the Russian ballerinas have gradually and very successfully supplanted all other foreigners in popular favor.
Training a dancer in Russia is a long, severe process. Children enter the Imperial Ballet School when they are from 8 to 10 years of age, and remain there for from seven to ten years. Once each year 120 boys and girls present themselves at the ballet department of the Imperial Theatre school in Petrograd. By a process of elimination 20 are selected from the applicants and put on trial in the school for a year. At the end of the year another examination is held, and eight of the children who show the least promise are eliminated. There are usually 15, never more than 15, vacancies in the ballet to be filled.
Salaries paid dancers are arranged according to a regular scale. Members of the corps de ballet receive $25 a week, a premier danseuse from $50 to $75 a week and a "star" anywhere from $100 to $1000 a week. Pavlova, for instance, has received as much as $5000 for a single performance.
The production of an entirely new ballet costs from $5,000 to 75,000 rubles, or approximately $25,000 to $40,000. Usually two new ballets are produced each year.
The list of Russian ballets is extremely small. Pavlova herself has contributed six, one of them being "Amarilli," a gipsy story of intense dramatic and musical worth.

FLASHES FROM "STARS"
Billie Burke is on tour in "Jerry," and is meeting with enthusiastic receptions. At Columbus, O., the management decided to place the orchestra on the stage to accommodate the overflow. One night in Dayton and at two night performances and a matinee in Indianapolis also the orchestra was transplanted for the same reason.
Cathrine Countiss and Charles Richmond have been engaged for leading parts in the film production of "The Idle," which Lloyd B. Carleton is directing for the William Fox film corporation. Another play which Carleton has in hand is "Captain Jinks." He directed both of these plays when they were originally presented on the stage.
Miss Rae Selwyn, who plays Sarah Peabody, the suppressed "deaf and dumb chicken" in "Under Cover," was born in Toronto, Canada, and educated in Louisville, Ky. In spite of the fact that she comes of the well-known family of producers and playwrights, she found it hard to get a start on the stage. It was through Grace George, her intimate friend, that she got her first role. Miss George asked her if LITTLE THEATRE—"Hindle Wakes," by Stanley Houghton, produced for the first time in this city.

WALNUT—"Damaged Goods," by Brieux.
CONTINUING.
ADELPHI—"A Pair of Sixes," farce by Edward Dwyer. Two business partners shoot a cold hand, the winner to retain the business, the loser to become his body-servant for a year. Maude Eburne imitating funny as a slavey.
FORREST—"Sari," Hungarian operetta, with Miss Hajo, as Sari, a Hungarian girl, transported to Paris. Is imitating, coyly funny—and just captivating. Miss Powlowska sings operatically and charmingly.
GARRICK—"The Debutante," new musical comedy, with book by H. B. and R. B. Smith and music by Victor Herbert. A trite plot, enlivened by bits of insinuating music, with Hazel Dawn as rococo as ever.
LYRIC—"The Story of the Rosary." Elaborately staged melodrama, which will weary some in the first act and thrill others to the last, appreciation being a matter of taste.

she would like to play in her company who she gave her revival of "Divorcens" about two years ago, and accordingly Miss Selwyn was given the part of the maid.

Taylor Holmes, who plays Hillary Chester, alias Garibaldi Gazzara, in "The Third Party," was born in Newark, N. J., and began his career as a dramatic parlor elevationist. Later he joined a stock company, where he received all his early training, and then joined Olga Netherole's repertoire company, playing in the first appearances in this country of "Sapho," "Camille," etc. He was with Southern for a while in Shakespearean repertoire, and then played stock in Newark, his home town. Then he was seen with Frank Keenan, and filled in between seasons with vaudeville and stock in Philadelphia. Together with Robert Edison he produced "Strongheart," acting as general stage manager, and later was seen in "The Soldier of Fortune." It was during his year and a half run in vaudeville that David Belasco saw him and engaged him to play with Warfield, appearing in "The Grand Army Man" and "The Music Master," in which piece he will always be remembered as the impulsive, love-sick German boy.

Violet Hemig will play the part of Mercedes in the revival of "Yosemite," in Daly's Theatre, New York, November 23. Until lately she has had one of the leading roles in "A Modern Girl."
