

MUCH TO ATTRACT INTEREST TODAY IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES

Opening of Federal Reserve Banks, Cotton Exchanges and New York Curb Held Attention.

There were many things which attracted interest in the financial community today. Chief of these was the opening of the new Federal reserve banks, while much attention was given to the official opening of the New York Curb and the Cotton Exchanges in New York and New Orleans. Prices on the time and the New York Cotton Exchange were generally firm. Trading was in contrast on the New York Cotton Exchange and prices were far below those prevailing at the close on July 31.

WHEAT IN CHICAGO

MARKET IS FIRMER AT OPENING TODAY

Steadiness Partly Due to Fact That War News Does Not Confirm Rumors of Peace.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Wheat opened firm this morning. There was good buying on the belief that last week's selling movement had relieved the technical position and on the fact that the war news in no way confirms the rumors of peace that have proved an obstacle to bullish developments recently.

TRUNK LINE PASSENGER RATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Railroads operating in trunk line territory filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today proposed increases in passenger fares in this section. A definite estimate of the increases has not yet been fixed by the commission, but tariff experts of the commission said the advances would average approximately 5 per cent.

What Can You Buy for a Nickel More Precious Than a Human Life? Yet five cents will pay for a meal for a starving woman or child in Belgium. Hundreds of thousands of Philadelphians have not yet contributed to the food fund for Flanders. Think what it would mean if each one of them would contribute only five cents! You all can do it. Won't you please? Will You Help Fill a Thanksgiving Ship? Never before have Americans had so much cause for giving thanks—that they are Americans. If today were Thanksgiving Day, a million Philadelphians would sit down to groaning tables without having given one penny to help feed a starving nation. Telephone: Filbert 2456 and Filbert 2457
