GRUGAN-STEVENS

A pretty wedding took place last night in the Chestnut Street Baptist Church, 40th and Chestnut streets, at 6:30 o'clock, when Miss Mary Stevens, daughter of Mrs. William Mattis Stevens, became the bride of Albert Thornton Grugan. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George Adams, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. W. Beatty Jennings, of the First Presbyterian Church, Germantown. The maid of honor was Miss Kathryn E. Stevens, and the bridesmaids were Miss Helen Frances Smith, Miss Marjorie Flaming, of Baltimore; Miss Elizabeth Sixmith and Miss Katharine Love. The best man was F. Justice Grugan, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers included William Newberry, S. Arthur Love, Jr., Herbert Sadler, Baltimore; Everett Mosler and William Harrity, a cousin of the bridegroom. The church was banked with palms and chrysanthemums, also the house, where a reception was held immediately following the ceremony, at 432 East Tulpehocken

The bride were an ivery white satin gown, made with a cape effect, which hung down half way in the back. A pointed truln started from the waist-line. The bodice and sleeves were formed of princess lace, and pearl ornaments were used with good effect. A tulle veil was arranged as a cap effect with an edge of princess lace and fastened at each side with tiny bunches of orange blossoms. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet with a lace frill, the outer edge of which was of illies of the valley and the heart of gardenias and white orchids. The maid of honor wore pink charmeuse, made with a cape of lace, which also formed

BILLY LEDGER'S GOSSIP

FITHE horrors of war were brought home to I the lat City Troop on Tuesday, You will recall that the thermometer dropped just 32 degrees on that day. It was the troop's anniversary and they had to parade in all their full dress regala, including the medieval belmet so responsive to the brisk autumnal winds and those wonderfully immaculate white tights,

As they turned around the corner of 18th and Walnut streets, passing the nice, warm and cosy home of the Philadelphia Club, it must have been something of a Spartan test indeed to keep on walking. Nevertheless, the troopers made up for their chilly stroll by a spanking banquet at the armory that evening. As one member expressed it to me later in the evening, "There was a bowling flowl 'niotsof cine figure."

We can take care of our enemies, but heaven defend us from our friends. The axiom was well illustrated recently, according to a story going the rounds of the Racquet Club just now. It appears that a well-known man-abouttown who, however, has the falling of being somewhat careful of his money albeit he is more than well supplied with the world's goods, spent the night at his club playing bridge and at the end of the session found himself some $200 ahead of the game. He was so elated over his success that the next morning he called his wife upon the telephone to tell her of his good luck

"Now just what would you like to have, dearie?" he added in an unwented outburst of generosity. A reply was made and he said, Well they will cost about $50, won't they; go right ahead and get 'em."

It so happened that a friend of the couple, a famous wag and practical joker, was in the adjoining booth and overheard the conversation. Being an intimate friend of both husband and wife, he called Madame up as soon as he heard hubby ring off.

"Did you hear of Sam's streak of luck?" he asked.

"Yes." was the reply, "He's such a child, he fust phoned me to tell me all about it!" "It certainly was wonderful," continued the disciple of Machiavelli, "playing all night that way. At one time do you know he was over $1000 ahead!" "Whatat!" came an exclamation from the other end of the wire.

"Yes, indeed, and he quit $700 to the good." There was a moment of grim silence, then, Just wait till I get hold of that little tightwad. He'll get what's coming to him!"

And ever since that time husband has been trying to square himself "without making any material progress," as General Joffre telegraphs daily in his official communique to the French Government on the situation at the seat of

Although the duck shooting this year was not so good as usual at the opening of the season owing to the late autumn and the drought, the Susquehanna flats and Delaware marshes were crowded with Philadelphia's leading sportsmen, as well as with many of the rich Pittsburgh and New York clubmen. The average daily bag per gun was about 50 birds and few canvas backs were reported. Clarence and Yale Dolan, of the Rittenhouse Club, as usual, were "high" with over 100 birds on the first day. Other well-known Philadelphians who were in the sink boxes at Havre de Grace included Philip S. P. Randolph, Lynford Biddle, Alexander Van Rensselaer, Edward and Robert Toland, of the Philadelphia and Rittenhouse Clubs, and Samuel W. Trexler, George Lee Thomson, Mitchell Rosengarten and James Speare, Jr., of the Racquet Club. The New York millionaire, Roy Rainey, one of the best shots in the country, and Robert Watson, head of the Golf Association, were also on the flats. As the ducking is only permitted on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays according to law most of these gentlemen put in the alternate days shooting matches on the beautiful grounds of the Philadelphia Gun Club on the Delaware. Robert M. Drayton and Mahlon Hutchinson. of the Rittenhouse and Racquet Clubs, report excellent grouse and pheasant shooting up-State and the members of the exclusive Sora Gun Club on the Cohansey Creek obtained some good bags of ducks and a few woodcock.

The decision to hold the Army and Navy football game on Franklin Field oddly enough gave a stimulus to two totally different games, namely, court tennis and racquets. It has long been the custom to hold a series of intercity matches in these sports on the occasion of the meeting of the Army and Navy teams because nearly all the athletes of the Elast congregated here for that event. This year the matches had been dropped on account of the doubt as to whether a game would be held. Now no less than five visiting teams, all from Boston, will enter the courts against the pick of Philadelphia's racquet wielders. All the matches are to be at doubles, two being court tennis and three at racquets. The Philadelphia teams will be made up as follows: First tennis team, William H. T. Huhn, who with Jay Gould holds the doubles championship, and George H. Brooks, former racquet champion; the 2d tennis team will be composed of Edgar Scott and Wilson Potter. The three racquet teams will be picked from the following wellknown players: A. J. Drexel Paul, Robert K. Cassatt and Leo Ware, of St. Louis, who is now living in Philadelphia and who holds the doubles racqueta championship with Dwight Davis, donor of the famous international tennia trophy, known as the Davis Cup. Mesura. Bromley, Thomas Ridgway, John Mobr and Daniel Hutchinson may also figure in the

The hunt clubs of the East suffered another blow this week when it was found that the rapid spread of the foot and mouth disease had caused the Maryland authorities to put a stop to the meet at Farmington. Our own Radnor Hunt Club fell under the ban, both the hounds and horses being pieced in quarantine, as were those of the famous Green Spring Valley Hunt, of Baltimore, and the Elk Ridge Kennel Club. This means that no more hunting may be done by any of these clubs until the quarantine is lifted, nor can the members get back their mounts, which are now practically interned down in Maryland. A whole crowd of well-known Philadelphians went down to attend this meet, including Mr. and Mrs. Howard Honry, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Denckis Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Antelo Devereux, Mr. and Mrs. John Valentine and Horace Hare. M. F. H., of Radner Hunt. They are now returning disconsolately to their homes along the Chester Volley. Even the arrest of "Bun" Chew for speeding falled to lift the gloom from the "hunting set."

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

Julia Arthur has sent a check for $235 to William Faversham for the European Actors' War Relief fund. The rum is one-half the amount realized by the Julia Arthur benefit, which was given at the Boston Theatre November 4. The other half of the receipts went to the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris, Not alone was this benefit organized and managed by Miss Arthur, but shy also returned to the stage on the occasion after an absence of 16 years in Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "Mercedes." Miss Arthur has promised Mr. Faversham that she will come to New York in December to play with him in his benefit for the same

Doris Keane, now in London, has cabled that she is recovering her health and will appear in a new play in the spring, or not later than the early fall. Miss Keane was taken ill in London last summer on the eve of her departure for New York to begin her regular tour. The new play will be seen first in New York. Miss Keane will be managed by Louis Nethersole.

While motoring near Cape Town, South Africa, Laura Guerite, according to a letter recently received from her, stopped at a little inn along the seashore for refreshments. The woman who came over to take the order was none other than May Yohe. She is now running a small hotel about three miles from Cape Town.

"Freparation for war is going on all over South Africa," writes Miss Guerite. "Troop ships are leaving semiweekly, carrying many boys away from the farms and the factories They are going to war with some of the best trained men of the German army, who have been in German South Africa for years and are thoroughly acclimated and fortified with the best modern weapons of warfare.

"The Dutch farmer, known as the Low Boer, is strongly in favor of the Germans, as he has been led to believe that if the Germans win they will give back the country to the Boers." Douglas Fairbanks will not remain long in vaudeville. He brought his tour in "He Comes Up Smiling" to an end in Brooklyn recently, planning to enter vaudeville immediately in "A Regular Business Man." But the other day Selwyn & Co. engaged him for an important role in the new comedy by James Forbes, which they are soon to produce. Mme. Emma Calve will shortly come to this country. Unheraded and without preiminary arrangements she will arrive in New York toward the end of the month.

Churchill, Lady Lowther, Mrs. Harcourt and Mrs. John Astor, who are doing admirable work at the Surgical Hospital, at Paynton, in Devenshire, England, have deputed Miss Gertrude Kingston, actress and founder of the Little Theatre, in London, to organize a series of theatrical performances in New York in aid of the fund for carrying on the hospital during the war. Miss Kingston will begin on December 2 in the title role of Bernard Shaw's historical satire, "Great Catherine."

Emms Trentini has made her appearance under the management of the Shuberts in an American version of "Polenblut," which, revised, is known as "The Peasant Girl," and with Clifton Crawford as her chief support. The music is by Rudolf Frimi and Oskar Nedbal. The book is by Leon Stein and the lyrics by Herbert Reynolds and Harold Atteridge.

The adaptation has been done by Edgar Smith. Owing to the unsettled and unsatisfactory state of theatrical affairs in New York, Joseph Brooks and William A. Brady have determined to end the current engagement of "My Lady's Dress" at the Playhouse November 28. The play will be sent on tour for a short time, and will return to New York in February, to resume the local engagement at the 48th Street Theatre.

Edward Abeles has been engaged to play the feading part in a motion picture version of Henry W. Savage's comedy production, "The Million." The picture will be made under the direction of the Famous Players Film Company. Charles Frohman has received a cable saying that W. Somerset Maugham, the English playwright, is serving as a doctor with the English army at the front.
