

M'ALLISTER FREED AFTER 13 YEARS; ONE OF GIRL'S 4 SLAYERS

Paterson Man Had Been Sentenced to 30 Years for the Murder of Jenny Boss-chier in 1900.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(By Wire.)—M'Allister, son of a wealthy silk mill owner of that city, and one of the slayers of Jenny Bosschier, a mill girl, is free today after serving 13 years of a 30-year sentence in the New Jersey State Prison.

He was paroled yesterday, and accompanied by his sister, Miss Eleanor M'Allister, went to the home of her father in Paterson.

M'Allister was a model prisoner, and the keepers liked him. As he was ready to depart, he grasped the hands of Head Keeper Madden and Deputies Parker and Irwin, and tearfully bade them farewell after expressing thanks for their kindness to him.

Jennie Bosschier, who was employed in the Riverside silk mill in Paterson, owned by the father of M'Allister, was murdered on a stormy night in the winter of 1900. In the company of William Smith, George Kerr and Andrew Campbell, all young men about town in the "Silk City," M'Allister accented the girl on Main street, Paterson. She reluctantly accompanied the men to a cafe at River and Paterson streets. A drug was put into the girl's glass.

Frightened by the effect of the poison, the men hurried her into a cab. Hurrying to the office of a prominent physician, they were instructed to proceed to a hospital. Instead, they drove to the Gothic road, north of the city, where they left the girl's body, with the head crushed with rocks, on the frozen ground.

GARAGE KEEPER ACCUSES EX-CONSTABLE GILMAN

Former Attache of Call's Office
Blamed as Cause of Fight.

George E. Sattler prefaced his testimony against a prisoner arraigned before Magistrate Belcher, in the 10th and Butternut streets police station, today, with the statement that Jake Gilman, former Constable in Magistrate Call's office, was doing all in his power to wreck his garage at 1441 Mount Vernon street.

Sattler said that when Gilman became rather notorious because of the acts he committed in Magistrate Call's office, he suggested to Gilman that he keep a car from the garage. Gilman had been making the place his headquarters.

Since then Sattler stated that Gilman said that he would cripple the power plant of the garage.

Last night, Richard Stamper, 1908 North Cedar street, Charles Fryer, 725 North 16th street, and a third man, visited the garage seemingly intent upon mischief. Sattler had known the men as friends of Gilman. He ordered them from the garage, and a fight followed. Stamper was hit on the arm with a wrench and his arm was broken. Policemen Condon arrived and arrested Fryer and Stamper, but the third man escaped.

They were charged with disorderly conduct. Fryer had been in the police station about an hour when a copy of the charge, signed by Magistrate Call, calling for their release, was sent to the station.

The order to discharge was compelled by Lieutenant Sattler, who was compelled by the order to appear for a hearing this morning. He will be re-arrested. Stamper was held under $500 bail for a further hearing Monday.

The police are today investigating a fire which destroyed the building of the Empire Packing Box Company, 930 North 4th street, and threatened for a time to spread to adjoining properties.

The blaze started last night and spread rapidly. Dense columns of smoke hampered the men in their work and once when the flames were under control a leak in a gas main caused them to renew fury.

The origin of the fire is unknown and circumstances surrounding it have led to the investigation.

AMATEUR FARMERS REAP BOUNTIFUL HARVESTS

Vacant Lots Association Reports a Most Successful Season.

A banner season for the Philadelphia Vacant Lots Association has just closed, according to the crop reports being received daily by James H. Dix, superintendent.

Harvests this year broke all records, the vacant-lot gardeners reporting a bountiful supply of vegetables stored away for winter. Over 600 families—fathers, mothers, boys, girls and even grandparents—were assigned gardens this year.

Samuel S. Fels, president of the association, is looking for more space to make room for the several hundred applicants this year who were turned away because of lack of vacant lots.

The association's treasurer, Jonathan M. Steere, of the Girard Trust Company, is receiving contributions to the fund which will broaden the scope of the vacant-lot gardening work.

DECISIVE BATTLE IN MEXICO MAY BE FOUGHT NEXT WEEK

Washington Hears Armies
Are Preparing for Conflict and Military Experts Believe Villa Will Win.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The decisive battle between the Mexican factions is expected to take place about the middle of next week. Administration officials have been so informed by their agents in Mexico City and accompanying Villa's army.

Villa is pushing south as fast as possible, supported by the troops of General Alvaro Obregon, General Raul Madero and General Martiniano Servin. General Obregon, now Carranza's chief general, is moving from Mexico City to the support of General Pablo Gonzales.

Meanwhile reports received here would indicate that Zapata, with his entire force, is moving with the intention of attempting a flanking attack against the Carranzista forces.

The officials here say the Mexican leaders have concentrated their forces. Both sides have plainly planned to strike all on this one night, and the defeated army will probably be widely dispersed, while the victors will end the way to the Mexican capital opened.

On the surface it is declared in military circles here that Villa should win. He has with him the flower of his own revolutionary army, and already some 6000 former Carranzista troops have flocked to his banner.

Because of the nature of the ground, however, it is believed likely here that the battle will last for several days and will be costly to both sides.

$500,000 ANNUAL LOSS IN COUNTRY THROUGH FIRE

William C. Guerin Urges Education and Legislation as Remedy.

Another Panama Canal could be constructed with the sum lost annually through fire in the United States, according to the latest computations of insurance companies. William C. Guerin, former chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention in New York, at a meeting of the Philadelphia Safety Council, declared that $500,000 annually is lost by fire.

The meeting was held last night in the Franklin Institute lecture hall. Mr. Guerin ventured that education and legislation are needed to lessen the number of fires. The greatest number of big blazes in New York, he said, are caused by unscrupulous bands of persons, who buy property to insure and burn it, he said.

TANGO MAY COME AND GO, BUT WALTZ LIVES ON FOREVER

Dancers Are Born and Not Made, Says "La Petite
Adelaide," Who Calls
Modern Steps Easy to Learn.

"Tangos may come and tangos may go, but the waltz will go on forever. This is true regardless of all we may hear in favor of the so-called modern dances.

"Dancers, like the immortal poet, are born, and not made. Any one can learn to dance, but real dancers are few and far between."

With a twist of her dainty foot and a few graceful turns of her still more graceful body, as if to verify her assertion, Miss Adelaide, better known as "La Petite Adelaide," now appearing at Keith's, dropped a few hints on the subject of dancing before the performance this afternoon.

Dark, vivacious and sparkling with enthusiasm, Adelaide would not admit that she had all the requisites for a natural dancer. Her foot is somewhere below the "A" mark, if she may be called a size; she weighs 160 pounds. J. J. Hughes, her dancing partner, agreed that exquisite was the only proper word to describe her grace.

WALTZ COMING INTO ITS OWN.

"The real waltz is surely coming into its own," Adelaide said. "It is the prettiest dance that ever was created. As far as actual dancing enjoyment, grace and motion are concerned, the waltz even today stands alone above the rest. The 'Viennese' waltz, however, is a wonder."

"Real dancers I want to emphasize the word real—still like the waltz and always will. The one trouble with the waltz is that it is very hard to dance properly," said Mr. Hughes, who had joined "in the chorus" to add a few words in defense of the waltz.

"That may sound strange, but nevertheless it is true. Ask some of the older folks how much a good waltzer was admired in the days of yore. Many 'youngsters' who think they will lose their reputations as dancers if they do not invent a new fox-trot step every week could not dance the waltz gracefully if they lived depended on it."

"People in the dance world cannot seem to lose the one, two, three step that they learned in the beginning. They 'bobble' around the ballroom floor as the dancers, not of the dance itself, the proper waltz has a glide motion and the dancer's head should remain at the same level throughout."

"Speaking of level heads, the 'intoxication' of the waltz is world known. The motion and music are so more inspiring than in any other dance."

"The two-step was monotonous, and here in America it had a bad effect on the beautiful waltz. People wanted something new. In that respect the modern dances may have an advantage. Some of the beautiful waltzes, however, it is believed to be the first time they have had a chance to use their brains in dancing."

MODERN DANCES EASY TO LEARN.

"If more people dance the modern dances that is one point in favor of the dance. Dancing is a great thing for health and many other reasons. It is certainly a welcome sight to see both old and young young enthusiastic on the ballroom floor."

"The modern dances are easy to learn. Anybody can learn them. As has been said, the question of becoming a dancer is entirely a different proposition. Natural grace is absolutely necessary. Grace may be acquired by practice, but nevertheless the instinct is inborn. It may be it is acquired in early youth. A dancer is always graceful."

"The hesitation is the dance par excellence. It is the old Viennese waltz, slightly modified and was danced abroad long before it 'struck' this country. In fact, it was danced many years ago."

FIGHTERS OF FIRES PARADE IN HONOR OF "PREVENTION DAY"

Police and Firemen of Pittsburgh March to Impress Citizens With Necessity for Guarding Against Danger.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—Cohorts of the city fire prevention ranks, of blue-coated policemen and firemen, a squadron of volunteer firemen, a company of city officials and a winding line of decorated fire-fighting apparatus, motor and wagon fleets moved in a long procession through the city this morning, in observance of "Fire Prevention Day."

While they mobilized, thousands of school children, who observed the day in their schools with special exercises yesterday afternoon and who were made "special officers" of the Department of Public Health, were seen in the streets.

They were at work searching out combustible materials in abandoned sheds, vacant buildings and backyards, in the campaign to clean up the city and prevent future losses by fire.

At 9 o'clock this morning the West End forces, with brass band and floats, formed and marched to the downtown procession at the point of mobilization.

The procession was headed by Chief Marshall Hubbard, Mayor Armstrong, Deputy Fire Marshal J. William Morgan and Councilmen G. A. Dillinger and W. English in automobiles. Director of Public Health J. F. Edwards and County Commissioners S. J. Toole and J. Denny O'Neil followed.

The Department of Public Health was represented by a detail of sanitary inspectors, the Department of Public Works by a detail of street cleaners, many of the city's firemen, and a number of police, military and semi-military organizations were in line. S. S. Cunningham, of Franklin street, North Side, the oldest fireman in Pennsylvania, was among the marchers.

The parade moved down Webster to 6th avenue, along 6th to Grant, to 10th to 11th streets, then to 12th, to 13th, to 14th, to 15th, to 16th, to 17th, to 18th, to 19th, to 20th, to 21st, to 22nd, to
