UNNECESSARY WAR" SERB WOMEN ENLIST FORCED ON GERMANY, SAYS CROWN PRINCE

Kaiser's Heir Tells Correspondent Fatherland Was Compelled to Fight for Her National Existence.

(Copyright, 1914, by Eventon Langua) EADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF CROWN PRINCE IN FRANCE, Nov. 80. "Undoubtedly this is the most stupid, senseless and unnecessary war of modern times. It is a war not wanted by Germany, I can assure you, but it was forced on 'us, and the fact that we were so effectually prepared to defend ourselves is now being used as an argument to convince the world that we desired conflict."

In the above words Frederick Wilhelm, Crown Prince of Germany and heir to the throne of the Kaiser, prefaced the first direct statement made to the press by any member of the German royal family ince the outbreak of the war.

I arrived at the headquarters of the 5th German army shortly before midnight. At daybreak I received a call from Major Elder you Der Planits, personal alde-decamp to the Crown Prince, who stated the ATS Imperial Highness wanted to wel-come me, but that he was leaving for the firing line and would see me a little later in the day.

When, some time later, the Crown Prince returned, I was presented. He greeted me cordially.

NATION LEFT NO CHOICE. "I am a soldier and, therefore, cannot Miscuss politics," said the Crown Prince, "but it seems to me that this whole business, all of this action that you see around here, is senseless, unnecessary and uncalled for. But Germany was left no choice in the matter. From the lowest to the highest we all know that we are fighting for our existence. I know that soldiers of the other nations probably say, and a great many of them probably think, the same thing. This does not alter the fact, however, that we are actually fighting for our national life.

"Since we knew that the present war highest duty to anticipate the struggle every necessary and possible prepara-on for the defense of the Fatherland against the iron ring which our enemies have for years been carefully and stead-ily welding about us. The fact that we foresaw, and so far as possible fore-stalled the attempt to crush us within this ring and that we were prepared to defend ourselves is now being used as an argument in an attempt to convince the world that we not only wanted this conflict, but that we are responsible for

GERMAN PEOPLE A UNIT. "No power on earth will ever be able to convince our people that this war was not engineered solely and wholly with a view to crushing the German people, their Government, their institutions and all that they hold dear. As a result, you will find the German people are one grand unit, imbued with a magnificent spirit of self-sacrifice.'

The scene of our conversation was the drawing room of a small French villa, located a few miles directly back of the uniform devoid of any decorations save very small insignia of his rank as lieublack and white ribbon of the Order of treat. the Iron Cross. He carried no sword, but "The Oyed with a short swagger stick similar to those carried by English cavalry offi-

Our conversation had been in progress out a short time when it became clear to me that the Crown Prince, like 29 per cent. of the Germans I have met on the firing line and off of it, holds England responsible for the present war. The thing that impressed me most, however, was the fact that, despite the intensity. of his convictions, he displayed none of the intense hatred or the bitterness to-ward the English which I have seen manifest so constantly among people of all walks of life since the outbreak of the war. On the contrary, there was a note of regret and almost one of sadness as he discussed this phase of the great

PRAISE FOR ENEMY.

I quickly gained the impression that the Crown Prince is by no means the man he has been pictured in England and America. There is nothing of the fire- during the past week have practically eater or uncompromising warrier about him. He gave no evidence of gaining pleasure from his military experience or of delighting in the conflict. He was exceedingly generous at all times in his praise of the enemy as he had come in contact with them.

Early in the conversation the Crown Prince assumed the role of the inter-viewer and made evident his deep interest in the sentiment of America and Americans and his lack of understanding of the general attitude of our country toward Germany's position. Like a great majority of all Germans, he is unable exactly to understand why there is not more sympathy in the United States for Germany.

AMERICAN ATTITUDE PUZZLING. "There is no use nor purpose to be served by our closing our eyes," he said, "to the fact that a very large part of the world is against us. But it surprises me that America, to which we are bound by ties of friendship and blood as to no other neutral country; America, where millions of our people have gone and carried the German tongue and Ger man ideas of liberty and freedom, should be so totally unable to put themselves in our place. I would not be frank unin our place. I would not be frank tess I admitted that it has been a prize to me that Americans have seen more clearly, up to this time, the position of Germany, entirely surrounded by jealous enemies, fighting for her ex-fatence; that they have not had a better latence, that they have not had a better understanding, which would necessarily mean a higher appreciation of the unex-antited sacrifices and hereiam of our podds, making this gigantic struggle with no other objective than the saving of the Fatherland."

He attributed the attitude of America He attributed the stittude of America almost wholly to England's control of the press and the world's channels of comminication. He frankly admitted that in the past Gerulany has failed to appreciate the important role played by the press in world politics and in international affairs. He made it clear that Germany has learned a leasen in this respect and learned it at the price of being branded in the eyes of the neutral nations as a military menace to the world's peace.

War Office Reticent About Poland Battle, However, and Curbs Extravagant Expectations of Vast Vic-

PETROGRAD, Nov. 30. The left wing of the German army in Polend is in flight toward Thorn from the region of Gombin, according to the official Army Messenger. It declares that the reverse suffered by the Germans at Lods rivals the worst defeats inflicted upon them during the Napoleonic wars, and predicts that the continued advance of the Russian troops from the Bsura River in pursuit of the retiring left wing of the enemy will force the Kaiser's troops to abandon the positions they still hold in the Strykow-Sgierz-Lodz region. It also is stated that the German right wing in Southern Poland is completely cut off, and that German losses have been tremendous.

According to the official Army Messenger the German left wing contains six army corps (240,000 men), commanded by General Mackensen. Advices state that Cracow will soon be invested, unless | Soldiers Find Money Useless the Austrian troops decide not to defend the fortresses there. It is now considered unlikely, however, that this great stronghold will be surrounded without a hard struggle.

A general statement by the War Office tends to curb extravagant hopes of a vast and immediate victory. It an-

"The public should observe caution in accepting rumors of a crushing Russian victors. These rumors are based partly on private letters said to have been received from the front and made public in some of the newspapers. The rumors are not, as a whole, based on fact, and must be received with reserve.

"Undoubtedly the German scheme to pierce our front on the left bank of the Vistula has completely failed. It apself and staff. It is impossible, there-fore, to consider the operations ended, and it is necessary to await the revela-tion of its final results in the firm as-surance that the Russian troops are fully conscious of the necessity for concluding successfully their heroic efforts in order finally to shatter the enemy's resistance."

The hope of Russian arms now rests them. Don't worry, with the great reinforcements which have been rushed forward to the battle line in Poland. It is still confidently expected that the German armies on the line from the south of Plock to the region of Lodz will be completely cryshed. Terrific fight-ing has marked the efforts of the enemy to cut their way out of that region, and complete success has not yet been gained by the Russlans. The official statement declares favorable progress is still being made by the Russian forces, but it is evident that the various battles which have been going on welded themselves into one vast engagement which must soon turn one way or the other.

The army of General Mackensen is de-clared to have been virtually cut in three parts, but one section has succeeded in extricating itself from its precarious position, though only with tremendous losses.

Warm Work at the Front From a cavalry officer of the British

We have had it pretty warm the last few days. On Monday we reached a town which the Germans were attacking on the flank. Our equadron was advance guard. The troop dismounted and got into a ditch, right in front of our own battery in action. The noise was terrific. After our guns had plastered the enemy It was thought that they had retired and we were ordered to mount and advance. The country was very open, and the Germans waited until we were from 50 to 100 yards away and then let us have it. But they shot very badly. I had a ky escape, as in turning sharp to the right to avoid a morass my saddle sitpped round and I took a toss on my shoulder. But they never hit either me or my mare, and we got safely under cover.

We were forced to retire when the Germans brought up their guns against us, but we only lost two horses and had two men slightly hit.

We remained in the town for four hours while the Germans bombarded it, but their chief object was to destroy the church and clock tower.

Had another narrow squeak next morning. Found my shoulder too damaged to ride, so went with the transport, and the Germans brought guns up to within 300 yards of us. We moved pretty quickly, yards of us. We moved pretty quick but their shells chased us all down long straight road, bursting either side of us, but not doing much damage. Near nough, though!

I am resting my shoulder for a day or wo and am glad of a sleep and to get my boots off. It is getting raw and cold now. I hope to be back in action in a day

From Private Frank Forsyth, of the

Though we get money (10 france) it is absolutely useless, as the "Gare" made sure them. made sure there was nothing left in the villages in the way of food or smoke. In fact, they did not leave the standing in case they would provide shelter for us.

I was offered as much as a franc for a Voodbine, and five france is a common price to pay for a loaf of civilians' bread. It is so scarce and money of so little value. Of course, we get our rations of read (% lb.) and two biscults, but some blokes like to supplement it.

I enclose a cutting of a paper describing how we took up our present position. When we reached the top of the hills mentioned we lost six officers and about 30 men killed and wounded. We dug trenches, and are here still. Captain Berners, Lord A. Hay, and Lord Guernsey were killed in this action. were killed in this action.

We are now well supplied with news. In fact, The Daily Mall Continental Edition is given to us in the trenches on the same day of publication. I think this is something in newspaper enterprise. We suffered enormous losses during the retreat.

"The fighting, however, is not yet finished. The battle on the whole front is developing very favorably for us. The

I see Redmond is going to form an Irish Brigade. I would not care to be a German and face that lot. I'm sure it has got quite a reception in Dublin, and should give a great fillip to recruiting. Faced Shells for Seven Hours From an officer who has been wounded

We were supposed to be surrounded, but we weren't certain. The colonel called all the officers up and told us we were in a very tight corner, but we not to let the men know. He said that we should be lucky if we got out, and for the honor of the regiment and England to fight to the last man. Well, I was told off with my men, 50 altogether, to watch all night. Nothing happened until quite late in the morning, about 7 o'clock. Then I saw about a mile away, on the horizon, the Germans coming on in huge masses over a hill. At the same time their big guns opened fire with extraordinary good range. There we were under fire from these big guns for seven hours, without being entrenched for the honor of the regiment and Eng for seven hours, without being entrenched and we didn't lose a man. The shells fell as close as 10 yards away at times, but God was with us. We opened fire when they were about

1900 yards away, and that made them think a hit. They began to waver, and went back over the hill again. The shell fire went on as usual, only this time they were hitting us rather badly. We were shelled from all sides now, and you could see the men rolling over to get out of the way of huge lumps of shell, which came hurtling along the ground. It was quite funny to see them. The Germans' shells break up into huge chunks, and you can see the bits rattling along the ground.

see no infantry anywhere, as was generally the case. They cannot stand our rifle fire. Our guns had got hold of theirs by now, about 5:30 a. m., and there was a fearful row going on. I had orders to walt till 8:30 a. m., while the rest retired, and then come back myzelf. I waited till 8:45 a. m., and then collected my men, now only 17, and we went back without seeing their infantry again. Just as we were crossing a road under some trees, shells fairly poured on us, and we were covered with earth, stones and bits of trees. I was hit all over the body with various objects and knocked but got up again feeling a bit dazed, and we went on till we passed the next line of men, half a mile back. Then I was told that blood was coming ut of my boot, and that was the first

COMING SUNDAY CAMPAIGN WINNING INCREASED FAVOR

Prominent Clergymen and Laymen

Declare Their Approval. That the coming campaign of "Bhly" Sunday, the evangelist, is winning increased approval among the church people of the city, is shown by the open declaration in its favor made by prominent Protestant Episcopal clergymen and widely known laymen.

At the House of Prayer, Branchtown, the Rev. H. G. G. Vincent, the rector, yesterday explained why he was going o identify himself with the campaign. He read a number of letters from prominent clergymen and laymen stating why they are going to help the work or at least why they approve of it. Among the writers of these letters were the Rev. Dr. Floyd Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Robert John-ston, the Rev. Dr. Carl E. Grammer, the Rev. Dr. G. Woolsey Hodge, the Rev. William H. Roberts and John Wan-Doctor Hodge, rector of the Church of
