CHARITY BALL TAKES PLACE TONIGHT

Thirty-fifth Annual Ball Will Be Held Tonight at the Academy of Music, at 9 o'Clock.

The 35th annual Charity Ball will take place this evening in the Academy of Music. There will be an unusual and spectacular exposition of modern and old-fashioned dancing by amateurs and professionals, who will be judged by a voting contest. The opening feature, after the contest, will be composed of four sets of 30 couples each, representing the four beneficiaries, the surgical wards of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, the maternity department of the Jefferson Hospital, the Rush Hospital for Consumption and the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. The dancers in each set will wear the colors of the hospital they represent, which will result in a beautiful and effective color scheme. Charles S. Morgan has been coaching the dancers, and they will exhibit the latest steps in the various dances.

The University Hospital group, managed by Mrs. Thomas C. Ashton, will dance the new Castle polka. Following the group dancing there will be solo dancing, and Mrs. Ashton's set will have an exhibition of the lulu fado by two prominent professionals. The Jefferson Hospital group, in charge of Mrs. B. Dobson Altemus, will exhibit the newest variations of the fox trot. Following the group, Mr. and Mrs Quinn, professional dancers, of New York, wil do a specialty dance.

The group representing the Rush Hospital will be in charge of Mrs. Mahlon N. Kline and will dance the hesitation walts. Following the group will be a remarkable solo dance by Miss Eleanor Dougherty. She is a daughter of Judge Hampden Dougherty, of New York, and a sister of Paul Dougherty, the artist, and Waltor Hampden, the well-known actor. Miss Dougherty has been studying for some time, but this will be her first public appearance. She will do an original interpretative dance, an expression of a poetic idea through dancing and sesture. The title of the dance is "The Coming of the Sun-Night, Dawn and Day," and the theme will be carried out in three movements. Artistic spot light effects and changing of veils will carry out the transition from darkness, through dusk to daylight.

The mazurka will be danced by the group representing the Children's Hospital. Mrs. Joseph P. Hutchinson has charge of the group, which will be followed by a solo dance by Miss Leta Sullivan, who will do the old-fashioned humoresque.

J. Franklin McFadden is chairman of the Board of Directors and the committee in charge includes Leonard T. Beale, J. Somers Smith, Jr., J., Parker Norris, Jr., Dr. Hobart A.
