

A PAGE FROM THE NEWS OF THE DAY AS RECORDED BY THE EVER-WATCHFUL CAMERA MAN

RUSSIAN SHELLS BURSTING ON GERMAN TRENCHES IN POLAND

This is the first photograph received in this city clearly showing how shells appear when exploding on a line of earthworks. In this case, the Russians had not yet found the exact range, but their fire was getting hotter every minute and the Germans in these advanced trenches are already beginning to hug cover under their dug-outs. The white puffs are mostly from bursting shrapnel.

LED RAID ON ZEPPELIN PLANT
Lieutenant C. V. Sippe, of the British Aerial Corps.

CORNER GUARDIAN WHO HOLDS BACK RUSHING TRAFFIC AT BUSY SPOT

Traffic Policeman Charles J. Rosenberger, whose duty it is to maintain law and order at one of the crossings of Juniper street in front of City Hall, is having his troubles these days with crowds of shoppers, motor speed fiends and December blizzards. He is a special favorite with women pedestrians, who have learned that his upraised hand furnishes safety.

A BIG ARMFUL OF CHRISTMAS PACKAGES

Messengers and delivery boys of the big stores are already feeling the full force of the shop-early movement. But that they are in favor of it goes without saying. It means a lessening of the frantic rush on the last day.

CHARGING UP A SLIPPERY HILL IN SNOW-CLAD FLANDERS

The blizzards which have descended upon the lines of the opposing armies in Belgium have been especially severe on the Germans, who are far from their base of supplies. An outpost squad occupying a village is shown here answering an alarm to the effect that patrols of the enemy have been discovered nearby. The ice has to be kept off, no matter what the weather man sends.

PITTSBURGH'S FORMER MAYOR

Philadelphia has many prominent visitors every day, but most of them get by without being recognized. This time ex-Mayor William Magee was winged on his way up Broad street.

A GOVERNOR AND A PRESIDENT

Above is Governor Charles R. Miller, of Delaware, passing the corner of Broad and Chestnut streets, and below is William T. Hiden, retiring president of the Union League, enroute on way to the election.
