Current Influences

A MERICA'S opportunity in the develop-ment of her export trade is a favorite subject for magazine articles just now. The World's Work devotes its third war number to the "Effects on the Americas," with numerous articles regarding various South American countries and pages of alluring pletures of:

Buenos Aires, bigger than Rome, or Mad-"Buenos Aires, bigger than Rome, or Mad-rid, or Venice, bigger than any city of the so-called Latin mees except Paris. It has not only a passenger subway like New York, but also a freight subway like Chicago. It is the supply city of a great West, a kind of Chicago on the ocean, only it covers its busi-ness rush with Parisian gayety and artistle appearance," and "Rio de Janeiro, an awakened city, a city that made a great plan for itself, like Chi-cago and San Francisco, and then carried it out." (1).

Charles Sumner Hamiln, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, in "What We Are Trying to Do to Encourage Trade Between South America and the United States" (1), describes the foreign relations feature of the Federal Reserve act.

James H. Perkins, vice president of the National City Bank, the largest financial institution in this country, tells "What the National City Bank Is Trying to Do" (3);

"For commercial expansion in the South American field there is a distinct need for our own banking facilities, but under our previous laws it would have been nocessary to form an independent organization, with large capital, to be on anywhere near equal terms with the banks already established there by other countries. The Federal Re-serve Act has made it possible, however, to establish in a foreign country a branch of a United States institution, placing behind the branch the resources and prestige of the parent institution. The directors of the bank in June authorized an application to the Federal Reserve Board for the privilege of establishing a branch at Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, and one at Rio de Ja-neiro, Brazil. It is expected that the bank will be in operation by the time this is printed." "For commercial expansion in the South

C. F. Carter, in "Building Up an "Export Trade" (4), suggests reasons for the United States not having been more successful in southern export trade:

"United States Consuls in South America are under the constant necessity of remind-ing would-be exporters that if they expect ing would-be experters that if they expect orders they must send salesmen, and not peddlers, to call upon pollshed and punctil-lous Latin-Americans; that it is a waste of postage to mail catalogs, form letters and other literature in English to business men who speak no language but Spanish, Portu-guese or French, and other things equally elemental." elemental."

Our Merchant Marine

Closely associated with the export trade is the question of a merchant marine. Burton J. Hendrick writes:

"As a result of the European war the American nation is experiencing one of its periodical searchings of heart on the sublect of an American merchant marine.

Mr. Hendrick gives details of the legislation which has made it impossible for an American marine to compete with other nations. He quotes a Captain Dollar:

"Who figured out precisely what it costs to carry the American instead of a foreign flag? American laws insist that he shall keep a third assistant licensed engineer at $80 a month, an expense foreign owners can es-

"In admitting foreign built ships to American registry and in suspending the law re-quiring that all watch officers shall be American cluzens, a beginning has already been made. We have at last file policy of 'free ships' advocated for so many years as the solution of our commercial problem."

Another writer, Jennette Ginsaberg, so-versly criticises this same legislation (5)

quoting the comment of Senator McComber from the floor of the Senate:

"I would suggest to the Senate: "I would suggest to the Senator that at least we cught to amend the Ulle to "A Bill for the Relief of the United Fruit and the Standard Oll Companies." Bo far as has been shown up to the present time, theirs are the only two lines of ships that would come under this hill and would receive American registration."

Brokers and Missionaries

The Spectator, a weekly Insurance Review, commenting on the panicky situation all over the country this fall, as a result of the war, which at first hit the insurance agents rather hard, gives a table gotten up by the New York Life Bulletin (7). The table gives an alphabetical list of all imaginable occupations, and all classified under three numerals, as follows: 1. Benefited by the war: 1, Neither benefited nor injured; 3, injured more or less.

No summaries were given, but having the curiosity to make them, it appeared that there were 50 benefited, 209 neither benefited nor injured, and 21 Injured. It was encouraging to think of 50 classes of people being bens fited by the war, until one noticed that among the 50, each counting as a separate class, were the following: authors, writers, editors, journalists, reporters, and newspaper reporters.

American Ambulance Hospital in Paris Greatly Aided by Large Ball Last Night.

The ambulance ball, given last night as wind-up to the second day of the Made-In-America fete at Horticultural Hall, surely belied its name, for, certainly, from all appearances, no affair given recently has had a healthier attendance.

A novel dance which was introduced last night was the Tipperary trot, interpreted by Miss Nancy Coleman and William DuBarry. It consiats of a number of very gentle gliding steps. ending in a little trot to double time. While dancing, Miss Coleman busily plied her knitting needles. Needless to say, the dancers were most enthusiastically applauded.

Exhibition dances were also given by Miss Frances Hoar and Andrew Wheeler, Jr. Miss Anne Williams, of Baltimore, and Charles P. Davis, who did a maxixe trot, and Miss Ella Brock and Joseph DuBarry, who danced the fox trot. The dancing of Miss Brock and Mr. DuBarry brought round after round of applause. for it was indescribably graceful, and in the swifter movements the feet of the couple scarcely seemed to touch the floor. Miss Brock, in her little freck of pale-blue Pompadour silk. looked like a piece of Dresden china.

Among these present were Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emilen Newbold, Jr., Mrs. Sidney P. T. Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Sinoy B. He has to have three men regularly employed as oliers, at $50 per month each, whereas, on foreign ships, storekeepers, donkeymen and other employes do the oll-ing. On his American ship, three water tenders sit in the fireroom and do nothing but draw wages which they do not earn; on foreign ships, they are unknown. Unlike English and German masters, he has to em-ploy four quartermasters at $55 a month each. These annual charges for function-aries, unknown to a foreign steamship, rep-resent an extra outlay of $8726. "There are other expenses. American sys-tems of measurement differ from English and German, greatly to the disadvantage of the Americans—with proportionate increase in charges for pilotage, wharfage, dockage and dry docking. As a result of these several charges, American registry on the vessel in question costs an additional $17,236. Merely changing the flag to English or German means saving identically that amount every year. This is 5 per cent, on $444,720—more than the cost of a good export cargo vessel. A saving of this not only means dividends; it means protection from absolute bank-rupty. means protection from absolute bank ruptcy.

And Congress, judg-ing from the progress of the Furuseth labor union bill last winter, far from mitigating this situation, is preparing to add other burdens."

An article in the last number of the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, by Florence Kelley, well known for her legislative work in connection with the Consumers' League, on "Women and Social Legislation" (5), gives the reverse attitude on marine legialation. She writes:

attitude on marine legislation. She writes: "We who are of the great nation of trav-elers might reasonably be expected to care for anfety at sea. Such is, bowever, not our record. Even the loss of the Titanic caused only a ripple of interest in social legislá-tion of this character. Following that mon-strous destruction of human life, Congress contented itself with requiring continuous wireless service, with two certificated wire-less operators on board ships leaving our harbors. There is unceasing influential ef-fort to relax even this slender improve-ment, and this nation will be fortunate beyond its deserts if, at the close of the present Congress, our statutes de not as-aure us less safety at sea, rather than more."
