Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fogt, of Ocean City, formerly of this city, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. L. Mahaffey.

ALTHOUGH clothes for Southern wear seem to be filling the shops, late winter garb is not altogether neglected. For after all, the percentage of those who will shortly desert the city for warmer climates is very small, and those who remain are quite as much interested in their appearance as the remaining inclement days.

Mrs. John C. Gilpin, who will be remembered as Miss Lucy Danton, looks well in a brown suit of duxynite cloth, made on extremely plain lines. The coat is short in front, having a vest of brown, and cut quite long in the back. Mrs. Gilpin wears a brown chignon waist and quite a large sailor-shape hat of black velvet, with two pompons of marten fur hanging loosely on the edge.

Mrs. Frank Byrd Gummy was seen lately wearing a handsome street suit of black broadcloth. Following the mode of the hour, the skirt is full, the coat knee-length and trimmed with lynx fur cuffs and collar.

A touch of color is given by a close-fitting hat of tango green felt, which has a hand of fur and a pompon of the same.

Dark blue has become unusually popular, especially with the debutantes, for street wear.

FRANKFORD

Mrs. John Dale, of Russellville, is the guest of Mrs. E. F. Daugher, of 278 Frankford avenue, for a few weeks.

Miss Elinor Flood wears a good-looking navy blue coat suit. The coat has the popular narrow-shoulder effect and is slightly short-waisted. Brown fur is used on the collar. Miss Flood's hat is a sailor-shape of white bengaline silk with a wreath of tiny flowers encircling the crown.

A girlish suit of tan cloth is worn by Miss Elizabeth Wister. Plain lines are particularly effective in this costume, the coat being narrow across the shoulders and slightly short-waisted, with the ever-popular three-quarter effect. Blue fox furs are worn, which are becoming to Miss Wister's brilliant coloring. Her hat is a toque of tan velvet, worn slightly to one side.

Mrs. B. Dobson Atemus wears to afternoon affairs a stunning coat suit of heavy black cloth. The skirt is plain, but the coat is exceptionally odd and smart. There is a yoke effect in the back, below which is a full cape of the goods gathered on to the yoke at the shoulder line. A 12-inch band of sea fur finishes the coat, which reaches to the knees. Seal is also used on the deep cuffs and high standing collar. A chic black hat, which is close fitting, finishes this striking costume.
