Not Quite

Some earnest bystander seems to have evolved the thought that we have given organized ball a clean bill of health.

O. B.'s Mistake

The game's big mistake was in the working arrangement of the National Commission.

Good Night! They touted Reich to be a peach. They said he liked to wade in gore; But Reich met Flynn, ah! what a sin, Another "Hope" has gone before.

Some New York writers have been consuming newspaper columns by the mile to tell what a wonderful fighter this Reich young man had become and how he was going to sweep the other white hopes before him.

Long May We Rule

It hasn't been so many years since baseball, football, boxing and field and track sports comprised the outside boundaries of the whole field of sport.

Philadelphia, however, still needs a really big amateur sports club, one with a membership sufficiently large to employ a crack trainer; a club whose meets, like those of the Irish-American and New York A. C., will

The Player's Part

With improvements to be made the player must also furnish his share of the same. What have those defending the player to say in regard to those players who break training, loaf, sulk, jump signed contracts and bowl out umpires as an alibi for their own mistakes?

The Wooden Temperament

Colonel B. L. T., of the more than esteemed Chicago Tribune, says the wooden temperament is the best temperament for winning golf.

Imagination's Part

And a still harder blow at sportive success is the possession of an active imagination.

Not a Prediction

The wise man does not knock the Phils. Nor call the team a cellar tenant. Before the race, for 'spite of ill it may go out and win the pennant.

Unsent Telegrams

There hasn't been a single reply to previous requests for enlightenment under this heading, wherefore today's wire is not being sent to President Gilmore, of the Feds, in jingle form, thus:

Say, Gil, we haven't had a line For many days beyond a week, For information now we pine About your Philly club, oh, Speak.

Good Luck to You, Boyal

Ted Meredith, world's middle distance runner; Don Lippincott, Joe Lockwood, Kaufman, Horter, Foster, Gillen, Haney, Johnnie Gallagher, E. Gallagher, Foster and L. Schofield are entered to compete under the colors of the Meadowbrook Club of the Wanamaker store, in the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden, New York city, tonight, and it is pretty certain the locals will not come home empty handed.
