OLD 'COP' PLAYERS BAT OUT YARNS OF FAST BILLY SUNDAY

A Real Baseball Revival of Fond Memories Was Stirred Up by Arrival of Evangelist.

The appearance of "Billy" Sunday in Philadelphia was the cause of a baseball revival among the old-time ball players who still live in this city. Those old-time stars like "Billy." They say he was on the level. They remember the trick plays that he made, and are always ready to call "Billy" the ball player's friend.

Perhaps the greatest revival of all was among the old stars that are now on the police force. When George Washington Bradley saw "Billy" he jumped right in the game again. Johnny Hofford, at City Hall, thought it was time for the game to begin, while Bill Farmer looked around for a bat. Lieutenants Bausewine and Zinn thought they would make a pretty good battery, and the old game was played all over again, in memory at least.

George Bausewine, who is now lieutenant of the 19th District police, and who at one time was a pitcher on the Athletic baseball team, was among the first to hear Sunday preach.

"Billy" Sunday was as good a ball player as he is a preacher, and as a preacher he is a wonder," the lieutenant said. "I knew him well when he was playing the game, and his speed made him a wonder. He was the fastest man in the game, and his record of 14 seconds for running around the bases made the old boys take a lot of notice.

"We all liked him because he was on the level. He was an exemplary fellow in every way. Everybody had confidence in him, and he was the friend of all the players, and, by the way, I never heard of any ball player that went to 'Billy' Sunday that did not get any thing that he asked for.

A WONDERFUL FIELDER.

"Billy" was a wonderful fielder. I saw him make many a daring play on both the old grounds at 24th and Columbia avenue and up at Broad and Huntingdon streets. When it came to batting his speed gave him hits that no other man could have possibly made. 'Billy' was fast from the time that he began playing the game, but his batting averages were boosted a lot after the rule that compelled the pitcher to stand still went into effect.

"The Chicago team that he started out with was a real ball club. There were stars in those days on that team, and they knew how to play ball. They won championships and were a popular lot. There were several high livers and sports on the team, and their life was pretty strenuous.

"Sunday had a slight build, and I used to wonder if he could stand the hard pace that he had to go through with his big team mates. 'Billy' was a clean liver as far back as I can recall and kept in good physical condition. His nerve helped him to do the rest. 'Billy' was one of the nerviest men that every played the game.

"I have seen him dive for a ball and go head on into the fence. It must have hurt, but he would get right up and go on as though nothing had happened. His nerve made him popular with the fans as well as the players, and there are few men that have ever played the game that were better liked than 'Billy' Sunday."

NEVER FORGETS A BALLPLAYER.

Lieutenant Frank Zinn, of the Manayunk police, was a catcher on the Athletics when Sunday was playing ball. The lieutenant is a great admirer of the evangelist, and pays a tribute to "Billy's" speed when he says that he feels sure that a lot more bases would have been stolen on him with "Billy" Sunday in the American Association instead of in the National League.

Every day that "Billy" goes to the tabernacle the man that greets him first is an old-time ballplayer. George Washington Bradley, who, back in the 80's, was the guardian of third base for the Cleveland team, is now one of the policemen detailed at the tabernacle. "Billy" has been out of the game for 25 years, but he recognized Bradley as soon as he saw him when he was entering the tabernacle for the first service of the campaign.

"Howdy, George!" greeted "Billy."

"Howdy, Mr.—Howdy, 'Billy'!" George returned, and as the evangelist passed through the door some one heard Bradley say, "A great man, that man Sunday."

SCRAPPLE

TIRED OF HER.

Loquacious Visitor—I have the most wonderful trousseau. It is simply gorgeous. You ought to see me in my going-away costume!

Hostess—I wish I could!

—Punch Bowl.

Waitress—How did you find the apple pie, sir?

Diner—I moved the bit of cheese aside and there it was.

THE PADDED CELL

"The only trouble with the pace that kills," said the pessimistic person, "is that it doesn't kill enough of them."—Penn State Froth.

Waiter—What sauce will you take wis your fish, sair?

Polite customer—Well, what disinfectants have you?—Punch.

IT'S EASIER SAID THAN DONE

ASSERTING HER RIGHTS.

Dotty (after a scolding)—Now don't think, Daddy, that just because you married Mamma you have a right to be rude to all women!

—Lampoon.

"'Sno use, Irene; you'd better come down and let me in; I know you're home, 'cause I see the light in your window!"

Husbands Are Such Brutes

Mrs. Shye—Boo-hoo—I haven't a thing to wear but this crepe de chine and it's a poor excuse.

Mr. Shye—A thin excuse, you mean.—Florida Times-Union.
