A very interesting case to holders of real estate lying within the zone of a section where a change of grade has taken place, not however, in front of the property.

The property is at 3234 North Gratz street, and the owner contended that his holding was decreased in value by the fact that the grade at the intersection of Gratz and Westmoreland streets was a drop of nine feet and that this grade extended to 3230 North Gratz street, where by a gradual diminution it ran out.

Both sides claimed they had given consideration to the removal of the dangerous grade crossing, the city witnesses claimed it was of benefit to the property under consideration.

ZUDORA A GREAT MYSTIC STORY BY HAROLD MACGRATH

Zudora to left an orphan at an early age. Her father, a knight in a gold surcoat, had been slain in a battle with a giant.

CHANG entered Mills' automobile, and a plain clothes man recognized him and immediately warned Storm and the other officers to watch Chang's house.

Arriving home, he at once conferred with Hassam All and was glad to learn that Zudora had been confined to the walled room.

"I think that before I smoke I will see the young lady," said Chang, smiling. Hassam All smiled, too. In his mind's eye he was counting up the enormous pyramids of gold coin.

"I hear automobiles," he said suddenly and with apprehension. Chang placed a hand to his ear. "And they are stopping in front! I will take care of the girl, and see that you play the part of Wu Chang well. This is a critical moment. It may be the police. Speak softly and knowest as often as possible."

MAN OUT OF WORK GIVES HIS VIEWS ON CAUSE OF IDLENESS. Blacksmith Says Rich Manufacturers Here Employ Labor in Other Places to Save Expenses.

John F. Tobin, a blacksmith, is out of work. He is president of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers. Today he had no hesitation in stating just why he is out of work. He said:

"The rich people of Philadelphia are directly responsible not only for the fact that there are 190 blacksmiths out of employment in Philadelphia, but as well that they are so miserably off. If the blacksmiths whose wives and daughters head these relief committees and get their names in the newspapers a dozen times a day and shine in society and the churches as being devoted to charity, talk about us workmen being considered by them as their fellow-men, why, would you not think that we would be willing to work for them for a week, making non-transferable goods, they could and would relieve the situation? We do that, though. They won't turn a wheel, but keep the plants closed down and let the thousands starve and conspire toward the continuance of the depression."

"Metal workers in this city cannot compete with that sort of labor. But there are several mills in Philadelphia that make just the castings and parts that these country mills turn out. But are they running these days? They are all closed down, because the rich owners of the big mills that use the parts and assemble their machines will not pay a penny or two more, buy home-made materials and help the high-class laboring man of Philadelphia keep the wolf from the door."

"I say that the people who selfishly and deliberately contribute toward this famine of work and food ought to be shown up and condemned for the benefit of the nation." Tobin made this statement in answer to the query why so many metal workers are out of work. He believes the situation hopeless for a good many months.
