WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Administration intends to lay its cards on the table in the Government ship-purchase fight. Both President Wilson and his Secretary of Commerce, it became known today, plan to show the public the "inside" of the opposition to the measure—"to show Mr. and Mrs. Common People just what the ship bill means to them in the way of dollars and cents," as one Democrat put it.

That the opposition is largely a political play will be the charge. The country will be asked to register its disapproval of obstructionist tactics in the Senate; and will be asked if it desires to have Congress sit in extra session to have the program completed.
