GERMAN TORPEDOBOAT AND SUBMARINE FLOTILLA ON WATCH OUTSIDE THE HARBOR OF THE NAVAL BASE AT KIEL.
This mosquito fleet maintains constant guard outside this important station to prevent a possible raid by a British cruiser squadron that might attempt to thread the maze of mines that covers the North Sea. It also acts as a screen thrown out in front of the Kaiser's own cruiser squadron when it creeps out for a sudden dash on the English coast. These small craft are the antennae of the huge vessels which lie peacefully at anchor within, but which are full of potential energy.

ENGLAND PREPARES FOR MORE ZEPPELIN VISITS
The ever-enterprising real estate agent has seized the opportunity to advertise this unparalleled opportunity to get in under the ground floor, as the photograph of a sign noted by a roadside indicates. Bomb-proof cellars threaten to be a costly luxury.

THEY ARE RIDING BACKWARDS, BUT FOR A REASON
British cavalry regiments have taken a leaf from our Spanish war book and their recruits are now put through a course of Rough Rider sprouts. A trooper must learn to ride a horse in all possible positions.

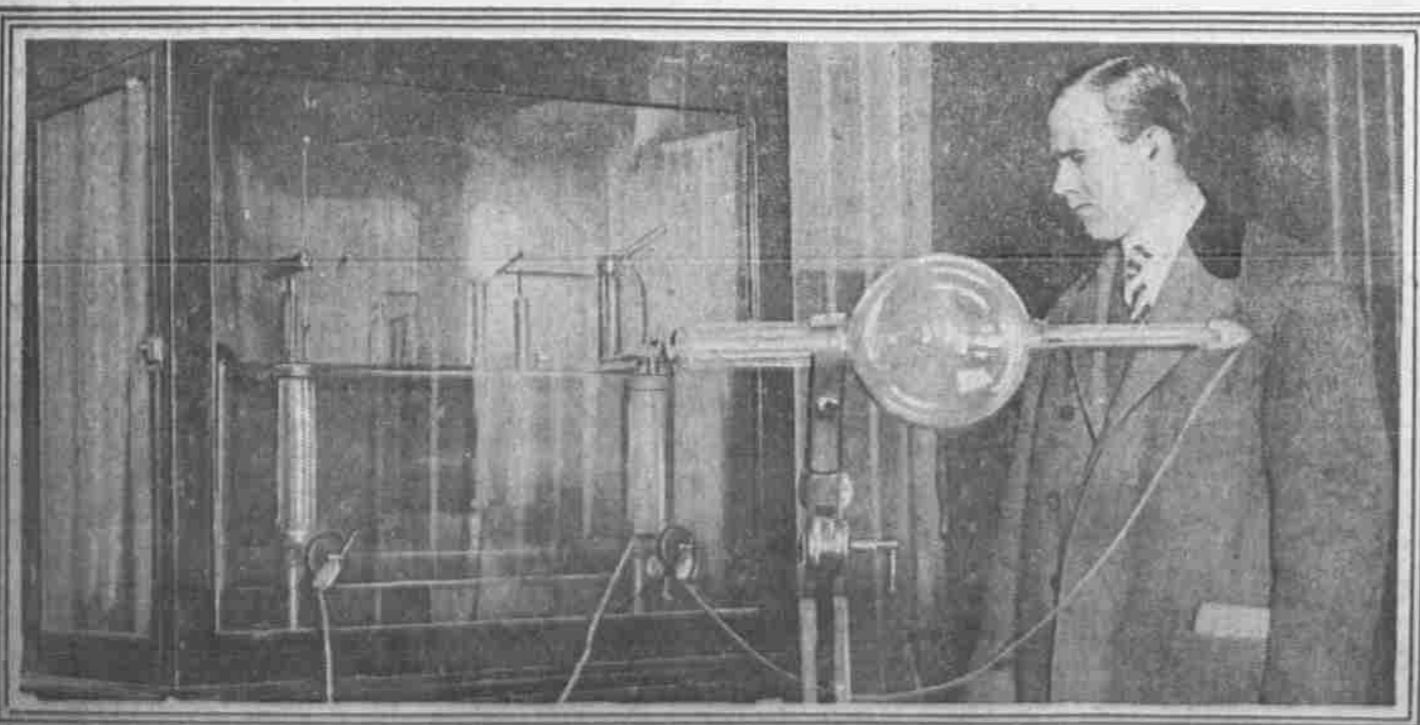

MRS. ELIZABETH McVITTY
Formerly the wife of E. Q. McVitty, clubman and polo player of Bryn Mawr, in her garb as a nurse attached to the American Hospital, Paris. The picture was taken in Cette, where Mrs. McVitty is stationed. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. McFadden, of Glenside.

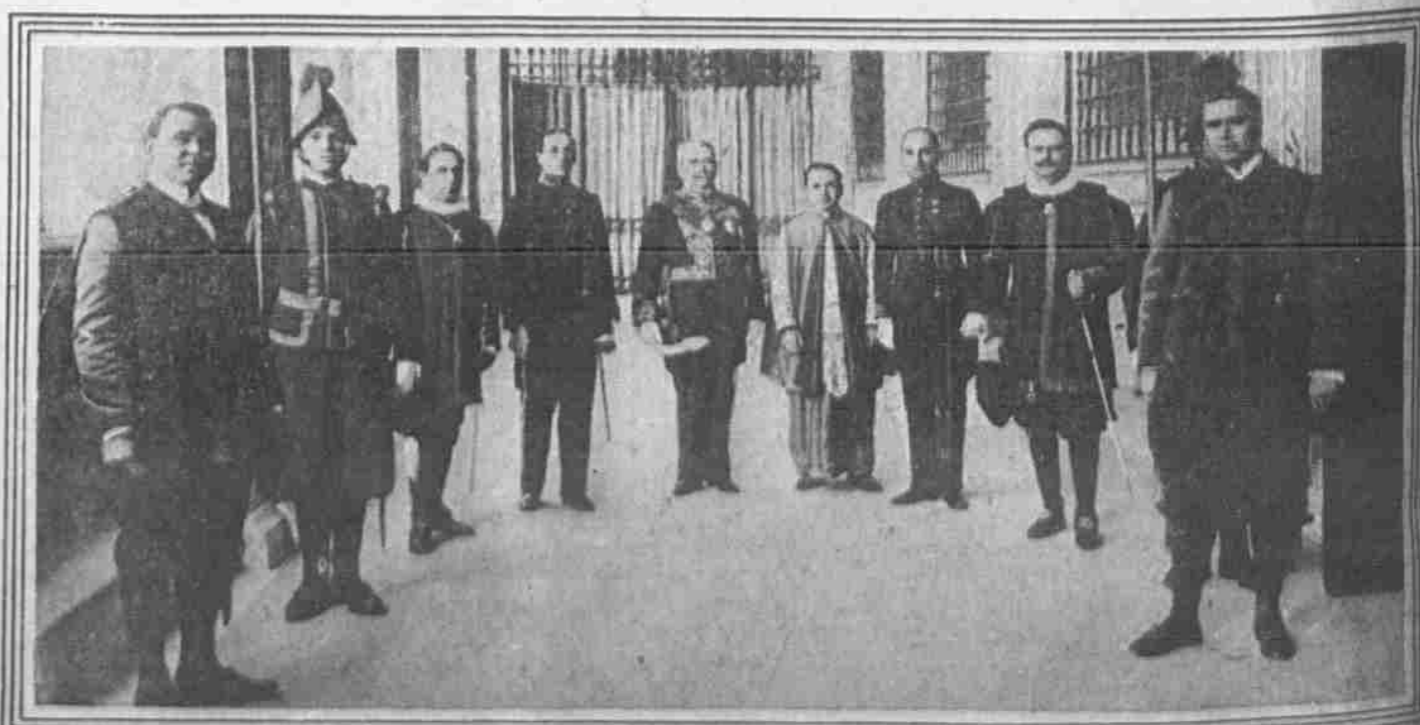

FRENCH SOLDIERS CALL FOR MAIL AT TRENCHTOWN POSTOFFICE
This picture reveals the completeness of the earthwork fortifications that have grown up where the rival armies have faced each other for many months and where they expect to face each other for many months more. Some of these dug-outs are quite luxurious.

RUSSIAN BUYERS OF WAR MUNITIONS HERE
These are members of the commission expending a $30,000,000 loan in this country. Colonel Goljewski, at the left, is the military attache at Washington. C. J. Medzikowski, on the right, is also well known at the capital. The Commission has been working with great secrecy.

AN X-RAY DETECTOR OF CONTRABAND WAR ARTICLES
M. Dean Allen is said to be using this apparatus at the Boston Customs House for the purpose of revealing contraband material that may be hidden in cotton bales or other bulky packages. The most innocent looking shipment gives up the secret of its false heart when the searching rays are turned on.

SIR HENRY HOWARD RECEIVED AT THE VATICAN
The British Envoy is shown surrounded by members of the papal family and the Swiss Guard. The agitation over the sending of this mission to the Pope has not yet died down in certain European circles, it being a step unprecedented for many years.
