

BOY SCOUTS

PRIZES FOR MAP-DRAWING.

The EVENING LEDGER will give a prize of $1 for the best map drawn by a Boy Scout from the data given hereafter in the article by Mr. Potts, and a prize of 50 cents for the second best map. The maps will be graded on accuracy and neatness. Scouts should observe the following directions: Draw maps on a scale of 800 feet to the inch; use pen and ink on white paper; write name, age, address and troop number on back of paper; mail to reach Boy Scout Editor, EVENING LEDGER, not later than Tuesday evening, February 2. A cut of the prize-winning map and the names of the winners will be published Friday, February 5.

Map Making

By GEORGE O. POTTS

Assistant Scoutmaster, Troop 65. It has been my experience that most of our boys know little or nothing about map-making and map-reading. A map that is not accurate is almost as useless as no map at all. The use of a map which we believe to be accurate, but which may lead to serious difficulty. Harbort Footner, in his trip to the Hay River region of Canada in 1911, based his food supply on an inaccurate map, only to find that at a certain point where he expected to find provisions he was lost in a dense wilderness.

If we were traveling through an arid country and our map showed that the next water was a short distance away, a given compass direction, and we depended on that to gauge the amount of water we should carry with us, we would be in a pretty bad fix if we discovered that both the distance and the compass direction were wrong. While it is hardly probable that any of the boys' maps will determine life or death, it is nevertheless a good policy to "be prepared" and know how to make an accurate map.

I am going to tell you how this can be done with simple tools and equipment, such as any scout should have on his person on any hike.

Accurate compass directions and correct scale are the two most important things in a map. The scale is the stated distance which is represented by any distance on the map. Thus, if the scale is one mile (1760 yards) to the inch, a stream 30 yards wide would be shown on the map as about one-eighth of an inch.

The more accurate the instruments, the more accurate the data and the better the map will be. The instruments needed are a compass, a transit, three hands, a pencil and a notebook. The hands should be straight sticks, 2 inches thick and 4 feet long, and peeled of bark so they can be seen a great distance. A simple transit can be made with a board 15 inches long, two pegs, 2 inches high, and a piece of string. (See diagram.)

We will now imagine that we are mapping a section of country which is bounded on one side by a road, on another by a stream, on another by a railroad, on another by a fence and on the other by a trail through the woods to the point of beginning. Call the starting point Bench Mark No. 1, or B.M. 1. It is let us say, in the center of the road opposite telegraph pole No. 66. Place the transit on an upright wand over this spot and send two boys down the road with the other wands, one of them about 20 feet away and the other just as far as you can see the wand. By sighting along the string of the transit, like a gun-barrel, establish a straight line by signaling to the boys to move the wands so that the transit and the other two wands are in a straight line. Then establish the compass direction by putting the compass directly under the string of the transit. Measure the distance from B.M. 1 to B.M. 2.

SIDE VIEW OF TRANSIT

tance from the transit to the wand and record this and the compass direction in your notebook. Now repeat the operation from B.M. 2, where the third wand was placed, and again and the other wands have completed the round. When you have finished your notes record as follows:

B.M. 1, centre of road opposite telegraph pole No. 66, 52 feet N. N. W. to B.M. 2, centre of wooden bridge crossing small creek. Telegraph line on right of road. From B.M. 2 50 feet E. N. E. to B.M. 3, centre of creek bed at junction of small brook running from spring 150 feet S. S. E. to B.M. 4, 125 feet E. to B.M. 5, centre of creek bed. Marshy ground on south side of creek from B.M. 2 to B.M. 4. From B.M. 4 125 feet E. N. E. to B.M. 5, centre of concrete bridge over railroad. From B.M. 5 125 feet S. S. W. to B.M. 6, centre of track opposite smooth-wire fence. Single track line. From B.M. 6 25 feet S. S. W. along fence to B.M. 7, large pine tree at junction of track. From B.M. 7 along trail in general direction W. by N. 45 feet to point of beginning.

DAILY "GOOD TURNS"

A woman was struggling with a heavy basket on the Lancaster street near 5th street Wednesday. "Can I help you, lady?" asked David Meltzer, 13 years old, 22 De Lancey street, of Troop 55. She said, "Yes, this basket is so heavy." He carried it to a car for her.

Morris Finkle, 12 years old, 128 North 4th street, a new member of Troop 110, gave four pennies to a poor old man who came to his house Wednesday. "I don't think he went to saloons," said the scout.

Jacob Gelfand, 12 years old, 136 Cypress street, saved a little girl from being run down by a trolley car on his way home from school Wednesday. He pulled her off between Spruce and Pine streets, he noticed the girl walking directly toward an approaching car and looking in another direction. When he reached her the car was 10 feet away. He pushed her off the track as the car went by with brakes grinding. Gelfand is a member of Troop 55.

Arthur Braunstein, 12 years old, 325 Fitzwater street, who is going to join Troop 12, helped a woman who fell with a heavy basket at 3d and Fitzwater streets Thursday. He put the basket on a car for her.

Every day David Aukburg, 14 years old, 31 North 22d street, carries messages for the clerk at the Northern Liberties School. He belongs to Troop 110.

William McKnight, 12 years old, 2343 North Park avenue, of Troop 22, put a blanket on a horse at the Northern Liberties School Thursday. He put the blanket on 8th and Arch streets yesterday.

Bernard Bradley, 12 years old, 1412 Wood street, a new scout in Troop 12, helped a blind man across the street at 8th and Arch streets yesterday.

A. Joseph Kanevsky, of Troop 55, gives a lamp or two of sugar to the horse of the mounted policeman at 8th and Chestnut streets every day. The horse knows Joe a block away. He believes in Boy Scouts.

George White, 12 years old, 1135 Nevada street, of Troop 32, helped another boy pick up a drunken man who fell down on the street yesterday.

W. W. Zimmerman, of Troop 51, applied for a job to a boy who had his car turn loose in a tangle Wednesday. He put chloride of mercury on the wound and bandaged it.

Troop 132-3-4-5 Rallies

Scouts Hess, Schaffer, Bishop, Walker and Ernst, of various troops, showed the 80 members of the newly-formed troop, 132-3-4-5, how to make fire without matches at a rally at 1715 Germantown avenue last evening. Scout Max Kandel mounted the human pyramid, received signal messages. Speakers were Alexander M. Wilson, Assistant Director of Public Health and Charities; Deputy Commissioner Patton, Scoutmaster Littlefield, of Troop 132, and John Paul Jones, scoutmaster-at-large.

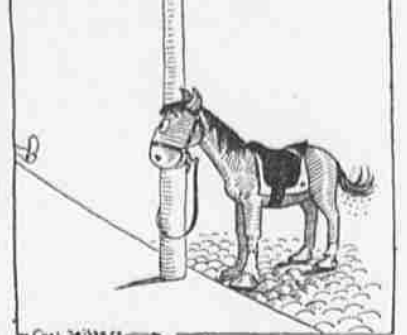

Tests at Headquarters

Signaling, pathfinding and bugling tests will be given at headquarters February 1, 3 and 5, it was announced today.

Indian Hunt Plans

The committee in charge of the Indian Hunt, which will be held by all city troops February 22, will meet at headquarters Tuesday, February 2, to make final plans for the event.

Competition is keen among the Boy Scouts of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, who are obtaining subscriptions to several well-known magazines for a free trip to the Panama-Pacific Exposition via the Panama Canal next summer.

Policeman's horse sees daily lump of sugar coming. He believes in good turns.

summer. A chart showing the daily progress of the contestants has been installed in the building of the association, under whose auspices the contest is being conducted. Every scout who secures 200 subscriptions will be given a trip.

Old Troop 49 will reorganize under Scoutmaster George J. Sauerbrun on February 4. The meeting will be held at 23d and Christian streets.

Troop 110 elected Scout Schwartz scribe, Scout Stevenson treasurer and Scout Nelson sergeant-at-arms at its meeting at Frankford avenue and Thompson street Wednesday evening.

County Scout News

The 3d annual pilgrimage of the Delaware and Montgomery County Boy Scouts to Valley Forge February 22, was decided upon at a meeting of the Scoutmasters' Committee at the City Club Monday evening.

Jack Dearden, William McIntyre, Paul Kallenbach, Hammond Armstrong, Edwin Armstrong and Kenneth Scruff, the Eagle Scout Patrol of the Ashbourne troop, have been formed into a class for advanced woodcraft by Scoutmaster George Wagner. The course, which will last two or three months, will lead to two honors, the pioneer and the woodman honors. Wilford Daly was elected a member of the Ashbourne troop at the last meeting.

"Mike" Dorizas, the University of Pennsylvania's champion intercollegiate wrestler, Monte Cross, one-time famous shortstop of the Athletics, and Charles Durbow, the well-known swimmer, will address Troop 18 at St. John's Lutheran Church, Race street, near 8th street, this evening at an athletic meeting. Prizes will be given to the winners of bandaging and signaling contests.

Scoutmaster Pancoast, of West Philadelphia, spoke to Division C, Wednesday evening on first aid and bandaging, and Bernard R. Fischer, patrol leader in Hala Troop 2 (the Buckskin Troop), spoke on "Clean Living." Scoutmaster Joseph J. Pancoast and 10 of the scouts on a night "hike" in his automobile. Young Jack O'Brien gave Division A and C a few points in boxing in an exhibition last Friday evening, sparring and showing several scouts "pointers" in the art of self-defense. On the previous Monday Mrs. Edith W. Pierce, the only woman Highway Inspector in Philadelphia, told the members of Division B how it could be kept clean, the city's streets clean. She also spoke on "good turns." "Mike" Dorizas has promised to address the troop, who already knows him well—especially one boy, whom he called the champion wrestler once threw high up into the air and caught as he came down.

Troop 64, under Assistant Scoutmaster Lawrence Sacks, was the guest of Troop 26, at 8th and Wolf streets, Tuesday evening, when "Roughing It With the Scouts," Deputy Commissioner Patton's illustrated lecture, was given. After the entertainment Troop 64 took the inspection prize. Assistant Scoutmaster Joseph King, of Troop 26, who is physical instructor at the League Island Navy Yard, put his troop through setting up exercises, and Assistant Scoutmaster Sacks led his troop in a military drill. The latter has been elected honorary assistant scoutmaster of Troop 26.

Bird Life Lectures for Scouts R. M. Schiele, of the Commercial Museum, has offered his services to scoutmasters for lectures on bird life before troops. The lectures, which are illustrated by lantern slides, describe the life of the birds in and about Philadelphia, among whom Mr. Schiele has spent several years of observation and study. Hikes through woods and fields, which would, perhaps, otherwise prove uninteresting, are turned into measures through a knowledge of the feathery folk met on the march.

One new scout was added to Troop 12 at its last meeting at the Church of the Saviour, 8th and Chestnut streets. He is Herbert Brook. Those who welcomed him were Scoutmaster H. E. Watts, Patrol Leaders Jesse Witmer, Edward Delaney and James Lee, Assistant Patrol Leaders Edward Blank, Olan Chekerman and Joe Curry, Bugler Dick Wells, Mascot Little Chekerman and Scouts Joe Ahern, Clifford Brown, Thomas Colby, William Carroll, Franklin Copeland, William Carter, Edward Dobbins, John Earle, Joe Heywood, Harry Loehner, James Martin, William McCullough, Stuart Robinson and Joe Smith.
