RELIGIOUS LIBERALS SAY MANY CHURCHES ARE WASTING EFFORT

Rev. Samuel Eliot Tells Congress of National Federation There Are "Too Many Superfluous Christians.

Speaker Asserts Spirit of Age Has Grown Weary of Theological Controversy and Needs Application of Principles Which Christ Taught.

A mixture of conservatism and radicalism is the ideal of religions, in the opinion of the Rev. Samuel Eliot, of Boston, president of the American Unitarian Association, who declared there were "too many superfluous Christians" throughout the country in his address today before the National Federation of Religious Liberals at the Friends' Meeting House, 15th and Race streets, assembled in this city for the fifth annual congress of the federation.

Doctor Eliot declared that it was "pitiful to see ministers serving Christ in communities supporting three churches where there is not room for one."

"I know of one city of 100,000 inhabitants where the majority of the residents are Catholics. They have four well-established parishes, while the Protestants, who are in the minority, remember, are supporting 54 churches, no one of them strong and vigorous."

In closing his address, Mr. Eliot said:

"Here, at least, is a little band of people who believe in the things of this world which we see as temporal and in the unseen things as spiritual. Most people do not seem to be able to comprehend the liberal. They must either be radical or conservative. We want a mixture of both. That is our ideal of religion."

Although the congress is not declared to be held in opposition to the "Billy" Sunday revival, the opening remarks of the Rev. Thomas W. Illman, pastor of All Souls' Universalist Church, West Philadelphia, in behalf of the Liberal Ministers' Club of this city, were construed by many to be a challenge to the strenuous baseball evangelist.

"Liberals and progressives are none too numerous in this city," said Mr. Illman, "and so you look very good to us. We need you to refresh a sorely strained spirit of tolerance. We liberals of Philadelphia have been called upon to endure the most insulting intolerance, which loudly lamented its inability to perpetrate, as present experience, the future damnation it so lavishly invoked and threatened. We need you to help us be patient and sympathetic with our fellow human beings in their slowness to receive the larger truths and finer faiths. You will do our needy city of Philadelphia much good."

The keynote of the entire movement was struck by the Rev. Charles W. Wendte, of Boston, executive secretary of the National Federation of Religious Liberals, when, in his report, he said:

"The spirit of our age has grown sick and tired of religious controversy, dogmatic assumptions of superior knowledge and authority by both radicals and conservatives, and interdenominational feuds, and is demanding a larger vision and a more conciliatory and inclusive spirit. The need of the times is not dogmatism, blind faith and abstract preaching. Earnest and frank testimony should be given for religious and social reform, and existing evils in church and society should be fearlessly denounced. We must learn to apply the doctrines and ethics which Christ taught to the many social problems of the times. By doing so we will give Christianity a real meaning and make it a powerful force."

PRIZE SONGS TO BE SUNG AT JUNGER MAENNERCHOR BALL

Elaborate Preparations Made for Tonight's Annual Function.

The 64th annual ball of the Junger Maennerchor will be held tonight in the ballroom of the Philadelphia Turngemeinde, Broad street and Columbia avenue. Delegations from singing societies from Brooklyn, Newark and Reading are expected and will dance the newest and popular dances in the ballroom of the Turngemeinde, which has been decorated for the occasion. Edward A. Lee has been chosen master of ceremonies.

One of the special features of the ball will be the singing of the two prize songs by the big chorus of the Junger Maennerchor, under the direction of Oscar Goering. It is this chorus that brought the Kaisers' prize to Philadelphia permanently at the last Saengerfest.

HOMELESS BOY'S PLIGHT

With Dog as Only Friend, He Spends Night in Police Station.

An 18-year-old boy and a little yellow dog called "Tip" wandered into the 4th and York streets station last night in search of lodging. Turnkey Hoffman took them in and the two slept side by side in a cell all night.

The boy, who said his name was Henry Lewis and that he had no home, with his inseparable companion, "Tip," was brought before Magistrate Glenn this morning. Just as Policeman Morgan made a movement to take Lewis' arm to lead him before the Judge the dog sprang at his leg. "Tip" was with difficulty induced to release his hold. A crowd in the courtroom followed with interest the boy's recital of his hardships. He said he and "Tip" caught a freight train for this city. He left Reading with only 25 cents in his pocket, he said, and spent 15 of this for meat for "Tip."

Magistrate Glenn reached in his pocket and gave Lewis 50 cents. Policeman Morgan offered to give him a job as janitor in a boathouse. But Magistrate Glenn thought his talents entitled him to a higher position than that, and dismissed him telling him to "get a job."

PLAN "HOTEL DE GINK" HERE

American Wayfarers' Association Hopes to Obtain Quarters.

Plans for the establishment of a Hotel de Gink, similar to that in New York, are being arranged by the American Wayfarers' Association. Members of the organization said today they hoped to acquire an abandoned school house at 11th and Wood streets as temporary quarters.

The association's policy is to try "to collect the living which the world owes every inhabitant." At present the organization has a membership of 35. "Dr. Harry Galleth" is president.

Impetus Given "Bundle Day"

Kensington's "Bundle Day" passed from an uncertain thing of the future to a realization last night when a great mass-meeting was held at the People's Theatre, Kensington avenue and Cumberland street, to launch the intended project. The meeting was attended by an overflow of tradesmen and residents of that section, who enthusiastically agreed to do their share, while leaders of civic, labor and commercial organizations and managers promised to co-operate in every way. As yet no date has been decided upon.

INVESTIGATORS HEAR TESTIMONY AGAINST JUDGE

Witnesses Say Dayton's Temperament Is "Not Judicial."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Federal Judge Alston G. Dayton, of West Virginia, today listened to evidence tending to show his temperament was not judicial. His son sat beside him. Three Congressmen, headed by Representative McGillicuddy, heard the testimony in the room of the Judiciary Committee.

Austin M. Sikes, of Huntington, W. Va., related hearing Judge Dayton tell a "bootlegger" before him for trial that a man engaged in the whisky business ought to have to stand by and see his daughters become prostitutes and his sons common drunkards.

Sikes told, too, of a man who had pleaded guilty to sending obscene matter through the mails. To him Sikes said Judge Dayton remarked, "I'm glad to have the opportunity to send you to the penitentiary. You are the most obscene man I've ever heard talk."

Walter M. Brown, attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, reviewed the course of two cases against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Judge Dayton's case. Brown said that although attorneys for Government and railroad had agreed to a stipulation of verdict in ten counts against the road for failure to report working employes longer than 16 consecutive hours, Judge Dayton refused to accept the stipulation and enter the agreement. These cases, although before the court for more than a year, are yet undecided, Brown said.

In another case in which the Baltimore and Ohio was charged with having illegally worked employes more than 16 hours, Dayton returned a verdict for the road.

DAMAGE CASE TO BE RETRIED

Supreme Court Overrules Non-suit of Woman's Claim Against Baldwin's.

In an opinion by Justice Frazer the Supreme Court today awarded a new trial in the suit brought by Mrs. Margaret Kelly, wife of a former employe at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, against Alba B. Johnson, Samuel Vauclain and William L. Austin, trading as Burnham, Williams & Co. The case was previously nonsuited by Court of Common Pleas No. 5.

The woman's husband has been confined to the Philadelphia Hospital since May, 1907, when he was injured at the locomotive plant by a wood-polishing wheel bursting. He was permanently hurt, and is said to be of unsound mind. Mrs. Kelly entered into an agreement with an alleged agent of the Baldwin plant who agreed to pay her $16 monthly for house rent and $8 weekly for household expenses until her husband could return to work. The case was non-suited before on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to establish the agent's authority to enter into the financial agreement with the woman.

MOCK MARRIAGE SERIOUS

Young Man Wedded "in Fun" Confronted by Court's Decision.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Feb. 22.—John B. Andrews, 25 years old, today started legal proceedings to recover damages from Charles Springer, alleging Springer had him married against his will and without his consent.

Andrews and Miss Grace Beacham, 19 years old, participated in what they thought was a mock marriage ceremony at a church social at Tioga recently. To make it as real as possible a regular license was obtained from Town Clerk William Springer. Justice of the Peace John Thompson performed the ceremony, much to the delight of the audience.

Some person raised the question whether the marriage was legal or not, as a regular license was issued and they were married by an officer empowered to perform the marriage ceremony.

Alarmed, Andrews, who is engaged to another girl, hurried to court. The court ruled the marriage was legal and refused an annulment.

Charles Springer was in charge of the festivities.

MURDER SUSPECT CAUGHT

Carmelo Torio Arrested in New York State —Detectives Make Fine Record.

With the arrest of Carmelo Torio, in Middletown, N. Y., wanted here for murder, late Saturday night, the Philadelphia Detective Bureau has accomplished a feat that will go down into the annals of police history. During 1913 there were 72 murders, including homicides, committed in this city, and with the arrest of Torio there are only three of the offenders in the cases at large, 69 having been apprehended. In 1914 there were 67 murders, including homicides, in this city, and here the Philadelphia Detective Bureau again excelled. Under the leadership of Detective Emanuel, the murder squad accomplished the apprehension of 62 of the murderers, and are on the trail of the remaining five. This is another remarkable record, according to police officials.

CHURCH CONFERENCE TODAY

Young People of Reformed Episcopal Churches to Meet.

Afternoon sessions of the 28th annual meeting of the Young People's Conference of the Reformed Episcopal Churches of Philadelphia and vicinity were held in St. Luke's Church, Frankford, today.

The reception of delegates took place at 2:30 o'clock. This was followed by the reading of the Scriptures, singing and addresses by many prominent ministers. Robert J. McKenty, warden of the Eastern Penitentiary, was the principal speaker. In the evening the program will be repeated with variations. The Rev. Prof. Alberto Clot, director of the Bureau of Protestant Italian Emigration and Immigration of the American Waldensian Aid Society, of New York, will deliver the main address on "The Faithful for Centuries."

JOHN HUSS THEME OF SERMON

At the weekly exercises of the Presbyterian Ministerial Association, held today in Westminster Hall, the Rev. Dr. James J. Good, pastor and founder of the Heidelburg Presbyterian Church, 19th and Oxford streets, and dean of the Dayton Seminary, Dayton, O., addressed the assembly on the martyrdom of John Huss, the Bohemian reformer. This was followed by appreciative remarks from Dr. Frederick William Loetscher, professor of Church History at the Princeton Theological Seminary, and Dr. James A. Worden, superintendent of Sabbath work of the Presbyterian Church.

OLD GLORY UNFURLED AT THE STATE HOUSE

Large American Flag Given to the Winds at Independence Hall Exercises.

A large American flag was unfurled over Independence Hall at the stroke of noon today and a similar flag was given to the winds over the capitol in Topeka, Kan., at the same hour, to commemorate the hoisting of the birthday star flag of Kansas over Independence Hall by President Lincoln, 54 years ago today.

Both ceremonies were observed with appropriate exercises in both cities.

Because of the illness of Mayor Blankenburg, Director Porter, of the Department of Public Safety, took his place as the principal speaker and delivered an address. An air of genuine patriotism pervaded the room where the Declaration of Independence was signed and in which the exercises were held. The Citizens' Committee, of which ex-Judge Dimner Beeber is chairman, was composed of a number of prominent men of the city. One or two of the members were present when Lincoln raised the flag in 1861. A member of the Marine Corps sounded the "call to colors" and a company of marines stood with bared heads watching "Old Glory" unfurled to the breeze.

The flag is the gift of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of the State of Kansas, and that raised in Topeka is the gift of the city of Philadelphia by the Flaghouse Chapter, Daughter of the American Revolution. The purpose of both ceremonies is to give evidence of the mutual good will between this city and Kansas. The Citizens' Committee was composed of the following:

Dimner Beeber, chairman; General Theodore E. Wiedersheim, General R. Dale Benson, Francis B. Reeves, Thomas M. Thompson, Benjamin F. Obdyke, Cyrus Borgner, Colonel M. Richards Muckle, James Pollock, Alexander P. Colesberry, D. Newlin Fell, Colonel J. Campbell Gilmore, John Wood, J. Franklin Miller, Charles W. Alexander.

PRESIDENT AWARDS MEDAL

Central High School Lad Wins Prize for Revolutionary War Essay

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—All patriotic organizations in the District of Columbia today celebrated the 183d anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

President Wilson attended the joint meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution and other societies organized by descendants of the participants in the struggle for independence, held in the Continental Memorial Hall. During the course of this program, President Wilson presented a gold medal, offered by the Sons of the Revolution, as a prize for the best Revolutionary War essay, to Walter S. Smoot, of the Central High School.

BAN ON SLOT MACHINES

Slot machines which have been attracting pennies from school children are responsible for an order to clear away every bit of apparatus of the kind in Delaware County. Owners have been warned to dispose of all gambling devices or render themselves liable to heavy fines or imprisonment.

Unitarian Christianity

Unitarians do not stone Jesus. On the contrary we lovingly study his character and teachings. The hymn, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," was written by a Unitarian.

Unitarians do not deny the Word of God. On the contrary we are constantly trying to find it and obey it. We hold that nothing which is clearly unreasonable can be from God.

When two persons differ in their understanding of a Bible verse, can either one establish the correctness of his own view by calling the other a liar?

The Old Testament was written in Hebrew and Aramaic. The New Testament was written in Aramaic and Greek. But it is the King James English translation to which they refer who lay most stress on saying that every word of the Bible was written by the finger of God. When a word in the English Bible is a mistranslation from the Hebrew or Greek, who has "the word of God"—the man who fiercely upholds the English error, or the "higher critic" who prefers the correct original?

On Sunday, Febuary 28th, at 8 P. M., I shall give the first of a course of lectures on the subject: The Bible as understood by the Higher Criticism.

NEWTON COAL
Answers the Burning Question

A recent clipping from one of our daily newspapers:

The city is taking pains to see that its citizens get full weight in coal. A weights and measures squad saw a coal wagon bound for the Tabernacle this morning, and taking it to a scales had it weighed. Then, after the coal had been delivered, the wagon was weighed again. Full weight had been given, the inspections found.

"UNIVERSITY DAY," 175TH ANNIVERSARY

Evans Institute is not only the largest and best equipped institution in the world devoted exclusively to the teaching of dental science, but its construction is the culmination of efforts to put the University Dental School in the first rank.

Today was a busy one for every one connected with the University. Two hours after the close of the formal exercises at the Academy of Music, the procession preliminary to the dedication of the Dental Institute formed at Houston Hall. The Glee Club, which appeared this morning at the Academy, was in the lines preceded by the University band, which escorted the trustees of the University and visiting presidents of universities and colleges from Houston Hall to the Dental Institute. After the exercises there, during which degrees were conferred, the new building will be inspected. The University Day tea at Houston Hall followed.

There will be a series of clinic demonstrations tomorrow and the new apparatus at the Dental Institute will be used in them. This will continue throughout the day. The celebration closed with a banquet of the Dental College Alumni in the clinic room of the Old Dental Hall.

OPENING EXERCICES.

Broad street, from Walnut to Locust, was crowded this morning when the guests and students arrived from the exercises in the Academy of Music. At 9:30 o'clock, a half hour before beginning of the exercises, more than a thousand students marched into the Academy. They filled the aisles and than moved over the stage in a long line, after which they took seats assigned to them at the right of the house.

Then the academic procession, led by Carl N. Martin, of the Class of 1896, entered the house from the foyer and spread out on the stage. Governor Brumbaugh and his staff led the procession, followed by Provost Smith and the trustees of the University. John G. Johnson, law class of '85, came directly after the trustees, and James N. Beck, orator of the day, followed. At the end of the procession were the members of faculty, wearing the academic costume.

Provost Smith said University Day began when the trustees presented resolutions to George Washington on his inauguration as President. James N. Beck, orator of the day, then delivered his address on "The Foreign Policy of George Washington."

MR. JOHNSON GETS DEGREE.

At the conclusion of Mr. Beck's address, Mr. Johnson stepped from his seat on the stage and the hood of Doctor of Laws was placed on his head by Secretary Robinson of the board of Trustees. In presenting the degree, Provost Smith recalled that the University has followed the custom of "placing its approving hand upon men of distinction in various walks of life."

Those who assisted Dr. Marshall Martin as marshals and aides in the academic procession were: Charles R. Miller, '81; William A. Redding, '76; Judge Charles F. Gummey, '84; John W. Townsend, '75; William S. Ashbrook, '87; Adolph G. Rosengarten, '92; Charles L. McKeehan, '97; Hollinshead N. Taylor, '01; J. Shipley Dixon, '08; Sydney E. Martin, '06; J. C. GOVERNOR TO ADDRESS PENNSYLVANIA ALUMNI

Executive to Be Chief Guest at Tonight's Annual Banquet.

Governor Brumbaugh will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the University of Pennsylvania Alumni Association to be held tonight at the Bellevue-Stratford. The Governor, who was a member of the class of '93, has been assigned to talk on "The Commonwealth."

"American Neutrality" will be discussed by the Hon. Charlemagne Tower, '79, ex-Ambassador to Russia and Germany, one of the trustees of the University. Provost Smith will speak on "The University," and Murdock Kendrick, '93, on "Athletics." Theodore Lane Bean, '99, will be the director of the ceremonies.

Additional interest is given to this year's banquet, as it marks the 175th anniversary of the founding of the University of Pennsylvania. Alumni from all parts of the country are gathered here today to attend the affair and it is expected to be the greatest banquet ever given by the association. Music will be furnished by the University Glee Club.

Drinker was elected to the presidency of Lehigh ten years ago he was similarily honored by Lafayette.

The exercises in Packer Church were attended by the trustees and faculties of both Lafayette and Lehigh.

President MacCracken was presented on behalf of the faculty by Prof. Robert W. Blake and on behalf of the board of trustees by the Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot.

President Drinker, who is chairman of the Committee on Colleges and Schools of the American Centenary Peace Committee, gave a short narrative of the Treaty of Ghent.

City to Get Higher Interest Rate

City Treasurer McCoach has been notified by about two-thirds of the banks and trust companies acting as city depositories that they are willing to retain city accounts by paying a 2½ per cent. per annum rate of interest instead of a 2 per cent. rate. The ordinance, passed by Council last December after repeated urging by Mayor Blankenburg, established the increase to take effect March 24.

MAN HELD FOR STRIKING GIRL

Police Accuse Prisoner of Spanking in Fairmount Park.

It may cost John Cassell, of 1709 North 15th street, some serious inconvenience for assuming the duties of a parent, according to the testimony before Magistrate Boyle, who held Cassell under $200 bail for court today.

Spring started the blood coursing violently in the veins of a crowd of happy youngsters in Fairmount Park yesterday, and one of them struck Cassell in the back of the neck with a small clod of soft earth. It soiled his collar, he said, and the police accuse him of administering a regular old-fashioned spanking to Catharine Ruen, of Croskey and Thompson streets. Catharine's parents failed to relish the idea of a stranger assuming corrective measures which they did not believe in themselves and they had him haled into court.

GIRL'S COLLAPSE A MYSTERY

The police are investigating the case of Viola Jones, 15 years old, 827 South 5th street, who is in Cooper Hospital, Camden. The girl fell unconscious yesterday after taking a drink of wine in a house on South 6th street, Camden, where she was accompanied by Ethel Vanderslice, whose grandfather lives there. It was stated that the girls had been given a small drink of port wine, and doctors at the hospital say the girl had taken such a small quantity that they were unable to determine what had made her lose consciousness.

The Material Side of Dentistry

When modern dentistry came into being, there were no manufacturers of dentists' supplies. Dentistry was practically a secret art; the making of his tools was part of the dentist's training. In many cases his services consisted largely of the extraction of teeth and the supplying of artificial substitutes. Naturally, the making of porcelain teeth was the first strictly dental manufacture. The first manufacturer of porcelain teeth in America was Dr. A. A. Plantou, of Philadelphia; the second was Charles W. Peale, also of Philadelphia. Next was Samuel W. Stockton, another Philadelphian, whose manufacture was the first to attain commercial importance, dating from about 1825. He was followed by his nephew and namesake, Dr. Samuel Stockton White, who in 1844 laid the foundation for the business of this company. In 1876 Doctor White was credited with making "over four millions of teeth, about two-thirds of the whole number used in the world." Long before this the business of the house had been extended to comprise the manufacture of every article needed by the dentist in his practice. Much of its success has been due to its fostering of the inventive faculty among dentists and the painstaking development of their ideas into practical devices. So pronounced is the superiority of its products that the dental colleges, of which there are now between forty and fifty—the largest of all in Philadelphia—instinctively turn to it for the outfitting of their infirmaries. Several of these, for some of which special equipments have been designed, are illustrated herewith. The business of this house, supplemented by that of others established here, several of which have also attained international importance, makes Philadelphia the leader of the world in the manufacture of dentists' supplies—the material side of dentistry.
