EVENING LEDGER-PHILADELPHIA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1915:

CUFFED PROPHET STANDS BY FORECAST OF 3 MORE SNOWS

12 *

Simeon M. Mokemacher Is Undisturbed by the Scoffing of Bliss and Other Skeptics

Bristling Onions Tell Tale. Seer's /Peculiarity of Raiment Dates From Incident of Early Youth and Appetite for Chocolate Eclair.

Old Simson M. Mokemacher sat on a heap of atrophied onions in his little hidden garden outside Andalusia, Pa., this morning and squinted at the sky. There was a twinkle in his bright eyes, for he had just been asked if he did not wish to retract or modify his prediction that there will be three more snowstorms "ere the winter ends."

"Curiousest thing ever," he said, "how these cuffs on my overalls get filled with earth. I guess I lose two hours a day in my experimental work cleaning them and sifting and inspecting what I find there."

The reporter, who had forgotten the pathway and in consequence literally had to fight his way through the barrier of underbrush to the garden, nodded politely and repeated his query about the three showstorms. Mr. Mokemacher looked up at the sky again and smiled. "How should I know?" he remarked, with thinly velled surcasm, "I'm not a groundhog and I'm not a goosebone, and your George S. Blins says nobody but a groundhog and goosebone prophets can tell whether it's going to snow any more, Now, I told you once there'd be three more snowstorms ere the winter ends."

ONIONS' TELLTALE BRISTLES.

The old man suddenly dived forward like a trained acrobat and sprawled on the ground. He whipped out a mignifying glass with one hand and an electric torch with the other. He scraped away some earth and then, training the light on an onion, he closed one eye and squinted with the other at the vegetable through the slear. through the glass, "Aha!" he said, "The onion quivers."

Mr. Mokemacher arose and resumed dig-ging the earth out of his overall cuffs. He started to talk as though to himself. and by bending close the reporter caught the following:

"The bristles are waving furiously. Aha! It is the connecting link between vegetable and animal life, but I shall not reveal the secret. Why should I?" Abruptly he halted and looked up. "Curiousent thing ever," he resumed. "how these cuffs get filled with earth." "Why don't you stop wearing them?" he was asked.

THE CUFFED PROPHET.

The Andalusian prophet drew himself up majestically to his full 5 feet 4 inches.

"Young man," he said, glaring through the inverted magnifying glass, "as I neo you now you ar'nt as big as my thumb. Why should I wear cuffs. I am entitled to my little idiosyncrasics. In the great world outside my garden of onlong men wear all manner of foolish things and so do the women, and also, I am told, the women powder their faces. All right, let them, but I shall wear cuffs on my overalls.

alls. "Why?" he was asked. "Once upon a time," said Mr. Moke-macher, "when I was a little boy, I re-ceived a $5 gold-piece for a Christmas gift. There was a hole in my pocket and the coin disappeared. I mourned it for two weeks. Then one day as I was passing a baker's window I suddenly develed an overpowering appetite for choco-te eclair, but, alas, I had no money, so I sat down on the curbstone to weep. Unconsciously I ran my hand through the suffs on my trousers, and there was the 55 gold-piece. I wear them for their utility. They save money.

daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth N. Parke, 637 South Broad street. He succumbed Mon-day to a complication of diseases. Mr. Wark, who is the father of William E. Wark, president and treasurer of the W. E. Wark Company, fron structural con-cern, was a native of Ireland, and settled in this country when a young man. He is survived by another daughter, Mrs. N. W. McMeekin. The funeral will be held tomorrow affernoon, from the residences of Mrs. Parke.
