The Hartville Minstrels and the Hartville Dramatic Club will entertain the members of the Hartville Club and their guests at the clubhouse, 2814 D street, on St. Patrick's night with an Irish minstrel show by club members exclusively, comprising the following: Bernard Crossin, interlocutor; John Mullin and Philip Hurst, ends; Daniel Ortlip, Hugh Huston, Jacob Roffle, Samuel Desher, L. Cameron and Fred Scheff. This is a sort of innovation among social clubs. The Hartville Club has the proud distinction of being one of the first to organize a dramatic club and minstrel troupe among its members. The minstrels made their debut on New Year's Eve, and their act was very good. Their second effort was on Lincoln's birthday. The dramatic club will offer a one-act farce. entitled "School Days," that will recall pranks of childhood times. The committee on arrangements is diligently working on plans to make this a gala night in the annals of the Hartville's social affairs.

The Stetson Orchestra, under the leadership of Prof. H. J. Chopourian, has arranged to give a benefit concert in answer to many requests for an evening of enjoyable music. The concert will be given in the big Stetson Auditorium, on Montgomery avenue between 4th and 5th streets, on Thursday evening, March 18, at $:15 p. m. The Stetson Orchestra is made up of volunteer taient, but the orchestra has made very rapid strides under Professor Chopourian's tutorage. They play only the best high-class music and it is a privilege to belong to the organization. The orchestra rehearses every Thursday evening and plays for the Stetson Sunday school every Sunday afternoon. Any one seeking to further his musical education is welcome, provided he is willing to attend rehearsals and also play on Sundays for the Sunday school. There is no charge for the instruction, and the Stetson Sunday school furnishes all the music.

In addition to the orchestra there will be some numbers by Professor Chopourian and his celebrated hanjo and mandolin performers, cornet solus and other attractive numbers.
