SWINDLED WIDOW OF SEA CAPTAIN HOPES TO RECOVER MONEY

Mrs. George Melville, Deprived of More Than $90,000 of Her Fortune by Alleged "Gold Brick" Merchant, Optimistic.

A little old woman who lives in the somewhat faded grandeur of a big threestory house at 2452 North Broad street le anxiously waiting the time when Frank C. Mooney, of 5230 McCallum atreet, Germantown, will be brought to trial. She believes that at the trial he will be forced to reveal what he has done with more than $90,000 she dedone with more than $90,000 slie declares he borrowed from her since June of 1910. Mooney is under $10,000 basis, awaiting the action of the Grain Jury. The woman is the widow of Captain George Meiville. He died a dozen years ago and left her securities, valued approximately at $100,000, including the big house in North Broad street, clear of debt. Mrs. Melville is now more than $6 years old. She had lived a simple, frugal life. Her wants were few.

TRIED TO AID MOONEY.

Five years ago the fortune wrested from the sea by her mariner husband was virtually intact. Then in some way Mooney learned of the aged widow's wealth. She had all she would ever need wealth. She had all she would ever need and was perfectly satisfied with life. It is believed by her friends and relatives that she gave heed to Mooney's stories more to help and oblige him than to increase her own fortune.

According to her own story and that of her lawyer, Daniel G. Stewart, she listened and then invested. At first Mooney told her the money was for land investments in Florida. According to the statement of the lawyer at Mooney's hearing, he has checks issued to the man by Mrs. e has checks issued to the man by Mrs Melville totaling more than $74,000, and ranging in amounts from $50 to $8500. Some time last summer the guileless old woman began to wonder why there was no return on the investment described by Mooney as holding forth such brilliant opportunities. Mooney met this by asking permission to switch the investment Into Mexican mining propositions, of which he talked glowingly. Apparently the loans continued until all the securities were gone. Then a mortgage was put on the house. Later a second mortgage was the house. Later a second mortgage was obtained and invested with the rest.

A few weeks ago Mrs. F. G. Klenker, of 5236 Spruce street, a relative, called on the aged widow. She learned for the first time that the fortune left his wife by the sea captain had disappeared, that the house was heavily mortgaged and that Mrs. Melville had suddenly discovered she had no more money. This started the investigation that led to the arrest of Mooney, his being held first in $1590 ball and later in $10,000, which he could not provide, for the Grand Jury.

VICTIM NOT IN WANK

VICTIM NOT IN WANT.

Mrs. Melville is not in want. Her rela-tives are seeing that she has everything she needs. She still lives in the big house in North Broad street, most of the time alone. For some time her relatives and friends have been noticing that the place was not what it used to be. Al-though still in good health, Mrs. Melville is too old to give the house the attention she did in former years.

sive make, but of another day and gen-eration. The carpets are good, but some-what worn. The parlor is decorated with old-fashioned ornaments. Mrs. Melville is not bitter against Mooney. She feels confident he still has most of the money she turned over to him for investment and that the court will force him to return it. The widow does not show her age. Her hair is white, but her face is still fairly smooth. She has eyes that age has fadd some

NEW JITNEY BUS LINE

Plan to Connect Germantown and Roxborough.

A jitney bus line between Germantown and Roxborough will be an assured fact in a few days if the plans of the Germantown Business Men's Association go through. It is the intention to have four cars in operation by next week traveling a route over the Walnut Lane Bridge. It now takes an hour to go by trolley from one section to the other. A Jitney can make the trip in about 15

FOR DRINK; GETS 3 MONTHS

Whenever John Ragan gazes upon a thing of value, it merely represents so many drinks to him. In the twinkling he wanted more money, a large amount.
When she explained that her money was all gone Mooney went out and bought her some lamb chops.

Imany drinks to him. In the twinkling of an eye he can calculate how many drinks are contained in a mahogany higher some lamb chops. piano, or, getting down to more simple things, he knows in a flash that there are 30 "whiskies" in a $3 pair of shoes.

The mere fact that he was intoxicated 'morning, noon and night," to use the words of Mrs. John Ragan, was not what caused her to hale John before Magistrate Grells today in the Falls of Schuylkill police station. Her drastic action was due to the fact that nothing in the house was safe;

And worse than that, when he "liquidated" the household effects he made sacrifices that would make an auctioneer blush with envy. He sold a $3 aweater for 75 cents, a $3 pair of shoes for 50 cents, and a $2 razor for 25 cents. Many other things also disappeared in the same way from his home, 2002 Boston avenue. "I'll take the pledge," said John. "If he takes a pledge," declared Mrs. Ragan, "it will be in the lock shop."

The Judge saw the point and so did Magistrate said "three months in the House of Correction."

McNichol's Bid the Lowest

The McNichol Paving and Construction Company submitted the lowest bld for empletion of the Parkway west of Logan Square, for which $185,000 is available, Work will be begun about April 1. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 17.-The funeral services for Samuel Bowles, editor and publisher of the Springfield Re-publican, a publication founded by his grandfather, was held yesterday in the Church of the Unity. The Rev. A. P. selves, you know that?"
So Timmy Graybill pricked his ears ready to listen and Billy Robin went in search of spring makers.

First he flew to the very highest tree and reconnoitered. (And Timmy Graybill watched every move he made you may be sure).

He saw dead between the control of the Unity. The Rev. A. P. Reccord, pastor of the church, officiated. after which the body was cremated. The services were attended by well-known newspaper men throughout the State, with members of the Springfield Republican staff acting as pallbearers. ## OBITUARIES

Dr. J. Paul Lauer

he saw dead looking brown trees, dirty brown grass and patches of snew from the storm the day before. "Not very good spring material there," whispered Timmy Graytail to himself, but like a wise little rabbit he kept on looking at Billy Robin. Timmy was quite hurt. "You know I'm not asking for fun, Billy Robin," he said: "you know I wouldn't do such a thing as that! I want to know what we are doing."

"Oh that's all right," answered Billy Robin.

Now Billy Robin.

Now Billy Robin up on the tree saw all these duil brown things, but he saw more than that—oh, dear me, yes! He saw the light brown tips of the branches. He saw the tiny, tiny sprouts of green down under, partly under, the dead brown leaves and he nodied his head and began and he nodied his head Dr. J. Paul Lauer, brother of the Rev. E. L. Lauer, of Mauch Chunk, and a practicing physician, died yesterday at his home, 2838 Somerset street, following a brief illness of typhold fever.

Doctor Lauer, who was 39 years old and born in Doak, N. Y. received his early educational training at the Millersleaves, and he nodded his head and began Timmy Graytall to himself, "I can't see how his singing is going to make spring helpers come?" But then you see. Timmy didn't know much! ville Normal School, Millersville, Pa. He later entered the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, and while practicing as a pharmacist he attended class at the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, graduating in 1908. He leaves a widow, who before her marriage was Miss Helen McKenzie Brown. The Rev. For it DID make helpers come—oh, dear me, yes—helpers in plenty! Down in the ground the violets heard Billy singing. Up in the trees the buds swelled as they heard his song. Even the breezes blew softly so as to listen and the beetles and insects stirred in their winter nests. And hefore Timmy Graytail knew what had happened, the forest was full of life and stir—spring had come! "Now I know how a spring is made," said Timmy Graytail to himself; "spring is made by a robin's song." For it DID make helpers come-oh, dear William Lauer, of Summit Hill, Pa., is a brother. The funeral will take place Friday morning from his late residence.
