house throughout was decorated in an emerald. hue. At the vestibule entrance over the doorway wany a huge shanrock, emblazoned with areen electric bulls, with the inscription "Top i o' the Evenin' to Ye" surrounding it. The reception room on the first floor was banked with a bower of palms and Irish foliage; also a large harp made of green carnations was used. The dance and concert room on the second floor was draped with crepe shamrock paper. Each guest upon entering was given a small bunch of real shamrock.

The evening's entertainment was opened by dancing, after which the Irish Minstrels entertained with songs and stories of an Irish nature, some member being made the point of each joke. The minstrels made a very good appearance in green satin dress suits. In their act they offered many novelties. The performance began with singing "Come Back to Erin," followed by a bugpipe number; then as the curtain was lifted they came on singing "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." For the opening number they sang "A Little Bit of Green," followed by an Irish Jig; then in turn sang "As Long as the Shamrock Grows Green I Will Love You," "Little Mickey Dooley," "Kilkenny," "Irish Tango," "River Shannon," When I Dream of Old Erin I'm Dreaming of You." Then closed by singing "Tip Top Tipperary Mary," marching around the room, encircling the guests and at the same time throwing serpentine paper, entangling the auditors in a mass of green. At the conclusion the guests declared it to be the best ever. The minstrels were made up of members exclusively, comprising Bernard Crosson, interlocutor; John Mullen and Philip Hurst, ends; Dan Ortlip, Jacob Roffle, Hugh Huston, Fred Scheff, Sam CHESTER AND VICINITY
