

Evening ILLUSTRATED Ledger

FRIDAY
March 19, 1915

"THE BLACK BILLY SUNDAY" IS THE LATEST EVANGELIST TO ARRIVE IN CITY TO CHASE THE DEVIL

HE QUOTES FROM THE SCRIPTURES

HE CHARGES DOWN THE AISLES LIKE A BULL

HE TELLS OF THE WRATH TO COME

HE THREATENS LIGHTNING FROM ON HIGH

HE SMASHES STOOLS IN A FRENZY

HE BOUNDS IN THE AIR LIKE A BALL

HE EXHORTS SINNERS TO REPENTANCE

HE SPEAKS FROM THE BENDED KNEE

The Rev. Alexander Wilbank, the 230-pound preacher, is conducting a series of meetings at the Varick Temple, 19th and Catharine streets, and already hundreds have "hit the trail." The meetings have outgrown the building there and the colored evangelist now hopes to obtain the use of the Logan Square tabernacle after the Rev. W. A. Sunday has completed his services there. If he can only obtain this auditorium, he will show the people of this city a revival that is a revival. Wilbank is from Washington, D. C. He thinks that Sunday owes much of his popularity to methods that formerly were regarded as belonging exclusively to the old-fashioned negro camp-meeting that flourished years ago.