

PERSONS AND SCENES THAT FIGURE IN THE DAY'S NEWS AS RECORDED BY THE PHOTOGRAPHER

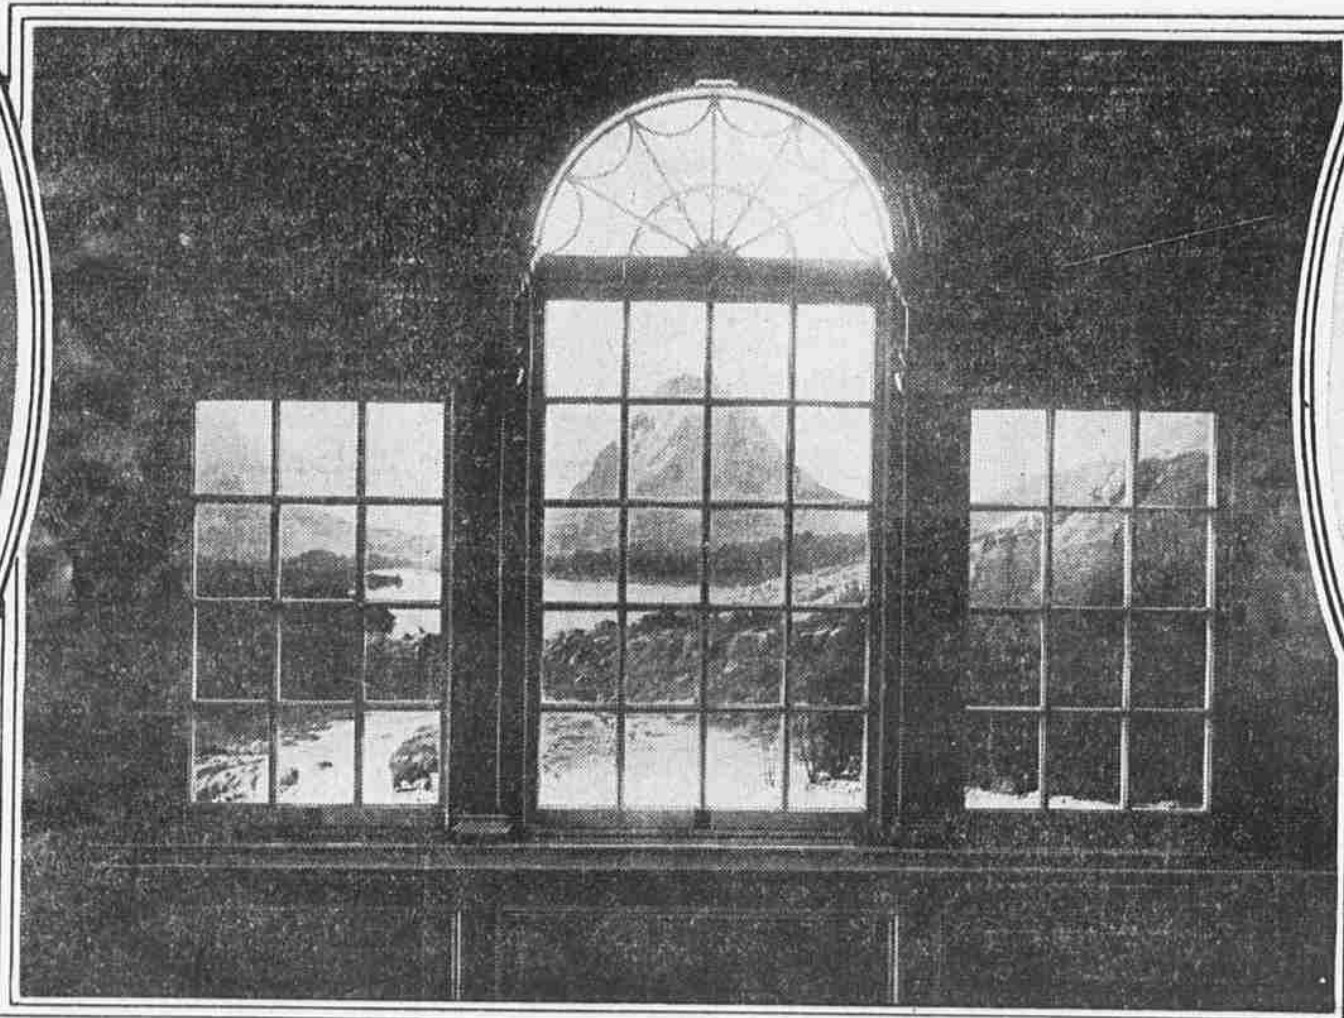

PART OF THE AUSTRIAN OUTPOST EARTHWORKS AND DEFENSES WHICH RINGED THE FORTRESSES OF PRZEMYSL

It was largely owing to the use of these outlying trenches that the defenders of the Galician stronghold were able to hold off the Russian investment for so long. Desperate sorties were directed against the Czar's lines from time to time and the effective fire from the Austrian batteries, which were well served, repeatedly caused heavy losses to the invaders.

UNITED STATES MILITARY ATTACHE WITH GERMANS ON RUSSIAN WAR FRONT

Major George F. Langhorne, indicated by X, has just returned from Berlin in order, it is said, to report to the War Department on his observations. He is shown here in a group of foreign military observers in front of the German headquarters at Skierniewice, Russian Poland. He has been accused of pro-German sympathies, but this is denied. He is to report especially on heavy artillery operations, it is said.

AVIATOR KILLED WHEN PERFORMING FEATS IN MIDAIR

This photograph was made on March 16 at Universal City, Cal., as Aviator Stites was doing aerial thrillers for moving picture photographers. The "stunt" was suddenly terminated when Stites was dashed 500 feet to his death. An instant previous the dummy aeroplane below had been blown up as part of the "stunt."
