HANDSOME DAUGHTER OF MILLIONAIRE ELOPES WITH DOORMAN

Isabel Bernheimer, 19-year-old daughter of Charles Daly Bernheimer, millionaire tenant in a de luxe apartment house on Central Park West, New York, eloped with James Murray, doorman of the house. Desperate but vain efforts were made by the parents and relatives of the young bride to get her to leave her husband.

SERVIAN CROWN PRINCE AND AUSTRIAN PRISONERS
At the left is the Servian Crown Prince talking to Austrian prisoners of war in Belgrade. The photographs were made by members of Sir Thomas Lipton's Red Cross party which went to Servia on his steam yacht Erin.

CITY'S YOUNGEST MAGISTRATE
Robert Carson is hardly out of his twenties, but has already acquired a reputation for wisdom and fairness in his conduct of affairs at Central Court, City Hall, and Night Court. He is not one of those Magistrates who believes a prisoner should be punished simply because he is a prisoner.

SAND SCULPTOR OPENS SPRING SEASON

There is no surer sign of the fact that spring has definitely arrived than the sight of the sand artist at work on the beach at Atlantic City. And as usual, he has an attentive group of spectators hanging over the rail, some of whom, once in a while, express their appreciation by a coin.

YOUNGEST CLUB DOORMAN

All the members of the Manufacturers' Club know the bright youngster who opens the door for them. He greets every one with a smile and swings the big revolving door with a strength belied by his youthful appearance. Theodore Trembly is his name and he is just 12 years old.

GET A TICKET TO THE "MOVIES" WITH YOUR HAIRCUT
This sign, in a barber shop window on South 7th street, indicates one of the latest developments in the ever-growing popularity of the photoplay. These tickets so far are given as "inducements" only to children, but doubtless in the near future "movie" coupons will be as much sought after as trading stamps and some merchants are said to be planning to attach them to their merchandise.
