PRACTICAL ARTICLES AND FASHIONABLE FANCIES FOR THE WOMAN AND HOUSEHOLD

The Rift Within the Lute

husband's parents and sister, by false and opinion weigh with him. malicious statements, have caused him was a very happy one, until the bride- attitude can hardly be given such a groom fell ill with diphtheria. At the con- strong term as aniagonistic, but all the his young wife to follow him on a later criticism of outsiders is not an easy subterfuge in his mind here, for when the wife to bear. It creates a doubt in the bride carried out his injunctions and duly arrived on the scene, she found no hus- same time gives rise to a decidedly unband there, but instead an trate and de- pleasant atmosphere. cidedly unpleasant sister-in-law, who inthat she might just as well return the relation-in-law situation with a retinetly unpalatable for the bride of five lation-in-law who is at all inclined to months, who finally had the unpleasant be critical and consorious read his opinion ciliation were futile-hence the filing of happiness and matrimonial affection! the $100,000 damage suit.

Relations-in-law really can be a trying ence. The old saying that is not always quite true. For too often the son's mother is firmly convinced that she must continue to arrange that son's worse to the girl of his heart. And the ways fresh and well tied. curious thing is that his fond mamma

My sen is my sen till he gets him a wife, But my daughter's my daughter all the days of her life.

ACCORDING to current information in allowed to pass by without carefully the daily papers, relations-in-law are pointing it out to her son. "You really indeed responsible for many, many ups must speak to Mary about this dear and downs and many strange vicissitudes. John," the fond but interfering mamma in the life matrimonial. While apparently will murmur into the ear of her barached being quite well equipped for the engi- offspring; or, "len't it unfortunate that neering of their own affairs, they yet seem dear Mary should dress in that odd to have a peculiar faculty for the tangling fashion?" and a hundred and one other and twisting of other people's, and a re- observations of a similar character. cent case in this connection quite bears. Little remarks of this sort can do much the idea out. Out in Los Angeles a bride to cause the rift in the matrimonial lute. of five months has just filed suit for $100 - . They now the seed of dissatisfaction, 600 damages for the allenation of her hus- and the more the young husband cares band's affections. She declares that her for his mother, the more then will her

The average set of relations-in-law do seem somehow to maintain a critical at-It appears that at first the marriage titude. In the general run of things this valescent stage he went to the home of same it is not conducive to making the his parents in order to recuperate, telling | path of true love run smoothly. For the There seems to have been some matter for either the husband or the mind of one or the other, and at the

The views of the evergreen Sam formed her that she was unwelcome, that Weller on this very subject are quite r husband was removed from there and | wonderfully near the truth. He hits off whence she came. All of which was dis- markable perspicacity. And if every re- whicel, realization borne in upon her that she was on this most interesting of subjects and unwanted by and unnecessary to the man | duly digested and profited thereby, there of her choice and her lawful husband, would be fewer filings of $100,000 suits All efforts on her part to effect a recon- for alienation of husbands, wives, hearts,

The Girl Who Looks Nice

The well-groomed girl is not always the proposition, and many a young bride finds | most expensively dressed girl, nor does the matrimonial pathway made consider- she dress her hair in the most extreme ably harder than it need ever be through fashion. But when you look at her once, their impertinent and officious interfer- you are bound to take a second lookshe is so pleasing, so harmonious, so

Her hair is glossy and well brushed. She never allows a spot to remain on her frock. Her neckwear is immaculate. and her skirts and blouses always meet firmly. Her skirts do not sag at all and private and personal affairs long, long her boots or shoes are never run down after the matrimonial noose has been at the heel. A missing shoe button she tled, and he is united for better or for abhors, and her laces and ties are al-curious thing is that his fond mamma nearly always does believe that the uniting is "for worse"—and she correspondingly acts on that principle. Not a single blemish, major or minor, real or superficial, in the little bride's character, is of the girl who always looks nice.

She wears a simple hat with a cost and skirt, and her gloves are subdued in color. She does not wear fancy slippers with a short fallored skirt, or a much-brimmed hat in the morning. Freshness and harmony—these are the keynotes of the girl who always looks nice.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

When the Circus Came to Town

Such a bustle! Such a hurry! Such a only a crack was quite enough for Kitty not one boy or girl should go one step to the circus parade till all the work was to the street. "Now I guess I'll go to Jack volunteered to sween the porch,

Susan dusted the living room, Ellen tidied | went. the playroom and Ned was general help-ever watchful for danger-she didn't want er-mother didn't have to speak twice to get helpers that morning; she hardly had not she! to speak once!

And so, thanks to everybody, at half past 9 they were off to see the parade. "Oh, Ellen, dear," said mother, as they turned the corner, "did you feed and look up Kitty Lou?" "I fed her and gave her some fresh water, mother, but I didn't lock her up. Why should she be locked up before we go?" asked Ellen.

You know she is always into mischief," replied mother, "and I think we'd better lock her up before we go." "Oh, don't bother," said Jack, "she won't do any harm. Come on, we're just

In time!"
So they all hurried off, mother as gay as her boys and girls and all bent on a good time. Not another thought did they give to Kitty Lou. And indeed, why should they think of her? Was she not well fed? Did she not have a nice place to stay? And didn't she know she ought to stay in that home?
Oh yes, all of that, but Kitty Lou could always be counted on to do the thing she shouldn't think of doing. Left alone, she began to explore all the places she was began to explore all the places she was never allowed to visit. The study, the work basket, and the guestroom bed were all carefully investigated.

"Now. I guess I'il go outdoors," she decided, but how to get out was somewhat of a question. Kitty Lou inspected every door and found them all shut tight. Then she tried the windows—all locked. "Never mind," she told herself, "there'll one open somewhere, just keep hunt-Ellen's room there was a window open. To be sure it was only open a crack for the burglar lock was fastened, but

Down alleys and across lots she hurried:

this circus everybody seems so excited

She climbed out the window, down over

Right in among the elephants!

At last she came in sight of the big She knew them at once from what she had heard the children say. In and out among the crowd she alipped; through the heaps of straw she made her way; clear up to the tent where the big animals were kept. Under the tent she crawled, right in among the elephants!

And when, later in the afternoon, Susan and Elien, Jack and Ned and mother visited the elephants and tigers what do you suppose they saw?
Their own Kitty Lou perched up on the back of the biggest elephant! And she didn't seem half as excited or as frightened as her mistress!

Copyright-Clara Jugram Judson,

TOWN OF FUNNY DREAMS

THE WHIP-POOR-WILL By Bob Williams Ever hear a Whip-Poor-Will Calling from the Hills. Making People quite forget Store and Coal-Yard Bills?

Ever see one right up close. With its Legs and Toes Cuddled underneath its Wings Like as if "twuz froze"?

There is the Bird and you is stretched— Like a Funny Face?

Bight up close he seems to sing:
"Whip poor Willis-do:"
Further off, it's "Whip poor Will!"Short, and not so blue.

On Happy Hill, near Punny Town, A Whip-Poor-Will would call, And cheer the People as they came From More-Than-Funny-Hall.

Each Moonlight Night, when Stars were And all was Caim and Still. His Funny Sons would float along From out that Funny Hill.

Mins Jennie Jones was out one Night, And heard the Rascal yell: "I wish you'd whip young Jennie Jones!"— "Twan just the Milkman's Hell!

The Daily Story

A Fair Advantage

The steamer Glenmont, in tow of a double raft, was churning its way down the Mississippi, Leville Barnet was the pilot, and we. Barnet and I, were alone in the pilot house. Neither had spoken s word for half an hour or more, when the captain of the steamer opened the door and said roughty;

"Barnet, that curred mate took to the bank back there—the fool said he was going to get married. The up at Lo-Cross."

The old-pilet did not answer; he did not look as the captain, but remained motionless, tipped back in his high chair at the wheel, his eyes resting on the far water line beyond the raft. The captain slammed thut the door and walked heavily over the hurricane deck and down the steps to the deck below.

"That mate a fool?" Barnet reflected. Well, maybe, and maybe not."

Barnet leaned over to the window tosome tobacco, then becan to fill his pipe. There was no round but the regular breathing of the steamer and the washwash-wash of the big wheel at the stern By and by the pipe was I hard

"It's a common, uninteresting way folks got howadays of getling married," the pilot began. "Don't you know it is? Common old prose from the beginning." I made no answer

"Do you know-well, it was back in 69. I was pulling on an oar on an old. floating raft-we didn't have steamers to push 'em then. A young fellow, you know strong, good tooking...... He turned to me with a grin and then watched some smoke curl over the pilot

"Lord! times are different now. Well, there was only one town on the Missis-slppi them days—that was where she lived—the girl, you know. I reckened the days by our coming to that town-other towns were just sort of landmarks to tell us how far off we were. Lord! we went dow fast before we got to it! She was always down on the sand to see us.

"Well, sir, there was another fellow on that raft, sort of a clerk and mate, or steersman when the captuin wanted to be lazy—sort of a general boss, and important. You know, he figured on the same girl. Poor devil, I don't know what became of him! We were going down the river, spring of 69-May-no wind-easy floating. The water was all like that out there." Burnet pointed to a broken bay of crimson and green in the water that ran from the boat to the bank. The sun-set was above the hill beyond.

"The middle of the next morning we were coming to that only town I was telling you about. You know, that night I didn't sleep-no work to do, either dropped down between two big logs, co fortable, and listened to that raft purrthe waves, you know, rattled around soft between the logs. Hear that tree toad then? That Chi-wa, chi-wa? Well, I heard them that night.

heard them that night.

"Next morning the wind was blowing a gale to eastward across the channel. Right-right!" the captain kept calling in his deep voice: 'right-right!"—you know, that way. Good, rough old fellow-he's dead now. Lord! I'd like to hear him call them signals again. We were all at the sweep ours, working—tired! Young fellow, you don't know what it is to be tired!"

The old puot turned to me, then relit

"No breakfast that morning " he want on. "I don't know why-guess the cook and to take a hand at the oars. That had to take a hand at the oars. That happened sometimes. Well, there was that town coming in sight and I wan that town coming in sight and I wan working to keep the wind from blowing us right in on the bank in front of it. Fretty soon P see the girl—wore a white dress—no hat. Same time I saw that clerk I was telling you about. We had only one boat on the fleet, and there was that clerk with a white collar on, making for to shove ashore in that boat.

"Right—right," I heard the captain.
Lord, he had a commanding voice. I sinker drivers' meeting, Broad and Diamond.

Lord, he had a commanding voice, I began to pull again with the other fellows, about 29 of them. Pretty soon I see the captain coming down to the bow where I was. He was whittling a stick.
The clerk was just about to shove off.
Well, that captain—he was a good fellow there ain't any more like him now on the river—he came down to me and atood dulet a minute, cutting that stick.

""Eeslie," he says, "what town's this we're coming to?"

""Let me see," I says, beginning to look around.

look around.

look around.

"Never mind," he returned. I see you don't know. The wind's getting high—we'll lay in a mile below, he said soft. 'Leslie,' he says, 'don't be afraid of getting wet.'

'That captain didn't say another word. He went off whittling that stick. I see the girl wave to us. I see the clerk wave hack and shove off in the boat, I didn't have time to wave—I jumped in and swam for it. The other fellows didn't make a sound. I thought they hadn't noticed.

Pretty soon I see the clerk and the girl shaking hands. Then she was looking at me—then the clerk was. I told you it was May and the water hadn't heated up yet for the summer. Next thing I was on the bank, shivering too much to talk. That girl came over and extended her

"'No, says L 'I'm too wet to touch

"You're fool enough to half drown and "You're fool enough to half drown and lose your job, too," put in the clerk.
"I didn't have much to say, waiting developments, you know. The clerk was looking mean. 'Barnet,' he says, 'I'll give you the boat so's you can get back to the raft and save your job.' He started for the boat. He knew we were going to lay in a mile below as the captain said. I'd he doing him a double favor, taking the boat back and setting myself out of the boat back and getting myself out of the way, too.

"Well, says I, I came ashore to say a word with this girl and — I could hardly talk—I ain't said quite all of it hardly talk—'I ain't said quite all of it yet.'

"That clerk, well, he went over and started to take the girl by the arm to walk off. His shoes were shined. You know, she wasn't in any hurry.

"Look a here. I didg't come ashore for nothing, as I explained, I says. Lord' I was hungry and beginning to get mean inside like the clerk.

"This man'—she began saying to the clerk—'my brother's get some dry clothes,' she went on, 'and I'm going to take him up to the house and have him put 'em on. He'll catch cold. You,' she went on to the clerk, 'you can see me some other time.'

"She made a little sign and, you know, that girl and me started off. I kept my eye on the clerk, though. Well, we hadn't gone three steps when, you know, the fellows on the raft let out a great yell. There they were, plumb opposite now, drifting in. The captain was waving his hat to us. They all cheered again and then they called something to the clerk.

drifting in. The captain was waving his hat to us. They all cheered again and then they called something to the clerk. I don't know what it was. That girl waved back. Next thing they were all singing. Lord, I can hear 'em now. I didn't pity the clerk then—poor devil. I don't know what became of him."

Barnet slipped down out of his chair, sent the "slow bell" signal to the boiler room and walked over to me. His pipe was out. A lock of gray hair fell over his forehead. "Boy." he said to me, "I'll show you where that girl lives by and by—we're coming to it. Lord, we got the best Jersey cow in our pasture you were saw."

(Copyright, 1915.)

AN EVENING CAPE OF ASHES OF ROSE TAFFETA

"What's Doing Tonight?"

United Business Men's Association annual inner, Scottish fitte Hall, Broad and Race teets; 7:30 o clock. Armstrong Association, Griffith Hall; 8:15 Anti-suffrage meeting, Germantown Cricket tub; 8 o'clock, Free.

Reinvenation Sons of Jove, Hotel Adelphia; 20 o'clock

Lancaster avenue: S o'clock. Free.

Eduma Goldman lecture on "The Birth Strike," Royal Hall, 7th and Morris streets; to be placed in trust for the use of a sister, Mary G. Doyle, during her life.

At her death the residuary estate is to be distributed as follows: Three hundred. Presentant Entropel Historical Society,

Play, "Everyman," Neff College students, New Century Drawing Rooms, Gymnastic Exhibition, Starr Garden Play-ground,

SUFFRAGE EVENTS TODAY

EQUAL PRANCHISE SOCIETY

0 a m.—Sewing Circle meets at the sos headquarters, 35 South 9th street, to regalls and costumes for the Equal Fransection in the suffrage parade on Saturday Miss Clara Michelbach is in charge of ircle. The members will saw throughout Non-Openair meeting on the Postoffice lazzi, 8th and Chestnut streets. Speaker, Miss leetha Sapovits.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PARTY.

I D. M.—Carvassers' raily for the 6th Legisla-re District at 1022 (linton street. Ways and eans discussed and devised to carry on the 17ty's campaign in this district during the ming months.

EQUAL FRANCHISE LEAGUE OF LANS-Il a. m.—A reciprocity day observed by the cause and the Twentieth Century Clubbouse, ausdown. Mas Ethel August Sprigley predicts. Advenues by Mrs. Samuel Semple and drs. S. Hair Luchis, president of the Delagram Association of Clubs, her topic being Some Pannsylvania Laws.

p. m. Afternoon session of reciprocity day evvation at Twentieh Century Clubhouse, siding officer, same. Addresses by Mrs. Ed. with Middle, on "The Woman's Movement Constructive Fence", Mrs. Henry C. Coch. on "Would the Vote Ald Clubwomen in the Efforts for Civic Setterment." Miss in Bassett Gorham, on "The Present Siton in Our State."

Tomorrow's Menu

"There was pastry upon a dish; he se-lected an apricot-pull and a damson tart."-Charlotte Bronte.

BREAKFAST Grapefruit. Cereal and Cream. Ham and Eggs. Pancakes. Coffee.

LUNCHEON OR SUPPER Creamed Baked Macaroni, Lemon Jelly.

DINNER Spinach Cream Soup.
Veal Cutlet.
Browned Sweet Potatoes.
Creamed Carrota.
Cucumher Salad.
Plum Tarts.

Broiled Ham-Cut ham in very thin silces, pour boiling water over it, and if very sait repeat, drain and dry and broil quickly.

Lemon Jelly-Make lemon jelly in a large mold or in individual molds in small glasses. Turn out and surround with custard, made by beating the yolks of two eggs to a cream with two table-spoonfuls of sears, and seding a cupful to feeding milk, and cooling until to thickens slightly. Flavor lightly with

FREDERICK A. DOYLE LEFT THOUSANDS TO CHURCH

Bulk of $40,000 Estate Bequeathed to Roman Catholic Institutions.

Frederick A. Doyle, formerly of 615 West Allegheny avenue, who died at Atlantic City April 19, left his estate of about $40,000 principally to Roman Catholic institutions and churches

The will, admitted to probate today, devises $1000 to the Tabernacle Society of the convent of Notre Dame, $500 to the rector of the Roman Catholic University Ottawa, Canada.

Private bequests amounting to $5300 are ars to St. Joseph's College, Philadel- four The balance remaining will then be distributed in equal shares among the Church of St. Francis de Sales, St. Peter Claver's Church, St. John's Orphan Asylum, Seminary of St. Charles Barromeo, Overbrook; Little Sisters of the Poor, 18th and Jefferson streets; St. Joseph's Church, Society for the Propagation of the Faith and two friends. Margaret L. Connell, late of 1537 Church street, Frankford, left her entire $1500 estate to the Rev. Francis P. Fitzmaurice, of St. Joachim's parish, to be used for Masses.

Kate H. Stoddard, late of 2025 Spruce street, left an estate in excess of $125,000 to two sisters, Ida E. and Fannie G. Dixon; to a nephew and niece, John and Gertrude Gilbert. The executor of the extate is Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Commissioner of Health, a brother-in-law of the decedent of the decedent.

Other wills probated include those of Susan Donnelly, who left $6200; Bernard McHugh, $4728; William G. Keverlaber, $4000; Ann E. Merrick, $2000.
Personal property of Thomas F. Barry has been appraised at $333,773.44; Charles F. Ziegler, $3,419.52; Richard P. Woods, $12,082.57; Sarah B. Carter, $5018.04; Mary C. Forster, $4000; Alice Kelly, $2708.28; Samuel P. Kelly, $2545.81.

Held on Wife's Accusation

Joseph R. Marks, 2308 Ridge avenue, was arraigned before Magistrate Heaton, in City Hall, today and held in 1800 bail for court on a charge of being unfaithful to his wife. Marks, who was in court to his wife. Marka, who was in court a short time ago on a charge of non-support brought by his wife, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by his wife, necusing him of being intimate with Eilena Fairel.

Don't envy a Well Cleaned Home

—Use the Frantz Premier and

HAVE ONE

A. M. and the Day's Work Done
Loading Stores and Electric Shops. Call then or Market
418 for a free demanairation in rour home. Frantz Premier

Distributing Co. 730 Market St. THIED PLOOR

A Smart Evening Cape

woman who goes without a maid-would be quite impossible to tell who was joined by a frog made of the rope. the prettient. Ellipor and George hardly A decided flare at the bottom of the exchanged a dance, they were so terribly cloak gave it a fashionable line. The Interested in each other, and I had my bottom was finished off with a narrow friend, Mr. Ingersoll, to take me. Mrs. quilling of the taffeta, also outlined with Dallas were a wonderful cleak. I could the rope. The wide collar was velled by hardly keep my eyes off it all the way out a ruffle of the lace. With this, Mrs. Dais in the limousine.

lovely ashes of rose shade. Just at the lace. A touch of French blue and gift present time it is rather hard to select roses finished off the front. It sounds

WE HAD a wonderful time at the winter fashlons and the informal spring dance last night. I wasn't quite so styles. Well, the sleeves and cloak of this late as I had expected, because my gown creation were all in one, with full reper was one of the full, simple styles which of the material outlining them. With you fasten up the back and find yourself Chantifly lace in deep cream color was dressed. No more will the intricacies of softly shirred to the rope at the shoulder the draped skirt and the tunic worry the line and fell down in loose folds to the waist line. There were only two clasps. Everybody looked so very well that it which were made of mother-of-pearl and las were a levely little hat of dark rose-It was made of taffeta, of course, in a colored straw, also veiled with the same a becoming clonk, because they are so rather gay for most elderly women, but undecided in style, wavering between the not so in New York!

AROUND THE BARGAIN COUNTERS

Early Summer Hats

DARK HATS are slowly but surely creation seen in another shop. This is giving up their place in fashion's large, and decidedly floppy in shape. It favor for the light leghorn or Neapolitan is made of smooth straw, with a flange chapeau. All the best hat shops are of rose corded silk. At the top of the showing these garden hats almost ex- rather high crown there are small clusively. The only exception is the large bunches of daisies, in a sort of graysh color, with huge black centres, tied hera-Gainsborough hat of black straw.

One of our Market street shops is show- and there by narrow rose ribbon. The ing some most reasonably priced styles in price is $6.
dress hats. The majority of them are Poke shapes are almost as fashionable. large and flaring, with a bouquet of as the large Gainsboroughs, and this flowers and a velvet bandeau for the same store is showing some very pretty only trimming. One attractive hat had a soft band of French blue velvet around the company with a benefit of dark the erown, with a bouquet of dark you of lavender and old lace. It has a dalsies and moss roses at the front. A corresponding band of velvet was drawn across the crown. The price was $5.

Another hat at the same price, and very much on the same order, had a wreath of purple and yellow pansies around the crown, and the soft blue rib-bon showed through underneath, ending in a loose bow-knot at the back. A most faccinating little bat for the

JANE ADDAMS HOPEFUL

WOMEN WILL WIN PEACE

One of the most exquisite models seen this season is selling for the almost incredible price of $7.50-just at present. It is a very fine hemp, in a lovely butter color, and trimmed in front by a very French looking bouquet of blue chiffon, with strands of wheat twisted in with the flowers. Purplish fruits and pale green grapes add to the color sel fluffy little blonde miss is a rose-and-tan, and the effect is charming, very modern wired bow flying from the back, however, and the price is $5. One of the most exquisite models seen

Congress at The Hague Preparing Resolutions to Be Sent to Governments.

THE HAGUE, April 29. ational Women's Peace Congress was undertaken today, when the Committee on Resolutions held the first of a series of meetings, at which resolutions will be drawn up to be sent to all Govern-ients of the civilized world. Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, who was a long time and chosen president of the conference, has the water bottle. received a number of cablegrams of conratulation.

"I am sure we will accomplish some thing, but just how much we can do re-mains to be seen," said Miss Addams, "I find the work of presiding over this great and the work of presiding over this great gathering of earnest, serious-minded sweet milk to cover them for about $4$ women a pleasure and an inspiration to higher thoughts and deeds."

The proceedings are being carried on in stand almost as much usage as when new.

languages, Dutch, Engl four languages. Dutch. English, Germin 1500 to St. Vincent's Home and Maternity Hospital; $200 to the House of the Good Shepherd; $2000 to St. Vincent's Home: $500 to the Church of St. John the Evangelist, 13th street, above Chestnut; $500 to St. Anthony's Church, Lancaster, Pa.

The balance remaining will then be discovered by the committees of the women of many countries, not a flag of any kind is visible.

Most of the American women have al-ready been heard by the convention, among them Mrs. Fannie Androws and Annie Molloy, of Boston, and Grace Ab-bott. Florence Holbrook and Sophonisba Breckenridge, of Chicago. Pamphlets containing the best speeches against war are being prepared for international cir-

Does Love Win Love?

Does the warmth of a great love inevitably kindle a love in the heart of the beloved? Alas! this cannot be so, or why so many unreciprocated attachments?

No, it is not true that love begets love. Many a man has worshiped for years, and not been able to win more than the most casual affection in return. And their name is legion of those who have married with but a one-sided affection between them.

And does the other side never respond to, never return this depth of feeling?

Very seldom, if ever; in time a placid tenderness may be evoked, but not love. A great amount of human rain and

A great amount of human pain and misery would be spared if love could always win love, but while human hearts are under the mysterious sway of Master Dan Cupid this can never be the case, for as the wind bloweth where it listeth, so love loves just how and when he chooses.

De Many

1115 Chestnut St.

MILLINERY AND FURS

A prize of $1 has been awarded to Mrs. W. S. Kuser, 536 South 52d street, Philadel-phia, for the following suggestion: Do not throw away an old hot-water bag because it leaks. Fasten over the leak a strong piece of athesive plaster. Fill the bag with sand or salt and cover with a flannel bag. It will hold heat tor

a long time and can be used instead of

If cracked dishes are boiled in enough

A prize of 50 cents has been awarded to Miss E. Bair, Contesville, Pa., for the fol-lowing suggestion: When making a skirt, I have found that by chalking a window sill, one that just by chalking a window sit, one that "hits" below the hips, and turning around "hits" below the hips and turning around the completely marked. until one's skirt is completely marked, then measure evenly all around, allowing as many inches as desired off the floor, that my skirt bangs very evenly.

A prize of 50 cents has been awarded to Clare M. Deimer, Hotel Yendig, Philade phin, for the following suggestion: Mix a 10-cent can of cocoa with cold water and boil in a double boiler until it pecomes an even paste. Place this paste oecomes an even paste. Place this paste in a glass and keep in a cool place, and whenever a glass of iced cocoa is desired, add a tenspoonful of the prepared mixture and sugar to taste, to a glass of iced milk. This makes a delicious summer drift.

Anti-suffragist Meeting Tonight A public meeting will be held in the tonight at 8 o'clock under the auspless of the Pennsylvania Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. The principal to Woman Suffrage. The principal speaker will be Miss Minnie Bronson. general secretary of the National Asso-ciation Opposed to Woman Suffrage. No admission will be charged.

> There are 21 carefully blended ingredients in the sauce that gives its appetizing flavor.

Even though you knew the recipe and could get all these delicate things, you would still lack the expert knowledge of our Italian chef who puts them

Most housewives are glad to get such a delicious food, cooked

H. J. HEINZ COMPANY

57 Varieties